WHEREAS by an Order in Council, dated the 20th day of August, 1914, His Majesty was pleased to declare that during the present hostilities the provisions of the Declaration of London should, subject to certain additions and modifications therein specified, be adopted and put in force by His Majesty's Government:

And whereas the said Declaration was adopted as aforementioned in common with His Majesty's Allies:

And whereas it has been necessary for His Majesty and for His Allies from time to time to issue further enactments modifying the application of the articles of the said Declaration:

And whereas Orders in Council for this purpose have been issued by His Majesty on the 29th day of October, 1914, the 20th day of October, 1915, and the 30th day of March, 1916;

And whereas the issue of these successive Orders in Council may have given rise to some doubt as to the intention of His Majesty, as also as to that of His Allies, to act in strict accordance with the law of nations, and it is therefore expedient to withdraw the said Orders so far as they are now in force:

Now, THEREFORE, His Majesty, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, is pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the Declaration of London Order in Council No. 2, 1914, and all Orders subsequent thereto amending the said Order are hereby withdrawn;

And whereas on account of the changed conditions of commerce and the diversity of practice doubts might arise in certain matters as to the rules which His Majesty and His Allies regard as being in conformity with the law of nations, and it is expedient to deal with such matters specifically;

It is hereby ordered that the following provisions shall be observed:—

(a) The hostile destination required for the condemnation of contraband articles shall be presumed to exist, until the contrary is shown, if the goods are consigned to or for an enemy authority, or an agent of the enemy State, or to or for a person in territory belonging to or occupied by the enemy, or to or for a person who, during the present hostilities, has forwarded contraband goods to an enemy authority, or an agent of the enemy State, or to or for a person in territory belonging to or occupied by the enemy, or if the goods are consigned "to order," or if the ship's papers do not show who is the real consignee of the goods.

(d) A vessel carrying contraband shall be liable to capture and condemnation if the contraband, reckoned either by value, weight, volume, or freight forms more than half the cargo.

And it is hereby further ordered as follows:—

(i) Nothing herein shall be deemed to affect the Order in Council of the 11th March 1915, for restricting further the commerce of the enemy or any of His Majesty's Proclamations declaring articles to be contraband of war during the present hostilities.

(ii) Nothing herein shall affect the validity of anything done under the Orders in Council hereby withdrawn.

(iii) Any cause or proceeding commenced in any Prize Court before the making of this Order may, if the Court thinks just, be heard and decided under the provisions of the Orders hereby withdrawn so far as they were in force at the date when such cause or proceeding was commenced, or would have been applicable in such cause or proceeding if this Order had not been made.

This Order may be cited as "The Maritime Rights Order in Council. 1916."

And the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, and each of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, the President of the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division of the High Court of Justice, all other Judges of His Majesty's Prize Courts, and all Governors, Officers, and authorities whom it may concern, are to give the necessary directions herein as to them may respectively appertain.

Sheriff's Sale Proclamation.

TO be peremptorily sold pursuant to an order of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal in its Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction made in suit No. 1350 of 1914 (wherein Heeralall Agarwalla and another versus Gungadinram Kalwar), and dated the 23rd day of March 1915 in execution of the decree passed in the said suit and dated the 26th January 1915 by the Sheriff of Calcutta in his sale room in the Court-house by public auction on Wednesday, the 13th day of September 1916, at 12 o'clock noon, the undermentioned property belonging to the judgment-debtor:—

The entire sixteen annas share of the judgment-debtor in all that upper-roomed brick-built house, messuage and premises No. 4-2A, Roop Chand Roy's Street, Calcutta, together with the leasehold right and interest of the judgment-debtor in the land on which the same is erected and built containing 4 cottahs, more or less, for the unexpired term of 15 years from the 23rd day of May 1911 under a lease dated the 23rd May 1911 executed by Ashutosh Dhur in favour of Gungadinram Kalwar, the judgment-debtor. The said land is bounded on the north partly by Roop Chand Roy's Street, and partly by premises No. 4-1A, Roop Chand Roy's Street, on the east by premises No. 146, Harrison Road, on the south by the land of Asutosh Dhur, and on the west by premises No. 44, Roop Chand Roy's Street. The sum of Rs. 50 per month is payable to the said Ashutosh Dhur as rent, besides both the owner and occupiers' shares of taxes.

The amount for the recovery of which the sale has been ordered is Rs. 5,274-10, besides the costs of execution and of the sale.

The conditions of sale may be seen at the office of the Sheriff of Calcutta or at the office of Messrs. Fox and Mandal, attorneys for the plaintiff, at No. 12, Old Post Office Street, on any day before the sale and will be produced at the sale.

NOTIFICATION

No. 890L., dated the 15th August, 1916.—The following report of the Select Committee, which was presented to the Bengal Legislative Council on the 7th August, 1916, is hereby published for general information:—

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE CALCUTTA HACKNEY-CARRIAGE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1916.

WE, the undersigned members of the Select Committee, to which the Bill to amend the Calcutta Hackney-carriage Act, 1891, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin and have the honour to submit this our Report.

2. We find, on an examination of the Bill, that it does not adequately deal with all the additions and alterations necessary in the Calcutta Hackney-carriage Act of 1891, and that these, if fully carried out, would involve almost the entire recasting of that Act.

3. In addition to the amendments suggested in the Bill we are of opinion—

(1) that the separate registration of horses, similar to the registration of carriages, is necessary ;

(2) that rickshaws should be brought within the scope of the Act ; and

(3) that the penalty clauses throughout the existing Act require amendment.

4. We also think that the wording of the existing Act is defective in many respects.

5. These additions and alterations would so materially alter the existing Act as to go beyond the scope of an amending Bill, and we are informed that a fresh reference to the Government of India will be necessary before these changes can be introduced.

6. In all the circumstances of the case, we are of opinion that the present Bill should not be further proceeded with, and we recommend that the existing Calcutta Hackney-carriage Act of 1891 be reconsidered as a whole and that a new consolidating and amending Bill be framed for introduction in the Council.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

First Forecast of the Cotton Crops of Bengal, 1916-17.

(Note.—On the average of the five years ending 1913-14, the area under the Cotton Crops in Bengal represents some 0·2 per cent. of the total area under cotton in India.)

Character of the Season.—Early cotton is grown in the districts of Bankura, Midnapore, Mymensingh, the Chittagong Hill Tracts and in the State of Hill Tippera, and late cotton in the former two districts only. At the sowing time of the early crop weather conditions were not quite favourable, particularly in the Chittagong Hill Tracts. The present condition of the crop in all districts is reported to be fairly satisfactory. The late crop has not yet been sown in Bankura; and in Midnapore the condition is reported to be fair.

Area Sown.—The area sown with early cotton is estimated at 72,904 acres against 85,698 acres estimated in the corresponding forecast last year. The decrease in area is attributed to unfavourable weather conditions.

Of the late crop 700 acres are estimated to have been sown up to date against the same figure in the corresponding forecast of last year.

MONTHLY WEATHER AND CROP REPORT OF BENGAL FOR JULY 1916.

I. Character of the season.—The rainfall during the month under report was below the normal throughout the Province, excepting in the Northern Bengal districts where in most cases the fall was largely in excess. The usual rainfall statement is appended.

II. Progress of Agricultural Operations.—Transplanting of winter rice was proceeding everywhere, but its progress was somewhat retarded in some of the Western Bengal districts owing to the insufficiency of rainfall. Harvesting of autumn rice and jute was in progress in Eastern Bengal. Steeping and washing of jute were also going on.

III. State of Standing Crops.—The standing crops were in a fairly satisfactory condition all over the Province, excepting in the low lands of some of the northern and eastern districts where they are reported to have been submerged owing to excessive rain and flood.

IV. Prospects and Probable Outturn.—The prospects of autumn paddy and jute are reported to be on the whole fair.

V. Damage to Standing Crops.—Damage by floods resulting from the rise of river water to the standing crops is reported from the districts of Jessore, Pabna, Malda, Dacca and Faridpur. The crop also suffered in the low lands of Cooch-Behar, Jalpaiguri and Dinajpur from flooding caused by excessive rainfall. The insects were also responsible for slight damage to paddy and jute in parts of Nadia, 24-Parganas, Howrah, Burdwan and Chittagong.

VI. Condition of Agricultural Stock.—The condition of agricultural stock is reported to have been fairly good. The number of districts in which cattle-disease was found to be prevalent varied from two to ten.

VII. Failure of Pasturage and Fodder.—There was no scarcity of fodder anywhere.

VIII. Prices of Food-grains.—During the second fortnight of the month under review the prices of common rice rose in three districts, fell in ten and remained stationary in the rest. It varied from 8 seers 8 chitaks per rupee at Chittagong to 6 seers 15 chitaks at Comilla.

IX. Condition of Agricultural People.—Scarcity continued to prevail in parts of Bankura, Tippera and the Chittagong Hill Tracts. Elsewhere the condition of the agricultural people was fairly good

REPORT ON FAMINE AND SCARCITY IN THE DISTRICTS OF BANKURA AND TIPPERA FOR THE WEEK ENDING 5TH AUGUST 1916.

In the Bankura district the distress in the affected areas is generally unchanged. Transplantation of winter paddy is being retarded owing to insufficient rainfall. The relief measures are adequate. The condition of people on the relief-works is generally good. Private charitable funds are giving relief. Advances are being made to weavers. The artizans are being relieved in their own trade. Prices are stationary. The price of rice is 8½ seers per rupee. The number of persons on relief-works was 12,772 and in receipt of gratuitous relief 20,707, total 33,479. The increase in the number of persons on relief-works was due to the paucity of agricultural employment in some local areas. Two thousand seven hundred and seventeen persons were relieved on private works.

In the Tippera district the harvesting of autumn paddy and jute has begun. Gratuitous relief has been stopped since July 29th owing to improved conditions. No further relief measures are necessary.

DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS

For the week ending on the 14th August 1916.

Summary.—During the week heavy rain fell almost throughout Eastern and Northern Bengal; but the fall was light to moderate elsewhere. The recent rainfall has improved the prospects of standing crops in the western districts, but more rain is still wanted for the transplanting of winter rice. Some damage has been done to the standing crops in places especially on low lands in the Rajshahi and Dacca Divisions by excessive rainfall and floods. Transplanting of winter rice and harvesting of autumn paddy and jute are in progress. Cattle-disease is reported from six districts. Scarcity of fodder is reported from parts of Dinajpur and Dacca. The average price of common rice for the Province has a slight tendency to fall as compared with that of the previous week. Scarcity continues to be reported from parts of the Chittagong Hill Tracts, where relief measures are being taken.

No. 901.—The following is published for general information :—

Supplement dated the 20th June 1916, to the "London Gazette" of the 20th June 1916, pages 6127 to 6133.

War Office,
20th June 1916.

The following despatch has been received by the Secretary of State for War from Lieutenant-General The Hon. J. C Smuts, Commander-in-Chief, East African Force :—

General Headquarters,
East Africa,
30th April 1916.

MY LORD,—

In accordance with your instructions, I assumed command of His Majesty's Forces in East Africa on the 12th February, and sailed from South Africa on that day.

I arrived at Mombasa on the 19th of February, and was met there by Major-General Tighe, who explained to me fully the situation in East Africa and the steps he had taken to push forward all preparations for an operation in the Kilimanjaro area before the rains. I decided to visit immediately the two proposed lines of advance by Mbuyuni and Longido, and to make a personal reconnaissance in company with General Tighe.

As a result of this reconnaissance I cabled your Lordship on arrival at my General Headquarters in Nairobi on 23rd February that I was prepared to carry out the occupation of the Kilimanjaro area before the rainy season, and received your sanction on 25th February.

2. It will, I think, assist a clear understanding of this despatch if I here briefly recapitulate the outstanding features of the military situation in East Africa, and also the steps recently taken by General Tighe towards the development of the advance into German territory which was made possible by the arrival of the reinforcements from South Africa.

At the commencement of 1916 the German forces in German East Africa were estimated at some 16,000 men, of whom 2,000 were white, with 60 guns and 80 machine guns. They were organised in companies varying from 150 to 200 strong, with 10 per cent. of whites and an average of two machine guns per company.

The enemy occupied a considerable tract of British territory. At Taveta they had established a large entrenched camp, with an advanced position at Salaita (El Oldorobo), an entrenched camp at Serengeti, and an outpost at Mbuyuni, the latter places thirteen and seventeen miles respectively east of Taveta. At Kasigau they maintained a garrison of 500-600 rifles with the object of delaying our concentration by blowing up the Uganda railway and the Voi-Maktau railway. Their numerous attempts to accomplish th s end were uniformly futile. In the coastal area they maintained a considerable garrison on the Umba River, and actively patrolled thence to the vicinity of the Uganda railway, Mwele Mdogo and Gazi. At numerous points throughout the 600 miles of land frontier the opposing troops were in touch, and the result was that General Tighe had to disseminate widely his small force, and was unable to keep any large reserve in hand to meet a sudden call. In spite of the fact that he had to be constantly on the watch for the next move of his active and enterprising foe, General Tighe kept steadily before him the necessity of doing all in his power to prepare the way for the eventual offensive movement. With this end in view he organised such of his infantry as could be spared for active operations into the 1st and 2nd East African Brigades, acting on the Taveta and Longido lines, respectively, and proceeded to develop the organisation of the whole force into two divisions and line of communication troops.

3. On the 15th January the 1st Division, under Major-General Stewart was ordered to occupy Longido and to develop the lines of communication between that place and Kajiado, on the Magadi railway. On the 22nd January the 2nd Division, under Brigadier-General Malleson, advanced from Maktau to Mbuyuni, meeting with slight opposition, and on the 24th, occupied Serengeti camp. This advance had the immediate effect of making the enemy evacuate Kasigau. The railway was advanced from Maktau to Njoro drift, three miles east of Salaita, and arrangements made for the concentration of a large force at and near Mbuyuni. The greatest difficulty in the way of this concentration was the lack of water, the Serengeti plains being by nature a waterless desert. A 2¼ inch pipe was laid from Bura, but this did not suffice, over 100,000 gallons being required daily, and the pipe yielding only 40,000. The balance had to be made good by railway and storage tanks. The whole of the watering arrangements were so carefully worked out that not a single hitch occurred when the main concentration eventually took place, in spite of the fact that an enemy raiding party succeeded in damaging the Bura headworks. For this great credit is due to Lieutenant-Colonel C. B. Collins, R.E., who was General Tighe's C.R.E.

I cannot speak too highly of all the preliminary work done by General Tighe in the direction of organisation and preparation for offensive measures. This left me free on arrival to devote my whole energies to active operations, and I take this opportunity of placing on record my appreciation of the fact that the success of those operations is in a large measure due to General Tighe's foresight and energy in paving the way for the expected reinforcements.

4. Early in February the 2nd South African Infantry Brigade arrived, and on the 12th of that month General Tighe directed the 2nd Division to make a reconnaissance in force of Salaita, and if possible to occupy that position. General Malleson carried out this operation with three battalions, 2nd South African Brigade, and three battalions, 1st East African Brigade, supported by 18 guns and howitzers. The Salaita position is one of considerable natural strength, and had been carefully entrenched. The enemy was found to be in force and counter-attacked vigorously. General Malleson was compelled to withdraw to Serengeti, but much useful information had been gained, and the South African Infantry had learned some invaluable lessons in bush fighting, and also had opportunity to estimate the fighting qualities of their enemy.

5. This brings the operations up to the date on which I arrived in East Africa, and decided, as mentioned above, that the occupation of the Kilimanjaro area before the rainy season was a feasible operation.

The original plan devised by General Tighe had been to occupy the Kilimanjaro area by making a converging advance from Longido and Mbuyuni with the 1st and 2nd Divisions respectively, with Kahe as the point towards which movement was to be directed. To this main plan I adhered, but I decided that some alteration of dispositions was necessary in order to avoid frontal attacks against entrenched positions of the enemy in the dense bush and to secure the rapidity of advance which appeared to me essential to the success of the operation in the short time at our disposal before the commencement of the rains, which might be expected towards the end of March.

Accordingly, I issued orders that the 1st South African Mounted Brigade under the command of Brigadier-General Van Deventer should be transferred from the 1st Division to Mbuyuni and act from there directly under my orders in a turning movement to the north of Taveta and Salaita. This transfer was carried out by rail most expeditiously, and by March 4th all minor concentrations were complete, the 3rd South African Brigade had arrived in the country, and my force was disposed as follows :—

1st Division (less 1st South African Mounted Brigade), Longido.

2nd Division (less detachments), Mbuyuni and Serengeti.

1st South African Mounted Brigade, Mbuyuni.

Army Artillery, Mbuyuni and Serengeti.

The 2nd South African Infantry Brigade, one field and one howitzer battery, were retained by me as Force Reserve.

6. The general outline of my plan has been explained to your Lordship in various telegrams, but I will recapitulate the main points here.

The task of the 1st Division was to cross the 35 miles of waterless bush which lay between Longido and the Engare Nanjuki River, occupy the latter, and then advance between Meru and Kilimanjaro to Boma Jangombe. My intention was thereafter to direct this division on Kahe, and cut the enemy's line of communication by the Usambara railway.

The task of the 1st South African Mounted Brigade and of the 2nd Division was to advance through the gap between Kilimanjaro and the Pare Hills against the enemy's main force, which was reported to be concentrated in the neighbourhood of Taveta, with strong detachments at the head of Lake Jipe, in the bush east of the river Lumi and at Salaita. The total force with which the enemy could oppose our advance into the Kilimanjaro area was estimated at 6,000 rifles, with 37 machine guns and 16 guns.

7. The manner in which I proposed to initiate the operation was as follows:—

(a) 1st Division to commence its forward movement on the 5th March and be allowed two clear days' start before the advance against Taveta should begin.

(b) 1st South African Mounted Brigade and 3rd South African Infantry Brigade, both under command of General Van Deventer, to leave Mbuyuni and Serengeti on the evening of the 7th March, and make a night march to the river Lumi east of Lake Chala. On the 8th to seize the high ground round Lake Chala and develop a turning movement by the west against Taveta. The object of this turning movement was partly to surprise the enemy and partly to avoid a frontal attack through the thick bush which lay between Salaita and Taveta.

(c) 2nd Division to advance against Salaita Hill on the morning of the 8th March, entrench a line facing the hill, and make preparations for an attack, supported by the Army Artillery.

(d) Force Reserve to follow General Van Deventer's column during the night of the 7th-8th March and take up a central position astride the Lumi, whence it could be used to reinforce either Van Deventer or the 2nd Division, as required.

It will be readily seen that these movements demanded the greatest energy and decision on the part of the commanders concerned. In order to be in close touch with the main operations round Taveta I decided to accompany the Force Reserve to the Lumi, leaving part of my General Staff at Mbuyuni to control operations elsewhere.

The initial movements were carried out successfully and with very slight opposition on the part of the enemy, who was undoubtedly taken by surprise. The 1st Division succeeded in crossing the waterless belt safely, and by the afternoon of the 6th March had its advanced troops established on the small hill Nagasseni just east of the river Engare Nanjuki. By 2 P.M., on the 7th the whole division was concentrated at this point, and on the 8th moved to Geraragua.

8. On the evening of the 7th March General Van Deventer's column started on its march across the Serengeti plains for Chala. The 1st South African Mounted Brigade from Mbuyuni and the 3rd South African Infantry Brigade from Serengeti Camp. The Force Réserve under General Beves followed in rear of the 3rd South African Infantry Brigade.

At 6 A.M. on the 8th March the 1st South African Mounted Brigade reached the Lumi River near the southern end of the Ziwani swamp, and the 3rd South African Infantry Brigade simultaneously arrived on the river east of Lake Chala. General Van Deventer at once proceeded to make good the high ground lying between Lake Chala and Rombo Mission. He then made a converging movement on the Chala position from the east and north-west, sending the brigade scouts to threaten the enemy's line of retreat to the south. Chala was only lightly held by the enemy, and these dispositions soon caused him to withdraw on Taveta. General Van Deventer occupied Chala and pursued towards Taveta, a portion of which position was occupied by the 2nd South African Horse. As, however, the enemy in Taveta were in considerable strength, General Van Deventer considered it wise to concentrate on the Chala position before dark.

Meanwhile the 3rd South African Infantry Brigade and the Force Reserve halted astride the Lumi to guard the crossing. During the afternoon an enemy force estimated at from 300 to 500, which had been cut off from the main body by our unexpected movement to Chala, advanced from the north along the line of the river in thick bush, and made more than one attack on the outposts of the infantry in bivouacs. These attacks were easily repulsed with loss to the enemy, but also caused most of the losses we sustained that day.

While the bulk of my forces were engaged in making good the Chala position and the Lumi crossing, the 2nd Division, under Major-General Tighe, carried out, on the 8th March, an artillery bombardment of Salaita, and the infantry of the 1st East African Brigade advanced and dug themselves in, in readiness for an attack on the 9th.

9. At dawn on the 9th General Van Deventer sent his mounted troops to get astride the Moschi road west of Taveta, which place the enemy evacuated in the course of the day. He also sent the 12th South African Infantry to make good Ndui Ya Waronbo Hill and the Lumi bridge east of Taveta. The 2nd Division continued to bombard Salaita, and at 2 P.M. the infantry advanced to the attack, only to find that the bombardment, coupled with the turning movement via Chala, had compelled the enemy to evacuate, just in time to avoid two squadrons of the 4th South African Horse sent to intercept their retreat.

10. Early on the 10th a regiment of South African Horse despatched from Chala to make good Taveta were able to seize the position before a large body of the enemy, who had obviously been sent back to reoccupy it. After a brief fight the enemy withdrew towards the Latema-Reata nek, hotly pursued by mounted troops and field artillery. The enemy fought a stubborn rearguard action, and eventually was left in position on the nek.

On the same date the 2nd Division advanced to Taveta, detaching garrisons at Serengeti and Salaita. The Lumi crossing was found impassable for motor lorries and heavy guns and the bulk of the transport did not cross until the bridge had been improved about mid-day on the 11th.

11. On the morning of the 11th General Van Deventer on the right advanced via Spitze Hill and Kile on Mamba Mission and the line of the Himo. In the centre the 4th South African Horse, supported by the 12th South African Infantry, made good East Kitowo Hill after a brisk skirmish. On the left the mounted troops of the 2nd Division reconnoitred the Latema-Reata nek, which was found to be held in some strength. The Force Reserve was ordered to move from Chala to Taveta

It was now clear that the enemy had withdrawn from Taveta in two directions, along the Taveta-Moschi road towards the west and along the Taveta-Kahe road between Reata and Latema Hills towards the south-west, but the exact line of retirement of his main forces was uncertain. The 4th South African Horse were in touch with what appeared to be merely a rearguard on the Moschi road, and an enemy force of unknown strength was in position on the Latema-Reata nek. It was essential to determine whether this was only a covering force, or whether the enemy was in such strength as to threaten a counter-attack towards Taveta. In either case it was necessary to drive him from the nek before I could advance beyond Taveta.

The 2nd Division had in Taveta only three weak battalions of the 1st East African Brigade, eight 12-pr. guns and a howitzer battery. With these I determined to clear up the situation and, if possible, make good the nek.

12. This operation was entrusted to Brigadier-General Malleson, commanding the 1st East African Brigade, who had at his disposal:—

Belfield's Scouts.

Mounted Infantry Company.

Nos. 6 and 8 Field Batteries.

No. 134 Howitzer Battery.

2nd Rhodesian Regiment.

130th Baluchis.

3rd King's African Rifles.

Machine Gun Battery, Loyal North Lancs.

Volunteer Machine Gun Company.

General Malleson selected as his objective the spur of Latema, which commands the nek from the north, and at 11-45 A.M. advanced to the attack. The 130th Baluchis on the right and 3rd K.A.R. on the left formed the firing line, 2nd Rhodesian Regiment the general reserve. The mounted troops watched both flanks, and the artillery supported the attack at a range of about 3,500 yards.

As they approached the bush-clad slopes of Latema the firing line came under a heavy rifle and machine gun fire. The enemy also had at least two guns and several pom-poms in action, and our infantry could make little headway.

13. At 4 P.M. the Force Reserve began to arrive in Tavota, and I reinforced the 2nd Division with the 5th South African Battalion. At the same time General Malleson, who was seriously indisposed, asked to be relieved of his command, and I directed General Tighe to assume command of the operation personally.

On the arrival of the 5th South African Infantry, General Tighe ordered the Rhodesians to advance, and to carry the King's African Rifles forward with them in an assault on the Latema ridge, the 130th Baluchis co-operating vigorously on the right. All ground gained was to be at once made good. The 9th Field Battery and 5th South African Field Battery, as they arrived in Tavota, were brought into action in support of the attack. This assault was gallantly pressed home, especially by the Rhodesians, but failed to make good the ridge. The 3rd K. A. R., who had been hotly engaged since the outset, had the misfortune to lose their gallant leader, Lieutenant-Colonel B. R. Graham, and several other officers. General Tighe found it necessary to support the Baluchis with half the 5th South African Infantry and I further reinforced the 2nd Division with the 7th South African Infantry.

14. This latter battalion reached General Tighe about 8 P.M., and shortly afterwards he decided that the best chance of quickly dislodging the enemy from their position on the nek was to send in the two South African Battalions with bayonet by night. This operation was no doubt fraught with considerable risk as there was no opportunity of adequately reconnoitring the ground over which the attack must be made, nor was it by any means certain that the enemy was not present in large numbers. On the other hand the moon was in the first quarter, and so facilitated movement up to midnight; the bush along the line of the road to the nek did not appear to be very dense; and, moreover, the volume of fire developed by the enemy did not seem to indicate that he had a large force actually in his first line, though he had, as usual, a large proportion of machine guns in action.

15. The night advance of the two South African Battalions was ably organised and gallantly led by Lieutenant-Colonel Byron, Commanding 5th South African Infantry. The 7th South African Infantry formed the 1st line, with the 5th in support. They advanced with great dash through the bush, which proved to be much thicker than was anticipated, driving the enemy before them till the latter was on the crest, where he checked our advance. A certain amount of disintegration was inevitable in a night advance through the dense thorn bush in the face of stubborn opposition. Groups of men and individuals who got separated from their leaders had no course but to fall back to the position where the 1st East African Brigade was formed up in general reserve, about 1,500 yards east of the nek. Colonel Byron had issued instructions that on reaching the crest, Lieutenant-Colonel Freeth, commanding the 7th South African Infantry, and Major Thompson of the same battalion, should wheel outwards and make good the heights north and south of the nek respectively, while Colonel Byron himself secured the actual nek. These two gallant officers most ably carried out their task. Colonel Freeth fought his way up the steep spurs of Latema till he found that the party with him had dwindled to 18 men. He was joined by a few of the Rhodesians and King's African Rifles, who had clung on to the crest of the ridge after the assault in the evening, and the small party held on till daylight. Major Thompson wheeled towards Reata with 170 men and dug himself in in an advantageous position. About midnight Colonel Byron reached the nek within 30 yeards of the enemy's main position. The opposition here was very stubborn. At one point Major Mainprise, R. E., Brigade Major, and 22 men were killed by the concentrated fire of three machine guns, and Colonel Byron, who was himself slightly wounded, reached the nek with only 20 men. The enemy was still in a position which commanded the ground he had won, and, finding it impossible either to advance or to hold his ground, he was reluctantly compelled to withdraw.

16. Meanwhile General Tighe found it extremely difficult to keep touch with the progress of the fight, of which he could only judge by the firing and the reports of officers and others sent back from the ridge, who naturally were only cognisant of events in their own immediate vicinity. About 1 A.M. several requests for reinforcements reached him, and he ordered forward the 130th Baluchis. These advanced at 1-20 A.M., and shortly met Colonel Byron, who reported that he had ordered his small party to retire. General Tighe accordingly reformed his force and dug in astride the road to await daylight. Attempts to gain touch with Colonel Freeth and Major Thompson failed.

Judging by General Tighe's reports, I considered that it was inadvisable to press the direct attack on the Latema-Reata nek further, and preferred to await the effect of the turning movement of the mounted troops, which was ordered for the next morning, and calculated to cause a speedy withdrawal of the enemy from this position. I accordingly, at 4-30 A.M., directed General Tighe to withdraw his whole force before daybreak to a line further back from the nek. This withdrawal was in progress when patrols sent to gain touch with the flank detachments on Reata and Latema found the latter in occupation of both hills and the enemy in full retreat from the nek. I at once despatched the 8th South African Infantry to make good the ridge, and some artillery to shell the retiring enemy, who was now estimated to be between 1,500 and 2,000 in number. Effective pursuit through the dense tropical forest which stretched from Kitowo to Kahe was out of the question.

17. Our casualties in the engagement were about 270, which cannot be considered excessive in view of the important results gained. We captured, besides rifles and ammunition, a 6 cm. gun and three machine guns. Some 40 to 50 enemy dead were found on the position, and, as they are always most careful to remove their dead and wounded, there can be no doubt that their casualties were severe. While this action was in progress on the Taveta-Kahe road, the 4th South African Horse and 12th South African Infantry kept up a brisk engagement with the enemy on the Taveta-Moschi road, where the enemy was found to be in strong force on the northern slopes of Latema and on North Kitovo Hill. At one point 20 of the enemy dead were found after the engagement.

18. With the end of this action the first phase of the battle for Kilimanjaro came to a conclusion. On the 12th March General Van Deventer continued his advance up to Mamba Mission and the Himo Bridge on the Taveta-Moschi road, in the face of slight opposition. The enemy in his retirement during the night and the early morning had destroyed all bridges on the road, and great difficulty was experienced in rationing Van Deventer's force. On the 13th he advanced and occupied Moschi unopposed, the enemy having withdrawn the previous night towards Kahe. The 2nd and 3rd South African Brigades were thereupon concentrated at the Himo Bridge, the remainder of the 2nd Division at Taveta.

19. It is necessary now to refer to the movements of the 1st Division, which had arrived at Geraragua on the 8th, having encountered only slight opposition. On the 9th General Stewart halted to reconnoitre and let his supplies catch up. The direct road from Geraragua to Boma-Ja-Ngombe was reported impossible for wheels, all bridges having been destroyed by the enemy. As a result of this and of the exhausted state of his ox transport, General Stewart considered it necessary to halt on the morning of the 10th, and reconnoitre for a road further to the west. A difficult but passable track was found, and the march was resumed at mid-day. The mounted troops left Geraragua at 16 hours on the 10th, on which date they encountered some opposition, sustaining 13 casualties. The Division and the mounted troops eventually joined hands on the Sanja River on the night of the 12th-13th, and on the 13th advanced to Boma-Ja-Ngombe. On the 14th, when the main force of the enemy had already retired to the Ruwu and Kahe positions, the 1st Division joined hands with General Van Deventer in New Moschi, through which place the six companies of the enemy who had been opposing General Stewart had already passed on the night of the 12th March, as previously stated.

20. The next few days, from the 13th to the 18th March, were spent in improving the road from Taveta to Moschi, reorganising transport, bringing up supplies, etc., and in reconnoitring towards Kahe and the Ruwu River. The whole of the country bordering that river on the north is dense tropical forest, and the enemy took advantage of this to display some boldness in firing into our camps by night.

On the night of the 17th-18th Belfield's Scouts were sent from Himo bridge to occupy Unterer Himo, and at dawn were driven off by a superior force of the enemy. A position on the Ruwu river appeared to me from patrols, intelligence reports and somewhat incomplete air reconnaissance, to be the next which the enemy might hold, and it was of vital importance for purposes of railway extension and future advance that the enemy should be driven south of this river before the rains commenced.

I therefore, on the 18th, issued orders for a general advance towards the Ruwu. On the extreme right the East African Mounted Rifles and a squadron of the 17th Cavalry advanced from Mue via Masai Kraal. The 3rd South African Brigade moved from Himo bridge on Euphorbien Hill, and the 2nd South African Brigade from the same point on Unterer Himo, to which place the 1st East African Brigade of the 2nd Division sent forward two battalions from Latema. The advance was supported by field and mountain artillery. The infantry occupied the line Euphorbien Hill-Unterer Himo without difficulty, while the East African Mounted Rifles encountered three enemy companies at Masai Kraal. During the day I ordered the 2nd East African Brigade of the 1st Division from New Moschi to Mue to support the mounted troops on the Kahe road.

21. On the 19th the general advance continued, but the 1st East African, 2nd and 3rd South African Brigades could make little progress through the well-nigh impenetrable bush which surrounded the enemy's position on the Himo about Rasthaus. The 3rd Brigade, ably supported by the 28th Mountain Battery, had a sharp engagement with the enemy at dusk while occupying its line for the night, and sustained 30—40 casualties. The fresh graves of twenty-seven of the enemy's askaris were afterwards found in the vicinity of the action. The 2nd East African Brigade and the mounted troops of the 1st Division under General Sheppard pushed the enemy back to Store, four miles south of Masai Kraal, and bivouacked there for the night. On the 20th I withdrew the 2nd South African Brigade from Unterer Himo, and sent three battalions to reinforce General Sheppard on the Mue-Kahe Road, where I anticipated the strongest opposition. At 2 P.M., on the 20th General Van Deventer, with the 1st South African Mounted Brigade, the 4th South African Horse, and two field batteries, left Moschi with instructions to cross the Pangani, and get in rear of the enemy's position at Kahe Station. That night General Sheppard's camp at Store was heavily attacked from 9-30 P.M. to midnight. These attacks were repulsed with loss to the enemy. The enemy force actually engaged was estimated by prisoners at 500 men with another 500 in reserve. Their casualties were estimated at 70—100, ours were 20.

22. At daylight on the 21st Van Deventer was approaching the Pangani from the west at a point south-west of Kahe Hill. He experienced some difficulty in crossing the river, but by midday had occupied in succession Kahe Hill, Bauman Hill and Kahe Station with slight opposition. The enemy had already earlier in the day blown up the main railway bridge over the Ruwu (or Pangani).

After the loss of Kahe Hill the enemy realised its importance as the key to the Ruwu position and made several determined attempts to recover it, which were, however, beaten back with loss. A mounted party which moved forward from Kahe Hill to cut off the retreat of the enemy by the wagon road south of the Ruwu found the enemy in force, and had to retire. Van Deventer therefore waited for the following day to develop the turning movement after his whole brigade should have been brought across the Pangani. During the whole day the enemy had two 4·1-inch naval guns in action, one on a railway truck and the other from a concealed fixed position south of the Ruwu.

23. On the 21st General Sheppard had the following troops under his command:—

2nd East African Brigade.

25th Battalion, Royal Fusiliers.
29th Punjabis.
129th Baluchis.

2nd South African Brigade.

5th South African Battalion.
6th South African Battalion.
8th South African Battalion.

Divisional Troops.

East African Mounted Rifles.
1 Squadron, 17th Cavalry.
1st and 3rd South African Field Artillery Batteries.
27th Mountain Battery.
No. 12 Howitzer Battery.
1st King's African Rifles.
2 Royal Naval Armoured Cars.

As soon as I heard that General van Deventer was nearing Kahe I ordered General Sheppard to advance. This he did at 11-30 A.M., with the 2nd South African Brigade on his right, and the 2nd East African Brigade on his left, the dividing line being the Masai Kraal-Kahe road. By 12-30 P.M., the enemy had been driven back on to his main position on the south edge of a clearing in the dense bush, with his east and west flanks protected respectively by the Soko Nassai and the Defu Rivers, both of which were considerable obstacles to the movements of infantry. General Sheppard's intention was to attack the enemy frontally, and, with or without the aid of the 3rd South African Brigade, to envelop his right (eastern) flank. Unfortunately the advance of the 3rd Brigade from Euphorbien Hill was so impeded by the dense bush that it was unable to exercise any influence on the fight, and without its aid the task proved to be beyond the powers of the force at General Sheppard's disposal. His infantry tried to cross the clearing, which varied in width from 600 to 1,200 yards, but the enemy's dispositions were so skilfully made that these attempts were met and repulsed by rifle and machine-gun fire, both from front and flank. Two double companies of the 129th Baluchis crossed the Soko Nassai, and endeavoured to turn the enemy's right, but here, too, they were held up. Our guns were well handled, the 27th Mountain Battery being in action in the actual firing line, but definite targets were difficult to obtain owing to the density of the bush. The whole force, in fact, was ably handled by General Sheppard, and the men fought like heroes, but they were unable to turn the enemy from his strong position. General Sheppard did not know that Van Deventer was already at Kahe Station, some miles in advance of his right flank, and no contact could be established through the intervening thick bush. He accordingly gave orders to dig in on the ground won, with a view to renewing the attack on the 22nd. At dawn on the 22nd patrols found the enemy gone. He had waited only for the cover of night to retire across the Ruwu River and proceed down the main road towards Lembeni, abandoning his stationary 4·1-inch gun, which had been blown up.

Our casualties at the Soko Nassai action were 288. It is not easy to estimate those of the enemy, but a large pile of used field dressings found south of the Ruwu told a significant tale. As far as can be ascertained, the enemy forces employed on the 22nd were 14 or 15 companies, distributed along the Himo and Ruwu from Rasthaus to Kahe.

Besides the two 4·1 inch naval guns, the enemy employed several field guns and pom-poms.

24. The result of these operations from the 18th to 21st March was to drive the enemy out of the country north of and along the Ruwu River. Aruscha had meanwhile been occupied by our mounted scouts, who drove off an enemy company in a southerly direction, and thus the conquest of the Kilimanjaro-Meru Area, probably the richest and most desirable district of German East Africa, was satisfactorily completed. I accordingly established my Headquarters at Moschi, placed a chain of outposts along the line of the Ruwu, and set to work to re-organise my force for the next move, meanwhile concentrating the troops as far as possible in healthy localities to give the men a rest after the hardships they had endured.

25. I am particularly indebted to the following officers for their services during the operations :—

Major-General M. J. Tighe, C.B., C.I.E., D.S.O., commanding the 2nd Division, loyally co-operated by carrying out my wishes in the spirit and the letter. He also commanded at the successful action at Latema nek. I have already mentioned his great services in paving the way for the offensive campaign.

Brigadier-General J. L. Van Deventer, commanding 1st South African Mounted Brigade, commanded throughout the operations an independent column, and executed the turning movements to which the rapidity of our success was undoubtedly due. He displayed soldierly qualities of a high order in controlling the mounted troops in their long night marches and manœuvres through unknown and extremely difficult country.

The Air Services performed valuable reconnaissance work throughout the operations, and on several occasions considerably demoralised the enemy by the use of bombs.

The Royal Artillery were ably handled by Brigadier-General J. H. V. Crowe, and on all occasions when they had an opportunity of preparing the way for and covering the infantry advance their support was most effective.

The Supply and Transport Services worked with great zeal, and the fact that no hitch occurred in the supply of units scattered over such a large area is evidence of the efficiency displayed by all executive ranks. Such roads as do exist are merely clearings through the bush and swamp, and these rapidly become well-nigh impassable for heavy lorries. The existing track had constantly to be improved, and deviations cut, causing endless delays, and the result was that transport drivers were frequently at work continuously night and day.

The rapidity of the advance, and the distance to which it was carried, must almost inevitably have caused a breakdown in the transport had it not been for the unremitting exertions of the railway engineers, who carried forward the railway from the Njoro drift east of Salaita, to Taveta and the Latema nek at an average rate of a mile a day, including surveying, heavy bush cutting and the bridging of the Lumi river. This fine performance is largely due to the ripe experience and organising power of Colonel Sir W. Johns, Kt. C.I.E.

Exceptionally heavy work, too, has been thrown upon the medical officers and personnel. All wounded have been treated and evacuated expeditiously, and the number of sick who passed daily through the hands of the medical authorities, more especially since the cessation of active operations, has been very great. Great credit is due to Surgeon-General G.D. Hunter, C.M.G., D.S.O., and his assistants.

The excellent manner in which communication has been maintained throughout reflects great credit on any Signal Service, the officers and men of which, under the able control of Lieutenant-Colonel H. C. Hawtrey, R.E., have spared no efforts in overcoming the many difficulties attendant on operating in such country and on such a large front.

The Officers of my Staff have throughout rendered me every possible assistance. I would especially mention Colonel (now Brigadier-General) J. J. Collyer, my chief of the General Staff, whose sound judgment, ability and tact made possible the harmonious working of a curiously heterogenous force, and Brigadier-General R. H. Ewart, C.B., C.I.E., D.S.O., A.D.C., Administrative Staff, who has done everything possible to perfect and co-ordinate the working of the various administrative services on which an army operating in equatorial Africa is peculiarly dependent.

Brigadier-General W. F. S. Edwards, D.S.O., my Inspector-General of Communications, rendered invaluable services, and the rapidity and smoothness with which the concentration of troops was carried out were very largely due to his energy and powers of organisation, while the manner in which he extended the lines of communication during the actual operations left nothing to be desired.

It is not easy for me to express my appreciation of the conduct of the troops during these operations. General and Staff Officers, Commanding, Regimental and Departmental Officers, rank and file and followers, British,

South African, Indian and African, all have worked with zeal and single-minded devotion to duty that is beyond praise. Shortage of transport necessitated the force moving on light scale, and the majority of the troops had no more than a waterproof sheet and a blanket for three weeks on end. Rations at times unavoidably ran short. Long marches in the hot sun and occasional drenching rains were calculated to try the most hardened campaigner. Yet all these hardships were endured with unfailing cheerfulness, and a chance of dealing a blow at the enemy seemed to be the only recompense required.

A list of those officers, N.C.O.'s and men whom I desire to bring to your Lordship's special notice in connection with these operations will be forwarded at an early date.

I have the honour to be, my Lord,

Your Lordship's obedient servant,

J. C. SMUTS,

Lieutenant-General,

Commander-in-Chief, East African Force.

Third Supplement dated the 21st June 1916, to the "London Gazette". of the 20th June 1916, pages 6163 to 6189.

War Office,

21st June 1916.

The following despatches have been received by the Secretary of State for War from General Sir John Maxwell, K.C.B., on military operations in the Egyptian Command :—

DESPATCH No. I.

From Lieut.-General Sir J. G. Maxwell, K.C.B., C.V.O., C.M.G., D.S.O., Commanding the Force in Egypt.

Army Head-quarters Cairo,

SIR,—

I have the honour to forward for the information of the Secretary of State for War the accompanying report from Major-General A. Wilson, C.B., Commanding the Suez Canal Defences, who has conducted the operations to my complete satisfaction. He has been ably assisted by Brigadier-General A. H. Bingley, C.I.E.

I fully endorse what General Wilson says of the conduct of the regimental officers and men, both British and Indian.

The French Hydroplane Squadron and the detachment Royal Flying Corps have rendered very valuable services. The former, equipped with hydroplanes with floats, ran great risks in undertaking land reconnaissance, whilst the latter were much handicapped by inferior types of machines. Notwithstanding these drawbacks, they furnished me regularly with all information regarding the movements of the enemy.

I take this opportunity of bringing to the notice of the Secretary of State for War the great services rendered by the Count de Sérionne and the officials of the Suez Canal Company ; they have one and all been most helpful, and have unreservedly placed their own personal services and the entire resources of the Suez Canal Company at my disposal. The success of our defence was greatly assisted by their cordial co-operation.

Also Sir George Macauley, K.C.M.G., Major Blakeney and Captain Hall of the Egyptian State Railways. In addition to building two excellent armoured trains, these officers worked most assiduously in organizing and superintending the railway arrangements, both along the Canal and in the transportation of reinforcements from Cairo. No difficulties of any sort were made, and such difficulties as existed were speedily overcome, and I cannot sufficiently express my obligation to them.

Also Major Liddell late Royal Engineer, Director of Telegraphs under the Egyptian Government. This official was largely responsible for the excellent system of inter-communication which prevailed throughout the Canal Defences.

It is needless for me to add that from Admiral Peirse and the ships of His Majesty's Navy, as well as those of France under his command, most important and valuable assistance was received.

I have the honour to be,

SIR.

Your obedient servant,

J. G. MAXWELL, Lieut.-General,

Commanding the Force in Egypt.

Headquarters, Canal Defences, to the General Staff, Headquarters, Cairo.

Ismailia,

11th February 1915.

SIR,—

I have the honour to submit the following report on the recent attack on the Suez Canal. In order to make the narrative complete, I will preface it with a brief account of what has taken place since I took over command of the Canal Defences.

2. I landed at Suez on the 16th November, 1914, and went to Ismailia the same day, having been preceded ten days before by Brigadier-General A. H. Bingley, my Chief Staff Officer, who was sent from India in advance of the troops to make preliminary arrangements for their landing and despatch to destination. I there took over command of the Canal Defences from Colonel W. G. Walker, Commanding 9th Indian Brigade, which had been detached from the 3rd (Lahore) Division for temporary duty in Egypt.

3. In accordance with the instructions received from the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, the Canal Defences were organized in three sections, with headquarters at Suez, Ismailia Ferry, and Kantara, respectively, my own headquarters and the general reserve being placed at Ismailia, with the advanced base at Zagazig and base general hospital at Cairo.

These arrangements were completed by the 5th December, 1914, when the last units of the force arrived from India.

4. Preparations for defence.—The months of November, December and January were devoted to a systematic development of the naturally strong line of defence afforded by the Canal, thus completing the work which had been initiated previous to my arrival. A number of defensive posts were prepared on the east bank, to cover the more important ferries and provide facilities for local counter-attacks. Trenches were dug on the west bank to cover the intervals between posts and frustrate attempts at crossing. Communications were improved by the construction of landing stages and removable pontoon bridges for use at important points. A flotilla of armed launches, manned by the Royal Navy, was organized for canal patrols. A complete system of telegraph, telephone, and wireless communication was installed, linking up all the posts with head-quarters. A system of defence was established for the protection of the railway, the telegraph lines, and the sweet water canal. The detachment of the Royal Flying Corps was organized, staffed with observers, and equipped with accommodation for its planes.

5. The resources of the Suez Canal Company in tugs, launches, lighters, etc., were carefully examined, so as to utilise them for military purposes. Arrangements were made with the Railway Administration for the collecting of rolling stock at convenient places, in order to expedite the dispatch of reinforcements to threatened points. Provision was also made for the organization of the water-supply of the troops and the formation of supply depôts, as well as for the rapid collection and evacuation of the sick and wounded. A system of intelligence, censorship and police surveillance was established, and plans were devised, in consultation with the Canal Authorities, for the control of shipping in the event of an attack. Last, but not least, a scheme for making inundations, and so limiting the front over which the enemy could attack, was carried out successfully by the Irrigation Department at Port Said and the engineering staff of the Canal Company at El Cap, Kantara and Ballah.

6. During this period no active operations took place, except a Bedouin raid made by the enemy in the direction of Kantara. A patrol of the Bikanir Camel Corps under Captain A. J. H. Chope, 2nd Gurkha Rifles, consisting of one Indian officer and twenty other ranks, encountered a force of some 200 Bedouins and Turks on the 20th November 1914, near Bir-el-Nuss, and in spite of the enemy's treacherous attack, due to the abuse of the white flag, extricated itself successfully from a somewhat difficult position. Our patrol, which lost one Indian officer and twelve other ranks killed and three sepoys wounded, inflicted some sixty casualties on the enemy. For their gallant conduct on this occasion, No. 1534 Sepoy Ali Khan was awarded the Indian Order of Merit, 2nd Class, and No. 115 Sepoy Faiz Ali Khan the Distinguished Conduct Medal.

7. General summary of events.—During the first fortnight in January little direct news of the enemy's advance was forthcoming, though reports of considerable preparations in Syria were constant, and information was received to the effect that advanced posts and depôts had been formed at Khan Yunis, El Arish, El Auja, and Kosseima. The country to the east of the Canal within the radius of our aeroplane reconnaissances remained clear of formed bodies of hostile troops, though frequently visited by Bedouin patrols which, in some cases, were accompanied by German officers in Arab dress.

About 15th January, however, it became clear that hostile forces of some strength had entered Sinai, and on the 20th the Canal Defence troops were reinforced from Cairo by the 1st and 3rd Brigades, R. F. A., East Lancashire Division, T. F., which proceeded at once to previously prepared positions.

8. On 18th January a hostile force of 8,000—10,000 was located near Bir-es-Saba by a French naval hydro-aeroplane, and on 22nd a Turkish force was reported to be at Moiya Harab, having arrived there from Gifgaffa. This was confirmed by aerial reconnaissance the next day, and about the same time reports of the presence of hostile troops at Ain Sadr were received and our mounted troops obtained touch with hostile patrols near Bir-el-Duiedar.

9. On the 22nd small detachments were told off from the reserves to hold lightly the trenches prepared along the west bank. On the 26th forces of some 2,000—3,000 men each were located at Bir Mabeuik, Moiya Harab, and Wadi Muksheib, and the enemy advanced and engaged our covering troops near Kantara, retiring at 3-30 P.M. On the same day two battalions 32nd Brigade (33rd Punjabis and 4th Gwalior Infantry) were sent to hold the trenches along the west bank from Bench Mark post to Ballah, while G.O.C.'s of sections reinforced the west bank trenches in their sections from local reserves. The New Zealand Infantry Brigade arrived from Cairo, the Otago and Wellington battalions proceeding to reinforce Kubri, while Headquarters and the Auckland and Canterbury battalions detrained at Ismailia. H.M.S. "Swiftsure," "Clio," "Ocean," and "Minerva" entered the Canal, taking station near Kantara, Ballah, El Shatt, and Shalouf respectively.

10. During the 27th and 28th the enemy was further reinforced, and established himself in an entrenched position about 5 miles east of Kantara, astride the El Arish road. On the morning of the 27th attacks on the Baluchistan and El Kubri posts in No. 1 Section were made at about 3 A.M. Both were beaten off without loss. On the morning of the 28th the outposts at Kantara were attacked, and the enemy was driven off with little difficulty. One battalion from 31st Brigade (2nd Rajputs) was sent to reinforce Serapeum.

11. From the 29th—31st the enemy closed towards the Canal, the largest concentration appearing in the vicinity of Gebel Habeita. The 5th Battery, Egyptian Artillery, was sent to Toussoum.

12. On the 1st February an advance from the north-east towards the Ismailia Ferry post was detected, and that post, as well as Bench Mark post, was reinforced under the orders of the General Officer Commanding,

No. 2 Section. On the 2nd February our advanced troops from Ismailia Ferry encountered the enemy at some distance from the post, and a desultory action ensued. This was broken off at 3-30 P.M., and the enemy then entrenched himself about 2¼ miles south-east of our defences. In the course of the day considerable bodies of troops were also seen on the move in front of El Ferdan, Bench Mark, Toussoum and Serapeum. During the night of the 2nd-3rd some firing at El Kubri took place, but nothing further of note occurred in No. 1 Section.

13. At about 3-30 A.M., on the 3rd a determined attempt was made to effect a crossing some 2,000 yards south of Toussoum. The enemy brought up a number of pontoons and rafts, several of which they succeeded in launching, while two, if not more, actually crossed the Canal. This attack was covered by heavy rifle and machine-gun fire from the east bank. It was met by parties of the 62nd Punjabis under Major Skeen and Captain Morgan, as well as by fire from the 5th Battery, Egyptian Artillery. Several pontoons were sunk and all the men who crossed were disposed of, except twenty, who hid under the west bank and surrendered to the 2nd Rajputs next morning

14. At daylight the enemy were found to have closed on the Toussoum post, and a counter-attack pushed forward from Serapeum encountered a large force about half a mile from camp. The enemy's attack was not pushed closer than three-quarters of a mile from our position, and they retired about 2 P.M., after shelling our positions intermittently up to that time. Seven officers and 280 men were taken prisoners opposite Toussoum during the course of the fight. A large number of the enemy's dead were found outside Toussoum post and along the east bank of the Canal.

15. At 4-30 P.M. two battalions 31st Brigade (27th Punjabis and 128th Pioneers) arrived at Serapeum, and Major-General A. Wallace, Commanding 11th Division, took over command of the Section from the Great Bitter Lake to Lake Timsah. During the morning H.M.S. "Hardinge" was struck by two 6-inch shells, her funnel being split and forward steering gear disabled. She moved into Lake Timsah, and later in the day to Kantara, her place being taken by H.M.S. "Swiftsure." H.M.S. "Ocean" also moved up into this section of the defence. At Ismailia Ferry post the enemy were found at daylight to be entrenching some 700—800 yards from the defences, and two hostile batteries opened fire shortly afterwards. The infantry attack was not pushed home, and no casualties occurred, though many shells burst in the camp and in the vicinity of the town. Shipping detained in Lake Timsah was under fire and suffered slight damage, but no loss of life.

16. Circumstances were similar at El Ferdan, where a considerable number of shells were fired, chiefly at the Canal Gare and railway station, both of which were damaged. No casualties occurred.

17. At Kantara the outposts were attacked between 5 and 6 A.M., the enemy being driven off, leaving many killed and wounded and unwounded prisoners. Later in the day a partial attack from the south-east was stopped some 1,200 yards from the position.

18. During the day H.M.S. "Swiftsure," "Clio," "Hardinge," and the French ships "Requin" and "D'Entrecasteaux" were engaged, as were also the torpedo boats and armed launches, all rendering valuable services. The bulk of the fighting fell to the 22nd and 29th Infantry Brigades, but the 28th as well as portions of the 31st, 32nd, and New Zealand Infantry Brigades, the Artillery and Engineers of the Lancashire Division, T.F., and No. 3 Field Company Australian Engineers, were also engaged. Very efficient service was rendered by the detachment Royal Flying Corps, several reconnaissances over the enemy's lines being undertaken during the day.

19. The enemy engaged at different points along the Canal on the 3rd appeared to number some 12,000 to 15,000 men in the aggregate, and six batteries, with at least one 6-inch gun, were located. It appears from accounts received from prisoners that the attacking force consisted of the VIIIth and portions of the IIIrd, IVth, and VIth Turkish Army Corps, and that Djemal Pasha was in chief command. The enemy's plan contemplated simultaneous attacks on Kantara, Ferdan, Ismailia, Shalouf, and Suez, coupled with the main effort to cross the Canal near Toussoum. At the first three of the above-mentioned places their efforts were only half-hearted; while at Shalouf and Suez no attacks materialised, though forces are known to have been in the vicinity of those places.

Headquarters, with the 7th and 8th Battalions, 2nd Brigade, 1st Australian Imperial Force, arrived at Ismailia during the evening of the 3rd February.

20. On the 4th February, as some firing had taken place from the east bank during the night, two companies of the 92nd Punjabis were sent out at 8 A.M. to clear that bank, and located a body of some 200 to 250 men still entrenched there. On the approach of this detachment the enemy made signs of surrender, but subsequently re-opened fire. Supports of one double company each of the 27th and 62nd Punjabis and 128th Pioneers were despatched under the command of Major Maclachlan, 92nd Punjabis, who concentrated his men, opened a heavy fire, and then charged. This time the enemy threw away their rifles and surrendered, six officers, 251 men, and three machine guns being captured; 59 men, including a German officer (Major von den Hagen), were found killed at this point.

21. The trenches in front of Ismailia and Kantara were found to have been deserted, and the Imperial Service Cavalry Brigade, supported by infantry, moved out from the Ismailia Ferry post. A large body of enemy, estimated at three to four brigades were encountered seven miles east of Toussoum, and another body some miles to the north. Twenty-five prisoners and ninety camels were captured. No other incidents occurred along the front.

Reinforcements, consisting of the Herts Yeomanry, 2nd County of London Yeomanry (Westminister Dragoons), and one squadron Duke of Lancaster's Own Yeomanry. arrived at Ismailia the same evening.

22. On the 5th instant our aeroplanes reported that the enemy were retiring towards Katia, while those who had been in front of No. 2 Section appeared to have concentrated about Gebel Habeita. Mabeuik was still occupied, and a reconnaissance from No. 1 Section encountered some of the enemy's infantry near Gebel Murr during the day. There was no change during the 6th, the enemy being still in strength near Gebel Habeita. A reconnaissance by a mixed force, which had been contemplated this day, was cancelled owing to information gathered from prisoners to the effect that considerable reinforcements of the enemy were expected and might be at hand about this time. On the 7th, however, our aeroplanes found this camp deserted. Mabeuik was also found to have been vacated, and the nearest enemy on the northern line appeared at Bir-El-Abd. On the 9th the only enemy located were in camps at El Rigum, Wadi Muksheib, and Moiya Harab. On the 10th instant only some 400 men were left at Rigum camp, and these appeared to be moving eastwards.

23. The actions at Toussoum and Kantara—I will now supplement the general summary of events give in the foregoing paragraphs with a more detailed account of the fighting that took place at Toussoum on 3rd February, and at Kantara on 28th January and 3rd February.

24. The troops in the Toussoum—Serapeum—Deversoir portion of No. 2 Section on the morning of 3rd February were as follows :—

The 19th Lancashire Battery, R.F.A., T.F. (four guns), commanded by Major B. Palin Dobson.

The 5th Battery, Egyptian Artillery (four mountain guns and two maxims), commanded by Major I. D'E. Roberts, R.A.

1st Field Company, East Lancashire Royal Engineers, T.F. (two sections), under Captain J. G. Riddick.

Canterbury Battalion New Zealand Infantry (two platoons), under Major C. B. Brereton.

2nd Queen Victoria's Own Rajputs, under Lieut.-Colonel F. P. S. Dunsford.

62nd Punjabis, under Lieut.-Colonel E. W. Grimshaw.

92nd Punjabis, under Major T. R. Maclachlan.

2/10th Gurkha Rifles, under Lieut.-Colonel F. G. H. Sutton.

137th Field Ambulance, under Major R. W. Knox, I.M.S.

25. These troops were disposed as follows :—

(a) On the east bank, in the posts of Toussoum, Serapeum, and Deversoir, a half battalion in each, furnished by the 92nd, 62nd, and 2/10th Gurkha Rifles, respectively.

(b) On the west bank, from the entrance to Lake Timsah, to Deversoir inclusive, 12 posts, each held by two platoons. Each platoon was allotted some 600 yards of front and found three sentry groups, about 200 yards apart.

(c) In reserve at Serapeum, three double companies.

26. At about 3-25 A.M. on 3rd instant, the enemy were seen on the east bank near mile 47·4. As the firing was heavy, a double company of the 62nd Punjabis was sent from the reserve to support this point, and this double company was subsequently reinforced by six platoons of the 2nd Rajputs.

27. The enemy made three distinct attempts to cross the Canal at points between miles 47·4 and 48·4. One boatload of the enemy landed opposite mile 48·3, and were charged by a small party under Major O. St. J. Skeen, 62nd Punjabis. All were killed or wounded. Two more boatloads landed opposite mile 47·6, and these were promptly attacked by Captain M. H. L. Morgan, 62nd Punjabis, who was wounded. Six Turks were killed and four captured at this point, and some 20 who got away and hid themselves under the west bank were captured later by a party of the 2nd Rajputs.

28. At 8-40 A.M. Colonel S. Geoghegan, commanding 22nd Brigade, after a personal reconnaissance of the enemy's positions, sent a detachment consisting of four double companies drawn from the 2nd Rajputs and the 2/10ths Gurkha Rifles to clear the east bank. As this counter-attack developed, the enemy fled in large numbers from the broken ground whence they had made their attempt to cross. Meanwhile the enemy, from their camp at Kateid El Khel, deployed a force estimated at two brigades with at least six guns, and formed a line about two miles north-east of Serapeum, and facing that post. Our troops, delivering a counter-attack, now occupied a ridge about half a mile north-east of Serapeum, and formed a line facing the enemy with their left flank drawn back to the Canal. They consisted of two double companies 92nd Punjabis facing north-east two platooms 2nd Rajputs facing north, with six platoons 2/10th Gurkha Rifles in support. The whole was under command of Lieutenant-Colonel F. G. H. Sutton, 2/10th Gurkha Rifles.

29. The advance northward on the east bank of the two platoons, 2nd Rajputs, was checked short of the broken ground by fire from the enemy posted there, aided by the fire of small parties which were still hidden at the foot of the west bank. It was here that Captain R. T. Arundell was killed while gallantly leading his men.

30. While this attack was in progress, the Commander of H. M. T. B. No. 043 Lieutenant-Commander G. B. Palmes, R. N., was asked by Colonel Geoghegan to destroy the enemy's pontoons which were lying on the east bank. Those on shores were destroyed by shell fire, and a party then landed from the boat to see whether there were any others lying behind the bank. The leading party found themselves in front of a trench full of the enemy, and on getting back to their boat Lieutenant-Commander G. B. Palmes, R. N., and Sub-Lieutenant C. V. Cardinal, R. N. V. R., were wounded.

31. The enemy's main attack from the north-east did not get within 1,200 yards of our line. They, however, shelled our positions on the west bank intermittently until about 2 P.M., when their main body retired eastwards, and our forces withdrew to the positions held in the morning. A small party of the enemy reached the ridge which we had vacated, but they were shelled off it by our artillery, and soon disappeared.

32. In the attack on the Toussoum post, about 350 of the enemy managed to establish themselves during the night in some of the outer trenches which are only occupied by the garrison by day. A number of this party were killed as soon as it was light by the fire of our machine guns, and the remainder were either driven out or killed, and some 80 prisoners captured by a local counter-attack which was skilfully led by Lieutenant J. W. Thomson-Glover, 92nd Punjabis. Seven Turkish officers and 280 other ranks, with much material, were taken on this occasion.

33. At 4-30 P.M., reinforcements from the 31st Infantry Brigade began to arrive at Serapeum, and in the course of the evening four double companies were placed in support at various points on the west bank, and the garrison of the Serapeum post was strengthened.

The armed launches commanded by Lieutenants W. H. B. Livesay and E. H. Daughlish, R.I.M., rendered valuable service in this section during the day, and were frequently under fire of the enemy's snipers.

34. On the morning of the 4th instant, as there was no sign of the enemy's main body to the east, and as the armed launch "Mansura" had been fired upon on the previous evening and some sniping had taken place during the night from the east bank, Major-General A. Wallace, who had taken over command at Serapeum from Colonel S. Geoghegan, ordered two double companies of the 92nd Punjabis to move north along the east bank of the Canal to examine this locality. This party, which was commanded by Captain L. F. A. Cochran, got to the south edge of this area, which they found to be held by the enemy, and then extended round to the east and north-east to round the latter up. The enemy held up a white flag and made signs of surrender, whereupon Captain Cochran and some of his party advanced towards them. After three Turks had surrendered, fire was re-opened by the enemy, and our troops had to fall back. Major-General Wallace then ordered out reinforcements, consisting of one double company each of the 27th and 62nd Punjabis and the 128th Pioneers, the whole under Major T. R. Maclachlan, 92nd Punjabis. The latter collected his men and charged, and the enemy immediately threw down their arms. The prisoners taken here numbered six officers and 251 men, of whom 52 were seriously wounded. The enemy's killed numbered 59 and among them was a German Officer, Major von den Hagen. Three machine guns were captured, as well as a quantity of miscellaneous stores. It was in this second attack that Captain Cochran was killed.

35. Turning from events at Toussoum to those at Kantara, the only engagements that need be referred to are the attacks made by the enemy on our outposts on the 28th January and 3rd February. In the attack of the 28th January, the enemy advanced along the telegraph line on one of our piquets, consisting of a detachment of the 14th Sikhs under Captain Channer, which they attacked about 2-45 A.M. The action continued for about half an hour, and the enemy attemped to advance, but was unable to do so. Firing gradually ceased, and by daylight the enemy had withdrawn gradually to Point 70 on the Kantara—El Arish road, from which they were driven out by five rounds of lyddite shell fired by H. M. S. "Swiftsure."

36. The attack of the 3rd February was conducted on much the same lines, and was directed on two of our piquets furnished by the 89th Punjabis. The enemy's advance was stopped without difficulty, and at daylight 36 unwounded prisoners were found in our entanglements. The enemy left 20 dead on the ground, but their casualties were very much heavier, as they removed many of their killed and wounded.

37. As the events described may represent but the opening phase of the campaign, I do not propose at this stage, to mention the staff and departmental officers who have rendered specially good service. I, however, submit the names of the following regimental officers whose conduct is deserving of notice :—

* * * * * *

Imperial Service Troops.—Major A. K. Rawlins, 24th Punjabis, and Captain G. C. W. Willis, 31st Lancers, Special Service Officers, have displayed energy and enteprise, their reconnaissance work being particularly valuable.

2nd Queen Victoria's Own Rajputs.—Captain R. T. Arundell led his double company with great gallantry in the counter-attack on the 3rd February, in which engagement he was killed.

Jemadar Partab Singh proved himself a cool and capable leader in trying circumstances. Jemadar Assa Singh held an exposed position throughout the day, and the skill with which he controlled and directed a covering fire proved of great assistance to troops crossing gullies where they were exposed to the enemy's fire.

62nd Punjabis.—Major O. St. J. Skeen displayed great promptitude and courage in charging the enemy when disembarking from their pontoons on the 3rd February. His skilful leading in the attack of the 4th February was instrumental in causing the surrender of the enemy, upon whose trenches he brought to bear an effective enfilading fire.

Captain M. H. L. Morgan, by his exertion and example, frustrated a very determined attempt of the enemy to effect a landing. Though wounded early on the 3rd, he continued in command of his double company throughout the day.

Subadar Kalu Khan and Jemadar Sher Zaman Khan supported Major Skeen very pluckily on the 3rd, and Jemadar Sher Zaman Khan again distinguished himself in the action of the 4th February.

92nd Punjabis.—Major T. R. Maclachlan commanded the garrison of the Toussoum post with great ability on the 3rd February, and showed resumé of events since I assumed command of the Canal Defences on 16th November, 1914.

At the time this report was made it appeared from information at our disposal that the operations under reference might only be a preliminary to further hostilities, and that a more determined attack on the Canal would be undertaken in the near future. These anticipations have, however, not been realised, and though the enemy has continued to hold the Sinai Peninsula in some strength and has undertaken several minor enterprises, with a view to causing damage to the Canal and the shipping using it, no further advance in force has taken place. This result may be attributed to the fact that the losses suffered by the enemy in the attack on the Canal were, according to subsequent reports from Turkish sources, heavier than had been originally estimated, while the demoralisation of the force, consequent on its retreat across the desert, necessitated a considerable pause for reorganisation.

2. Now that the hot season is well established, and also as considerable forces of the enemy have been withdrawn to other theatres of operations, it is probable that the existing state of affairs will continue for some months. I therefore consider it a suitable opportunity to forward a narrative of events subsequent to my last report, and also to submit the names of officers whose services during the past eight months are, in my opinion, worthy of mention.

3. My last report dealt with the operations in the vicinity of the Canal up to 10th February, 1915, by which date hostilities in its immediate neighbourhood had ceased for the time being.

On the 12th February, in accordance with instructions from Army Headquarters, a ½-battalion 2/7th Gurkha Rifles, under Lieut.-Colonel Haldane, embarked at Suez on board H.M.S. "Minerva" to proceed to Tor, with a view to dispersing a force which had been threatening that place for some time past. This force landed at Tor during the night of the 12th-13th, and, in conjunction with 150 men of the 2nd Egyptian Battalion, which had been in garrison at Tor, attacked the enemy at dawn on the 13th. The attack was completely successful, the enemy losing some 60 killed and 102 prisoners; our losses were 1 killed and 1 wounded. Since this occasion no further forces of the enemy have appeared near Tor.

4. For the remainder of February and till the 22nd March no incident of note took place. The Imperial Yeomanry Brigade, as well as the Australian and New Zealand Infantry, who had reinforced the troops on the Canal, returned to Cairo.

Several reconnaissances, principally to Abu Zenima (by sea), El Haitan, Wadi Muksheib, Moiya Harab and Katia, were pushed out, but no enemy encountered.

From information received from agents and through aerial reconnaissances, it appeared that during this month the Turks had concentrated mainly at El Arish and Nekhl, while considerable bodies of the beaten troops were withdrawn to Syria, being, it was rumoured, replaced by fresh formations from the north.

5. On 22nd March an infantry patrol moving from Kubri Post encountered a force of some 400 men north-east of that post at dawn. The enemy withdrew on being engaged by troops from the nearest posts, and a subsequent aerial reconnaissance discovered a force of some 800 infantry and 200 mounted men with guns about 10 miles east of the Canal.

From the report furnished it appeared that the Turks were entrenching and intended to stay, and, consequently, orders were issued for a column, consisting of 2 squadrons Hyderabad Lancers, 1/5th Lancashire Battery R.F.A. (T.F.), detachment Bikanir Camel Corps, 51st and 53rd Sikhs, and ½-battalion 1/5th Gurkhas, to move out next day to engage and drive off the enemy.

This column, under the command of Lieut.-Colonel Boisragon, V.C., moved out from Kubri at daylight (23rd), and attacked the enemy in an entrenched position some 10 miles east of the Canal. After some resistance the enemy fled hastily, leaving behind a quantity of equipment and rifle ammunition, the heavy going across the sandhills preventing our cavalry from cutting off their retreat. Our casualties on 22nd and 23rd were 5 killed and 19 wounded (Indian ranks). The enemy's losses were estimated at about 50.

6 The only other incident of note during the course of the month was the departure of the 30th Brigade for the Persian Gulf on 23rd. Its place in No. 1 Section was taken by the 28th (F. F.) Brigade which in turn was relieved by the 31st Brigade from the reserve. Towards the end of the month reports were received of a considerable concentration of the enemy near Es Sirr, some 80 miles due east of Ballah. These reports were verified later by aeroplane observation, which estimated the hostile force as some 4,000, with guns.

7. On the 7th April our mounted patrols from Kantara encountered a hostile force, estimated at 1,200 men which withdrew after shots had been exchanged. On the same day an aerial reconnaissance reported considerably fewer numbers retiring through Dueidar. The Imperial Service Cavalry Brigades was moved up to Kantara the same day, and on the 8th moved out in conjunction with part of the Kantara garrison. No enemy was encountered and the cavalry moved back to Ismailia, reconnoitring the country for some distance east of the Canal. On the 8th April, owing suspicious tracks having been noticed on the east bank of the Canal between El Kap and Kantara, the Canal was dragged and a mine discovered and destroyed. The mine had evidently been placed in the Canal under cover of the demonstration of the previous day. Owing to this occurrence it became necessary greatly to increase our patrols. Intermediate night piquets were established between Posts and a system of hourly patrols along the east bank instituted. Arrangements were made for a thorough search of the Canal bank at daylight every morning, and Officers Commanding Posts were authorized to stop shipping in case of any supicious circumstances being detected.

8. On the 28th April a reconnaissance of 90 rifles, Bikanir Camel Corps, encountered a hostile force estimated at some 200 men, with guns, about 12 miles due east of Ismailia Ferry Post. After a short skirmish the patrol withdrew to the Ferry Post with the loss of 3 killed, 4 wounded, and 2 missing; the enemy did not follow up their retirement. Later in the day an aerial reconnaisance located a body of the enemy in bivouac near El Hawawish, and the Imperial Service Cavalry Brigade (eight squadrons), supported by half-battalion 27th Punjabis and one section Egyptian Artillery, crossed the Canal after dark with a view to engaging the enemy at his camp next morning; or should he have moved towards the Canal during the night to cut off his retreat. During the night, 28th-29th, a hostile party. evidently from Hawasih, opened fire on a dredger in the Canal north of Bench Mark Post, but retired when engaged by one of our piquets. At daylight on 29th an aeroplane found Hawawish evacuated, but later on located the hostile force moving into Mahadat from the south-west, and the cavalry were directed on that place. Our column, however, only succeeded in engaging the rearguard at about 2 P.M., by which time the enemy had left Mahadat and was moving on Bada. The pursuit was carried on for three to four miles, but the great exhaustion of men and horses, owing to the heat and heavy going through the sandhills, prevented it from being carried further.

Our losses were one British, one Indian officer, and one sowar killed; one British officer and seven rank and file wounded. The enemy's losses in killed were about 20, and 13 prisoners were taken. The column returned to Ismailia early on the 30th.

9. On 7th April, the 7th Indian Mountain Artillery Brigade left the Canal Defences to join the Mediterranean Force, and on 26th the 29th Indian Infantry Brigade left for the same destination, being replaced in No. III Section by the East Lancashire Brigade (Territorial Force).

10. On 1st May a half battalion 56th Rifles were despatched from Suez to Abu Zenima owing to rumours of an attack on the Egyptian garrison of that place. This detachment returned on 3rd, no enemy having appeared in the vicinity. On several occasions during the month hostile patrols were located at some distance from the Canal, but these all retired eastwards as soon as forces moved against them. On the 29th a small party reached the shore of the Little Bitter Lake, and, wading out, boarded a Suez Canal pile driver, destroying one small boat and taking prisoner an Italian employee of the company. Pursuit was undertaken from the nearest Post as soon as the occurrence was reported, but without result.

On the night of 30th-31st a party of Turks was detected trying to approach the Canal between El Ferdan and Ballah. On being fired on they retired, leaving behind a mine, which was discovered and brought in next resourcefulness and capacity for command in the final stage of the fight on the 4th.

Captain W. H. Hastings, as machine-gun officer at Toussoum, rendered valuable service in stopping the enemy's attempts to bring boats on to the Canal and in preventing the retreat of the enemy when they were turned out of the trenches which they had occupied.

Lieutenant J. W. Thomson-Glover, 35th Sikhs (attached 92nd Punjabis), led the counter-attack at Toussoum very gallantly Lieutenant H Greene took over the command of Captain Cochran's double company after the latter was killed, and handled it very well.

Subadar-Major Farman Ali led his men very gallantly and ably assisted Lieutenant Thomson-Glover.

128th Pioneers.—Lieutenant R A. Fitzgibbon behaved with conspicuous gallantry. When severely wounded he ran a considerable distance under fire with a message to the 5th Egyptian Battery. He has since died of his wounds.

2nd Battalion, 10th Gurkha Rifles.—Captain H. E. Weekes led his double company skilfully and displayed promptitude and initiative in supporting the double company of the 2nd Rajputs after Captain Arundell had been killed.

137th Field Ambulance.—Major R. M. Knox, I.M.S., and his officers were energetic and expeditious in the disposal of the large number of wounded on their hands.

38. I submit a list of the non-commissioned officers and men whose names have been brought to notice for gallant conduct, with particulars of the services they have rendered.

39. All the units engaged proved cool under fire and did their duty in a highly satisfactory manner, the conduct of officers and men being all that could be desired.

40. In conclusion I desire to express my high appreciation of the valuable work done by the pilots and observers of the French hydro aeroplane squadron and the detachment Royal Flying Corps in the numerous reconnaissances carried out by them previous to and during the advance of the enemy. They were constantly under shrapnel and rifle fire and carried out their difficult and dangerous duties with courage, resourcefulness and success.

I have, etc.,

DESPATCH No. II.

Army Headquarters, Cairo,
19th August, 1915.

SIR,—

I have the honour to forward the accompanying despatch of Major-General A. Wilson, C.B., Commanding the Suez Canal Defences.

The troops under General Wilson's command have been on service for over eight months, and though the actual fighting they have experienced has not been severe, yet their work has been heavy and monotonous owing to the large amount of patrolling necessitated by the enemy's attempts at minelaying and to cross the canal.

Owing to the withdrawal of troops to other theatres of war, and to sickness incidental to the hot season, this patrolling has become very arduous, especially at night.

The list of recommendations for rewards in which I concur and forward is not, I submit excessive, having regard to the strength of the force, which rose in February and March to 30,000 men.

A considerable number of the officers mentioned are now serving either in the Dardanelles, Aden or France, some have been killed and many wounded, but none the less, I feel it my duty to mention their services in Egypt.

It will be seen that a good many recommendations on behalf of the administrative staff have been made, especially the Medical Branch; but as Egypt has developed into an Intermediate Base and Clearing Station for the Indian Forces serving in France and in the Mediterranean, the work and responsibilities of the administrative staff and services have greatly increased and are consequently specially deserving of consideration.

In conclusion I would like very specially to bring to the notice of the Secretary of State for War the eminent services of Major-General A. Wilson, C.B., who has commanded the Canal defences with ability, tact, and resource since the 16th November, 1914.

I have, etc.,

J. G. MAXWELL, Lieut.-General,
Commanding the Force in Egypt.

From the General Officer Commanding Canal Defences to the General Staff, Army Headquarters, Cairo.

Headquarters, Canal Defences,
Ismailia,
1st August, 1915.

SIR,—

On the 11th February, 1915, I submitted a report on the operations which took place early in the month in the Canal zone, and also a brief morning. The next night the party returned with the evident intention of recovering the mine, but hastily retired on being fired on by a piquet which had been left near the spot to deal with any such attempt.

On the night of the 2nd-3rd June, parties of the enemy opened fire on the Posts of Kantara and El Ferdan, but withdrew hastily when engaged. Small columns from the above Posts moved out in pursuit, but were unable to come up with the raiders, who appeared to be all mounted men. One Turkish officer was taken prisoner.

11. Several changes in the garrisons of the Canal Defences took place during the month of May. Early in the month the Artillery and Engineers, as well as the East Lancashire Brigade of the Lancashire Division (T.F.), left to join the Mediterranean Force; the 4th Mounted Brigade and Divisional Artillery, 2nd Mounted Division, arriving in replacement. On the 29th May orders were received for the 1/5th and 2/10th Gurkha Rifles to reinforce the 29th Indian Infantry Brigade with the Mediterranean Force, and these Battalions left on the 31st May and 1st June respectively.

Consequent on the above changes and reduction certain modifications in organisation became necessary, and were carried into effect during the month. It was decided to abolish the divisional organisation of the 10th and 11th Divisions and to include the whole of the forces in the Canal zone in one command, with a Headquarter Staff approximating to that of a division. These changes were brought into effect from the 1st June.

12. During the month of June there was little change in the situation.

Early in the month the 9th Bhopal Infantry and 125th Rifles arrived from France and were taken on the strength of the Canal Defence Force in replacement of the 1/5th and 2/10th Gurkha Rifles.

On the 11th and 12th five Turkish deserters arrived at El Shatt saying that they had deserted from a force of some 300 men who had reached the vicinity of Mabeiuk with a view to attacking the Canal. A column was at once organised at Kubri to deal with the threat, but nothing materialised, the enemy withdrawing to Nekhl.

A party of somewhat similar strength was located by an aeroplane near Katia about the middle of the month, but retired on El Arish without undertaking any offensive.

On the 30th of the month the British s.s. "Teresias" struck a mine laid in the Naval Section of the Canal Defences, near the south end of the Little Bitter Lake. From investigations it appeared that a party had reached the east bank of the lake, waded out to the main channel, and succeeded in evading the naval launches which patrol this section and in placing a mine. Thanks to the skilful handling of the ship and the prompt action of the Canal Company's officials, the accident only blocked the Canal for 14 hours, and the ship, though seriously damaged, has since been towed into Alexandria for repair.

13. During July nothing of any note occurred. On two occasions, owing to the reported presence of Turkish patrols in the neighbourhood of Katia, a small column was moved out from No. III Section to engage or cut them off should they approach the Canal; but on each occasion the hostile party retired without touch having been obtained. The extreme heat in the desert made military operations very difficult, and practically confined all movements to the night time.

On the 8th July orders were received for two batteries R. H. A. (T.F.) and one infantry brigade to proceed urgently to Aden, and accordingly "B" Battery, H. A. C., the Berkshire Battery, R. H. A. (T.F.), and the 28th (T.F.) Brigade (51st, 53rd Sikhs, 56th Rifles and 62nd Punjabis) left Suez on the 12th and following days.

The Artillery were replaced by the 1/15th and 1/17th Batteries, E. Lance. R.F.A. (T.F.), while the Derbyshire Yeomanry (dismounted) were also sent to the Canal Zone.

14. From the foregoing it will be seen that no fighting of any importance has taken place during the past six months, and it appears evident that, owing to the lack of water, climatic conditions and inability to prosecute campaigns on so many fronts, the Turks will be unable to undertake serious operations in this region till the cold weather arrives and a considerable change in the strategical situation takes place.

At the same time there is no doubt of their intention to detain as many of our troops as possible on the defence of the Canal by attempts to endanger navigation, and, if possible, to block the Canal by sinking a ship in the fairway. Consequently the chief danger that has had to be guarded against, since the main attack in February, has been that of minelaying in the Canal; and, to meet this danger, it has been necessary to employ a large number of men on night patrol duty, especially along the east bank. Up to date, however, except during the actual attack, traffic has continued practically as in times of peace.

15. During the period under review the morale and, with certain exceptions, the health of the troops has been well maintained. During March an outbreak of dysentery occurred in one battalion, while one or two others were less seriously affected. A great improvement has, however, taken place lately, and the health of the Force may now be taken as normal for the conditions under which it is serving.

When it became apparent that a large force would have to be kept on the Canal during the hot weather, a scheme for providing shelter against the sun was initiated and efficiently carried out. It has proved of great value, especially in the case of the British mounted troops.

DESPATCH No. III.

Army Headquarters, Cairo.

1st March 1916.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to submit this report on Military Affairs in the Egyptian Command since the Turks attacked the Suez Canal in February 1915, which attack was made the subject of a separate Despatch. I feel it my duty to make this report because so much of the arduous work done in Egypt by the Force under my Command, with the cordial assistance of the Egyptian Government, was in connection with the operations of the Mediterranean Expeditionary Force in the Dardanelles.

So far as I am aware, no detailed mention of the services performed has been made in any other Despatch.

The entire resources of Egypt, Military and Civil, were unstintingly given to further the necessities of that expedition.

The operations in the Gallipoli Peninsula by threatening Constantinople drew off the bulk of the Turkish forces belonging to Djemal Pasha's command, which had already been beaten back from the vicinity of the Suez Canal. It was therefore possible, whilst retaining just sufficient force to safeguard the Canal, to move troops to other theatres where their presence was most required. But throughout the summer and autumn of 1915, my principal cause of anxiety was the possibility of trouble on the Western Frontier, which might lead to serious religious and internal disorders. The attitude of Sayed Ahmed the Senussi was becoming more and more truculent notwithstanding my efforts to preserve peaceful relations; everything possible was done to avoid hostilities, and they were avoided until late in the year, when hostile acts on his part led to the withdrawal of the Egyptian Frontier post at Sollum and subsequent operations.

Suez Canal Zone.

The duty of guarding the Suez Canal was allotted to the Indian Expeditionary Force "E" under the command of Major-General Sir A. Wilson, K.C.B.

This force was gradually reduced by calls on it for other theatres; thus the 29th Brigade under Major-General Sir H. Cox, K.C.M.G., C.B., C.S.I. was sent to Gallipoli; subsequently the Punjabi-Mohammedan battalions of that brigade were withdrawn from the Peninsula and replaced by Gurkha battalions taken from brigades on the Canal; two double companies of Sikhs from the Patiala Imperial Service Regiment were sent to replace losses in the 15th Sikhs, and every British and Indian officer who could be spared was sent to replace casualties; the 30th Brigade under Major-General C. J. Melliss, V.C., K.C.B., was sent to Basra, the 28th Brigade under Major-General Sir G. Younghusband, K.C.I.E., C.B., was sent first to Aden and then to Basra; the force was further weakened by the exchange of tired units from the Indian divisions in France with some of the best battalions on the Canal.

To this force fell the tiresome and onerous duty throughout the entire summer of exercising ceaseless vigilance over the 100 miles of Canal front. Great credit is due for the way this duty was performed; indifferent troops would have been demoralised. Though small bodies of the enemy were constantly endeavouring, occasionally with success, to place mines in the Canal or damage the railway, yet no accident of importance occurred except that one merchant ship ss. "Teresias" struck a mine. She fortunately escaped with but little damage. The passage of the Canal was interrupted on this one occasion for only a few hours.

A little affair, creditable to the Imperial Service Troops engaged, occurred on the 23rd November, when a squadron of the Mysore Lancers operating 15 miles east of El Kantara came upon a force of 60 or 70 Turks, the advance party of a raiding party 200 strong. These they pursued for 7 miles, killing 7, capturing 12 and wounding many others. Amongst the dead was a Bedouin leader named Rizkalla Salim, who was responsible for most of the raids on the Canal; since his death they entirely ceased.

Part of 30th Sqradron Royal Flying Corps, under the command of Brevet Major S. D. Massy, I.A., with Headquarters at Ismailia, carried out daily reconnaissances without a single important accident.

The French Naval Seaplane detachment, with Headquarters at Port Said, under the command of Capitaine de Vaisseau de l'Escaille, whose services were placed at my disposal for Intelligence purposes, was continually employed in reconnoitring the Syrian and Anatolian Coasts from the requisitioned vessels "Raven" and "Anne." The results of their work were invaluable. The "Anne" was torpedoed near Smyrna during an armistice while employed by the Royal Navy, but was fortunately able to reach Mudros, where she was patched up and returned to Port Said. I cannot speak too highly of the work of the seaplane detachment. Lengthy land flights are extremely dangerous, yet nothing ever stopped these gallant French aviators from any enterprise. I regret the loss of two of these planes whilst making dangerous land flights over Southern Syria.

I would be failing in my duty were I not to bring to Your Lordship's notice the valuable and whole-hearted assistance always readily given by the Count de Serionne and his able assistants of the Suez Canal Company. The whole of the resources of this Company were put unreservedly at my disposal.

It is perhaps needless for me to report that His Majesty's Royal Navy, under Vice-Admiral Sir R. Peirse, K.C.B., Commander-in-Chief, East Indies, were always ready and anxious to help and facilitate the duty of protecting the Canal and advising in any enterprise that needed Naval assistance. To the Navy fell the duty of guarding the Bitter Lakes.

To the Vice-Admiral Commanding the French Syrian Squadron I am especially indebted, in that he and the Officers and ships under his command maintained a constant watch throughout on the Syrian and Anatolian Coasts. They supplied me with the fullest information of enemy movements that it was possible to obtain by means of agents, etc. I had only to express a wish and it was at once carried out.

I now submit my report as follows :—

OPERATIONS ON THE WESTERN FRONT TO 31st JANUARY 1916.

Outbreak of Hostilities on the Western Front.

Early in November, during my temporary absence from Egypt to meet your Lordship at Mudros, the situation on the Western Frontier, which, as your Lordship is aware, had for some months been a subject for anxiety, became suddenly acute, and a series of acts of hostility committed against our frontier posts at Sollum and Barrani made final rupture with the Senussi inevitable.

As early as May, 1915, signs were apparent that the steadily increasing pressure brought to bear upon the Senussi by the Turkish party in Tripoli under the leadership of Nuri Bey, a half-brother of Enver Pasha, was beginning to take effect.

For some time, even after the outbreak of hostilities between Great Britain and Turkey in 1914, the anti-British influence of this party was not strongly felt, and the attitude of the Senussi towards Egypt remained friendly. It was not until the advent of Gaafer, a Germanised Turk of considerable ability, who arrived in Tripoli in April 1915. with a considerable supply of arms and money, that this attitude underwent a change.

From that moment it became evident that the Turkish influence was gaining weight, and it was only by means of great forbearance, and by tactful handling of a delicate situation by Lieutenant-Colonel Snow, commanding the Western Desert, that a rupture was so long deferred.

The first incident of importance occurred on August 16th, 1915, when two British submarines, sheltering from the weather near Ras Lick, on the coast of Cyrenaica, were treacherously fired upon by Arabs under the leadership of a white officer, casualties being suffered on either side.

The incident was, however, closed by the acceptance of the Senussi's profound apologies and of his assurances that the act had been committed in ignorance that the submarines were British.

A period of quiet followed, but at the beginning of November a series of events occurred which placed beyond all doubt the insincerity of the Senussi's continued assurances of friendship.

In the first week of that month (November) the crews of H. M. S. "Tara" and of H. M. T. "Moorina," torpedoed by enemy submarines on the 5th and 7th respectively, were, on landing in Cyrenaica, captured and held prisoners by the Senussi, who, in reply to strong representations for their immediate release, merely feigned ignorance of these occurrences, which he pretended to discredit.

Even then a last effort was made to preserve peace, and Sayed Mohamed el Idris was sent to arrange negotiations whereby the Senussi should get rid of his Turkish advisers in return for a sum of money. But before any decision could be reached matters had got beyond control, and the negotiations collapsed. On the 9th an Emergency Squadron of the Royal Naval Armoured Car Division was sent to strengthen the post at Sollum, which three days earlier had been shelled by enemy submarines, the Egyptian Coastguard Cruiser "Abbas" being sunk at her moorings, and another, the "Nur el Bahr," receiving considerable damage from shell fire.

On the night of the 14-15th two Egyptian sentries at Sollum were rushed by Mohafizia (Senussi regulars), and were severely handled and their arms carried off; the following night the camp at Sollum was systematically sniped, though no casualties resulted.

On the 17th the Zawia at Sidi Barrani (50 miles east of Sollum) was occupied by a force of some 300 Muhafizia, and on the 18th the Coastguard Barracks at that place were twice attacked during the night, one coastguard being killed.

This was followed on the 20th by an attack on the Coastguard Outpost at Sabil, a small post about 30 miles south-east of Sollum, though in this case, as at Barrani, the attack failed.

In view of these circumstances there was clearly no alternative but to recognise a state of war and to take action accordingly.

The events recorded above had caused a spirit of great unrest to prevail throughout the country, and the possibility of internal disturbances was a source of greater anxiety than the external danger.

This unrest was specially evident amongst the Arab population inhabiting the western edge of the cultivation—amounting in the Behera Province alone to over 120,000).

The religious influence of the Senussi is great amongst these people, and their natural sympathies are inclined towards their brethren in the Western Desert.

The above considerations made it imperative, on the one hand to keep the sphere of hostilities as far as possible to the west of the Delta and, on the other hand, to avoid anything in the nature of a reverse.

In pursuance of this policy it was decided to withdraw the Western Frontier posts to Mersa Matruh, and to concentrate at that place a force sufficient to deal swiftly with the situation; secure the Alexandria-Dabaa Railway as a secondary line of communication by land with the railhead at Dabaa; to occupy the Wadi Natrun and the Fayum as measures of precaution; and to watch closely by constant and careful reconnaissance the Oasis of Moghara.

This course offered the following advantages:—

(a) The advance of the enemy would be opposed at the most westerly point at which a suitable harbour could be found, within one night's journey by sea from Alexandria, defensible on the land front.

(b) The enemy would be met on ground generally practicable to all arms and comparatively well supplied with water.

(c) The Egyptian Bedouin of the coastal belt east of Matruh would be protected if loyal, and coerced if disaffected.

(e) As more troops and transport by sea became available an opportunity would be afforded of striking at the enemy's main lines of communications by means of a landing at Sollum.

On the 20th November orders were issued for the assembly of the following force at Alexandria:—

In Command.—Major-General A. Wallace, C. B.

Three Composite Yeomanry Regiments (from details 2nd Mounted Division).

One Composite Regiment Australian Light-Horse (from details Australian Light-Horse Brigades).

Notts Battery, Royal-Horse Artillery and Ammunition Column.

Auxiliary Services.

Composite Infantry Brigade.—Under Brigadier-General the Earl of Lucan:—

1-6th Battalion, Royal Scots (T.F.).

2-7th Battalion, Middlesex Regiment (T.F.).

2-8th Battalion, Middlesex Regiment (T.F.).

15th Sikhs.

Auxiliary services.

A Detachment Egpytian Army Military Works Department (no Royal Engineers, being available).

Divisional Train, 1st Australian Division.

The 2nd Battalion New Zealand Rifle Brigade, one Company 15th Sikhs, a detachment of 150 Bikanir Camel Corps with an attached Egyptian Army Machine Gun Section, and one armoured train garrisoned by the 1-10th Gurkha Rifles with two 12-pdr. guns of the Egyptian Army Artillery, were despatched on the 21st instant to make good the Alexandria-Dabaa Railway and patrol to Moghara Oasis.

The 1-1st North Midland Mounted Brigade, with the Berks Battery Royal Horse Artillery, were sent on the 29th November to preserve order in the Fayum, and on the same date a Squadron of Egyptian Army Cavalry and a detachment of 50 Bikanir Camel Corps occupied the Wadi Natrun.

Finally, to provide for possible contingencies among the Arab population of the Western Behera Provinces, a Composite Battalion was made up from details of the 29th Division at Alexandria, detachments being despatched to Hosh Isa and Damanhur on December 7th.

By November 23rd concentration was completed, and on the night of the 23rd-24th the first detachments of the 15th Sikhs, under Lieutenant-Colonel J. L. R. Gordon, sailed from Alexandria, arriving at Mersa Matruh the following morning.

The presence of enemy submarines necessitated the sea journey being performed by night only. Moreover, the depth of water over the bar in Matruh Harbour limited the ships immediately available for transporting troops and supplies to six trawlers and two small Coast-guard Cruisers. Four additional small steamers were obtained as soon as possible and a third cruiser was fitted up as a hospital ship.

The mounted troops and transport were assembled at railhead at Dabaa, and an advanced force was sent forward to make good and develop the wells at Abu Gerab, Baggush and Jerawla, which constitute the only watering places on the 85 miles of desert which separate Dabaa from Mersa Matruh. The condition of the wells at the extreme end of the dry season only permitted of two squadrons being passed across at a time.

The concentration of the force at Mersa Matruh, less five squadrons left at railhead on account of insufficiency of water, was completed on December 7th, and on the same date Major-General Wallace moved his headquarters to Matruh.

Meanwhile Sollum post had been evacuated by sea on the afternoon of the 23rd November, such motor cars of the Royal Naval Armoured Car Squadron as could be moved having been despatched by land previously.

In the evacuation it was unfortunately found necessary to disable and abandon three light Ford cars and the two Egyptian Army 9 c-m Krupp guns, and to abandon an outlying post of one Egyptian officer and fourteen other ranks whichf ailed to reach the beach in time to embark, and were made prisoners.

The garrison of Sollum—strength, British, five officers and twelve other ranks, Egyptian, two officers and ninety other ranks--reached Matruh safely on November 24th.

The evacuation of the posts at Bagbag and Sidi Barani was effected by land on November 23rd, everything of value being removed, except four light cars at the latter post, which were disabled before abandonment. During the march, and after arrival at Matruh, a number of desertions took place among the Egyptian Coastguard Camel Corps. These desertions amounted in all to twelve native officers, two cadets, and 120 other ranks, the deserters taking with them their arms, equipment, and 176 camels.

A detailed distribution of the Western Frontier Force on the 10th December, and of troops garrisoning districts in the West of Egypt, in which the population was mainly Arab, and therefore likely to be affected by the invasion, is given in Appendix "A" (not printed).

It must be acknowledged that this force, although the best available in Egypt at the moment, was by no means well adapted for the task which lay before it. Regiments and Staffs had been somewhat hastily collected, and were not well known to one another. The Composite Yeomanry Brigade, to give an instance, contained men from twenty or more different regiments. Before a really efficient fighting force could be collected much rearrangement was necessary, with the result that the composition was constantly changing; and it was, in fact, not until the middle of February that the conditions of the Western Frontier Force could be considered really satisfactory.

Moreover, the lack of sufficient and suitable transport made it necessary for General Wallace to withdraw his troops to Matruh after each engagement.

I mention these facts because it should be realised that General Wallace had to overcome many difficulties beyond those caused by the enemy.

On the 11th December the undermentioned force moved out from Mersa Matruh, with orders to disperse a hostile gathering reported in the neighbourhood of Beit Hussein and Ras Um Rakhum, and to reconnoitre towards Unjeila:—

Commander, Lieut.-Colonel J. L. R. Gordon, 15th Sikhs (350 men).

One section Nottinghamshire Battery, Royal Horse Artillery (Territorial Force).

Detachment Royal Naval Armoured Car Division (six armoured cars, one wireless car).

One section South Midland Field Ambulance, Royal Army Medical Corps (Territorial Force).

Marching at 7 A.M., the force moved westwards by the Coast road, and on reaching Wadi Senaab the Cavalry, pushed forward in advance of the column, became engaged with the enemy holding the southern side of the Wadi in considerable strength.

Owing to the bad going marching was difficult, and the infantry were unable to co-operate, but, on the arrival of a reinforcement of a squadron of Australian Light Horse in the afternoon, the enemy were finally driven out of the Wadi with loss estimated at not less than 10) killed and wounded.

Our casualties on this day were one officer and thirteen other ranks killed, and two officers and sixteen other ranks wounded. Among the former I regret to report the death of Lieutenant-Colonel Snow, killed late in the day by an Arab whom he was endeavouring to persuade to surrender. In the death of this experienced officer the force suffered a heavy loss.

In the action valuable assistance was rendered by the armoured cars of the Royal Naval Armoured Car Division. After dark the column concentrated at Um Rakhum, where the night was spent. On the 12th, owing to the fatigue of the Yeomanry horses, nothing further was attempted than the clearing up of the Wadi Shaifa, which resulted in the capture of some twenty-five prisoners and a number of camels and cattle abandoned by the enemy in his retreat.

Meanwhile air reconnaissance disclosed the presence of the enemy in some force at Ras Manaa, about thirteen miles west of Um Rakhum.

The column was accordingly reinforced by two companies of the 1-6th Royal Scots from Matruh, and orders were issued for an advance on Ras Manaa on the following day.

On the 13th the column moved at 8 A.M. in the direction of Beit Hussein, but on crossing Wadi Shaifa became engaged with the enemy, and a sharp and somewhat critical action developed.

The enemy, estimated at about 1,200 with two guns and machine-guns, attacked with considerable vigour, but after a critical period the arrival of reinforcements (two guns, Notts Royal Horse Artillery and two squadrons Australian Light Horse) from Matruh, turned the scale in our favour, and the enemy were driven back about a mile with heavy loss, though dark put an end to further pursuit.

The column retired for the night to Um Rakhum, and the following morning returned to Matruh.

Our casualties in this operation amounted to nine rank and file killed and six officers and 5() other ranks wounded. The enemy's losses on the other hand, as estimated from observation and confirmed by subsequent reports, must have reached a total of at least 250, of whom about 180 killed.

On the night of the 14-15th December the posts at the wells of Abu Gerab, Baggush and Gerawla were withdrawn owing to their somewhat dangerous isolation, this operation being carried out without incident.

From the 15th to the 23rd no operation of importance was undertaken, the period being devoted to the further organizing and strengthening of the force at Matruh.

The experience of the operations of the 11th and 13th December had clearly shown that to obtain a rapid and decisive result more strength was necessary.

During the third week of December, therefore, the force at Matruh was reinforced by the 1st Battalion, New-Zealand Rifle Brigade, two Naval 4-in. guns and "A" Battery, Honourable Artillery Company (2nd Mounted Division), while shortly afterwards the 161st Brigade (54th Division) relieved the 2nd New Zealand Rifle Battalion on the lines of communication, the latter being withdrawn to Alexandria.

In the meantime the enemy was concentrating in the neighbourhood of Gebel Medwa, about eight miles south-west of Matruh, and by December 24th his strength at that place was estimated from air reconnaissance and other sources to have reached about 5,000 men, of whom more than half were Mahafizia or regular soldiers, with four guns and some machine guns, the whole under the command of Gaafer.

In command Main Body.—Major-General A. Wallace, C. B.
Right Column.—Lieutenant-Colonel J. L. R. Gordon, 15th Sikhs.
1 Section, Notts Battery, Royal Horse Artillery.
1st Battalion, New Zealand Rifle Brigade.
15th Sikhs.
2-8th Battalion, Middlesex Regiment (T. F.)
Notts and Derby Field Ambulance.
Water Section, Australian Train.
Brigade Staff and Signalling Troops (2nd Composite Yeomanry Brigade).
Notts Royal Horse Artillery (less 1 section).
2 Troops, Duke of Lancaster's Own Yeomanry.
1 Troop, Derbyshire Yeomanry.
2 Troops, City of London Yeomanry.
1 Squadron, Herts Yeomanry.
Composite Regiment, Australian Light Horse (3 Squadrons).
Yeomanry Machine Gun Section.
Yeomanry Field Ambulance.

Against this concentration, on December 25th, force detailed above, with Major-General Wallace personally in command, moved out from Matruh. General Wallace's plan was to divide his force into two columns:—

(i) The right column, under the command of the Lieutenant-Colonel Gordon, 15th Sikhs, and comprising the bulk of the Infantry, with the Bucks Hussars and a section of Royal Horse Artillery, to advance directly on Gebel Medwa.

(ii) The left column under Brigadier-General Tyndale Biscoe, including the remainder of the mounted troops and Horse Artillery, to make a wide detour southward round the right flank of the enemy to deny his retreat to the west.

H. M. S. "Clematis" to assist as occasion offered with gun-fire from the sea.

Both columns moved before daylight, and by 7-30 the Cavalry had cleared the Wad Toweiwa, about seven miles due south of Matruh.

Meanwhile the right column followed the Khedivial Motor Road westward, until, at 6-30 A.M., the advance guard came suddenly under fire from artillery and machine guns from the south-west. The enemy were soon driven off, and by 7-15 A.M., the main body had crossed the Wadi Raml and could see the enemy occupying an escarpment about one mile south of Gebel Medwa.

At 7-30 A.M., the 15th Sikhs were ordered to attack the enemy from his right flank, the Bucks Hussars and 2-8th Middlesex to co-operate by containing attack along his front, to be delivered simultaneously with the attack of the Sikhs.

The 15th Sikhs accordingly deployed west of the road and commenced their advance, despatching one company to occupy Gebel Medwa in order to secure their right. At the same time, the Bucks Hussars moved forward, while the Middlesex Battalion, keeping to the north-east of Gebel Medwa, sent a company to relieve that of the 15th Sikhs occupying the hill, which thereupon rejoined the battalion.

The section Notts Royal Horse Artillery, which came into action on the high ground near the road 2,000 yards east of Gebel Medwa, quickly silenced the enemy's artillery, therein greatly assisting the advance of the infantry, and at 7-45 A.M., H.M.S. "Clematis" opened an accurate and useful fire at a range of about 10,000 yards.

By 9-30 A.M., the Sikhs, reinforced by two companies of the 1st New Zealand Rifle Brigade (from the Reserve), were still meeting with considerable opposition, and shortly before 10 o'clock a third company of New Zealanders was ordered up to prolong their line to the left and to clear a Nullah running parallel to the line of advance from which the Sikhs were suffering casualties.

Before this company could reach its position the crest in front of the Sikhs was carried and that battalion, with the two New Zealand companies on the right, pushed rapidly forward, driving the enemy into caves and small gullies, all of which had in turn to be cleared.

At 11 A.M., the western edge of the plateau was reached and the left column could then be seen operating about two miles to the south-west. Signal communication was opened, and the left column, which had been a good deal delayed by some hostile mounted troops, then changed direction north-east, and subsequently north, along the Wadi Majid, where it again became engaged.

By 2-15 P.M., the Nullahs at the head of the Wadi Majid had been thoroughly cleared and after an hour and a half sharp fighting the Wadi was in our possession—over 100 dead, 34 prisoners, 86 camels, and much live stock, as well as 30,000 rounds of small arm ammunition and three boxes of gun ammunition, falling into our hands. At 4 P.M., the Cavalry Column joined up with the left of the 15th Sikhs, having finally driven off the enemy, with whom they had been engaged since 2 o'clock.

Unfortunately the remnants of the enemy had already made good their escape westwards along the sea shore, and the approach of darkness precluded the possibility of further pursuit.

After nightfall the Cavalry returned to Matruh, the infantry bivouacking for the night at Gebel Medwa and returning to Matruh the following morning,

Our casualities during the day, which amounted in all to 14 rank and file killed and 3 officers and 47 other ranks wounded, were very light in comparison with those of the enemy of whom over 370 dead and 82 prisoners were accounted for apart from the wounded—probably a considerable number—whom they were able to get away. Amongst the booty were the office and personal effects of the enemy's commander, Gaafer, abandoned by him in his fight.

The energy, resolution, and initiative displayed by Lieutenant-Colonel Gordon throughout this operation is deserving of the highest praise, and in his difficult task he was magnificently backed up by his own regiment, the 15th Sikhs, temporarily commanded by Major Evans, and by the 1st Battalion, New Zealand Rifle Brigade, under Major Austen.

The immediate result of the action was the retirement of the Senussi with his Staff and the remains of his force to Unjeila and Bir Tunis.

General Wallace was now free to deal with the situation between Matruh and Dabaa, and to this end, on 28th December, a small column, under the command of Brigadier-General the East of Lucan, was despatched from Mersa Matruh to Jerwala. Several enemy encampments were visited, but no resistance was encountered, and on the 30th the column returned to Matruh, having destroyed some eighty tents and large quantities of grain, and bringing in nearly 100 camels and 500 sheep.

During the early days of January the weather made active operations impossible.

On the 1st of the month a collection of eighty tents was reported by aeroplane at Gebel Howimil, and a column was formed to clear up the situation in that neighbourhood. On the 2nd, however, torrential rain fell, which continued, with rare breaks, almost incessantly for a week, the country becoming a sea of mud, so that the start of the column was postponed from day to day. Finally, on the evening of 9th January, the weather cleared, and by the 12th the roads were sufficiently passable to warrant a start being made.

On the 13th the column reached Baggush, and on the 14th the march was continued to Gebel Howimil, where several small camps were destroyed, a quantity of stores burnt, and some camels and live stock taken; nowhere was opposition encountered. The column returned the same evening to Baggush, having covered during the day close upon fifty miles.

Under cover of this operation the damaged telegraph line between Matruh and Dabaa was successfully restored by the Royal Naval Armoured Car Division, and by the evening of the 14th communication was restored.

On 15th January the section Honourable Artillery Company and two squadrons Australian Light Horse left the column for Dabaa, the remainder of the force returning to Bir Gerawla, and the following day to Matruh. Marching throughout had been very difficult and tedious owing to the deep going and swampy condition of the ground.

On 19th January, aerial reconnaissance discovered the presence of a considerable force of the enemy at Hazalin, twenty-five miles south-west of Matruh, the camp comprising at least 100 European and 250 Bedouin tents, including that of the Grand Senussi, which was recognised by the Captain Royle, the observer.

In view of the estimated strength of the enemy, General Wallace decided, before striking, to await the arrival of a reinforcement of one battalion of the South African Infantry Brigade, then under orders to sail from Alexandria. This battalion reached Mersa Matruh on the 20th and 21st and on 22nd January, air reports showing that the enemy's position at Hazalin was unchanged, the force shown below set out with General Wallace in command, reaching Bir Shola (16 miles) after dark, where troops bivouacked for the night :—

1 Squadron, Royal Bucks Hussars.
1 Squadron, Dorset Yeomanry.
1 Squadron, Herts Yeomanry.
1 Squadron, Duke of Lancaster's Own Yeomanry.
1 Squadron, Surrey Yeomanry.
1 Squadron, Australian Light Horse.
"A" Battery, Honourable Artillery Company (less one Section).
Notts Battery, Royal Horse Artillery and Ammunition Column.
Australian Signal Section.
1st Battalion, New Zealand Rifle Brigade.
2nd South African Regiment.
15th Sikhs.

2-8th Battalion, Middlesex Regiment (T. F.) (less two Companies).

At 6 A.M. on January 23rd the force moved off disposed as under : —

Left Column.

Commander.—Brigadier-General J. D. T. Tyndale Biscoe.

1 Squadron, Australian Light Horse.
3 Squadrons, Royal Bucks, Hussars.
1 Squadron, Dorset Yeomanry.
1 Squadron, Herts, Yeomanry.
Mounted Brigade Machine Gun Section.
"A" Battery, H. A. C. (less one Section).
Reserve.—Two Troops Yeomanry, 1-6th Battalion, Royal Scots (less half Battalion) and S.A.A., moved half a mile in rear of the Right Column. The train, with half Battalion, 2-8th Middlesex Regiment, remained parked at Bir Shola.

At 8-30 A.M., when the Right Column were about 7 miles from Bir Shola, the Left Column reported that the enemy could be seen about 2 miles ahead of their advanced Squadron, and shortly afterwards the latter (Australian Light Horse) became engaged. The Bucks, Hussars and H. A. C. were immediately sent forward in support, and simultaneously Colonel Gordon's Column pushed on in attack formation, the 15th Sikhs leading.

Relieved by the advance of the Infantry, the mounted troops pressed on, endeavouring to work round the enemy's right, and at the same time covering the left flank of Colonel Gordon's attack. The latter spread over a front of nearly a mile and half, led across ground absolutely destitute of cover, while mirage in the early stages made it impossible for a considerable time to locate the enemy's positions. During this advance the Infantry suffered somewhat severely from artillery and machine guns, the enemy's fire being both rapid and accurate. Nevertheless, the enemy was gradually pressed back, but his retirement of nearly 3 miles on to his main positions was conducted with great skill, denying all our efforts to come to close quarters.

By 2-45 P.M., the Sikhs and South Africans, with part of the New Zealand Battalion, on the left of the Sikhs, had reached the enemy's main line. But in the meantime the flanks had not made equal progress, and bodies of the enemy were working round both north and south, the line gradually forming the arc of a semi-circle.

Soon after 1 P.M., so great was the activity of one of these detachments on our right, or northern flank, that the reserve Battalion (1-6th Royal Scots) had to be put in to restore the situation, but by 2-30 P.M., all danger from that quarter was past. On the extreme left, however, by 3-30 P.M., the Cavalry of the Left Column had been forced to give some ground, and with the H. A. C. guns were occupying a position nearly 1,000 yards in rear of the Field Ambulance.

Colonel Gordon was called upon to detach 2 Companies of New Zealanders to assist the Cavalry, who were being pressed. With this reinforcement the threat against our left rear was finally repulsed and the enemy driven off.

In the meantime the main attack by Colonel Gordon's Column had progressed satisfactorily. By 3 P.M., the enemy had been driven from his positions, and shortly afterwards his camp was occupied and burnt, the work of destruction being completed by 4-30 P.M.

As darkness was approaching, and the exhaustion of the cavalry horses forbade pursuit, General Wallace decided to bivouac the force about 2 miles east of the captured position, where the Field Ambulance had been placed, and whence it could not be moved owing to the deep mud. Throughout the day this factor—of mud—had played an important and unfortunate part. The whole country had been converted by the abnormal rains into a quagmire, which had hampered the operations of the mounted troops, preventing their full co-operation with the Infantry. Owing to the mud, again, the Infantry were deprived of the support of the Royal Naval Armoured Car Division, intended to co-operate against the enemy's left flank, a loss seriously felt during the day.

The troops spent the night in considerable discomfort, as the train was unable to proceed further than about 3 miles west of Bir Shola; neither supplies nor blankets could be brought up, and the night was intensely wet and cold. The enemy showed no inclination to renew operations, and at 8-30 A.M. on the 24th the force started for Bir Shola.

The march to Bir Shola, through deep mud, proved an arduous undertaking, all vehicles having to be drawn by hand, but, above all, the transport of the wounded presented the greatest difficulty. Those unable to ride had to be carried on stretchers, a severe train upon the troops, tired and thirsty after a cold and sleepless night. Eventually, however, the train was met where it had parked, about three miles west of Bir Shola, and the infantry were relieved of their burden, the force reaching bivouac at Bir Shola at about 5 P.M.

On the 25th the weather cleared and the troops marched back in good spirits to Mersa Matruh, the whole column getting in by 4-30 P.M.

Our casualties in the action of 23rd were unfortunately heavy, as the figures show :—

	Killed.	Wounded.
British Officers	1	10
British other ranks	11	164
Indian Officers	...	3
Indian other ranks	19	114
Total ...	31	291

Nevertheless those of the enemy must have been far heavier, and, although difficult to gauge accurately, a conservative estimate based on observation and on the reports of prisoners places his losses at not less than 200 killed and 500 wounded.

In this action the enemy received a very severe blow, and, if deserters are to be believed, the effect of this reverse following upon that at Gebel Medwa on December 25th, has gone far to discourage the Sanussi and to shake the faith of his followers in the cause.

It was unfortunate that in this, as in previous actions, it was impossible for the infantry to pursue their success to the full, owing to the intense difficulties of transport experienced on every occasion. With greater mobility, allowing of an active pursuit, particularly after the action on Christmas day, the success obtained would undoubtedly have been far more complete, and would have contributed largely to a more speedy termination of the campaign.

In the success attained on the 23rd special praise is due to the leading of Colonel Gordon, who commanded the main attack, and to the gallantry of the Sikhs, the South Africans and the New Zealanders, who fought with invincible dash and resolution throughout the day.

It was at this stage of the campaign that General Wallace felt himself obliged, owing to age, to tender his resignation of the command which he had held with unvarying success for the past three months.

I had decided that the time had now come to undertake the reoccupation of Sollum, and as General Wallace considered that the operations involved a physical strain which would be beyond his powers, I appointed Major-General W. E. Peyton, C.B., C.V.O., D.S.O., in his place.

By this time the force was thoroughly well adapted and equipped for its work. The loss of the 15th Sikhs ordered to India, was severe, but it and the New Zealand Battalion had been replaced by the South African Brigade. The Composite Yeomanry Brigade had vanished, and its place had been taken by the 2nd Mounted Brigade. Two sections of Hong-Kong and Singapore Mountain Battery had joined, and with the necessary services this little force was complete in every respect. Lord Lucans Composite Brigade of three Territorial regiments was almost all that remained of the original command.

In closing this account of the operations on the western frontier up to the end of January, 1916, I wish again to emphasise the unvarying and whole-hearted support accorded throughout by the Royal Navy. In the onerous and often difficult task of transporting troops and material by sea to Mersa Matruh, and in the active co-operation of H. M. S. "Clematis," which by her vigilant patrolling of the coast considerably lightened the burden of the troops, and by her effective gunnery materially assisted in the operations in December; the assistance and the support of the Navy has been from start to finish as ungrudging as effective.

The Western Frontier Force also owes much to the Royal Flying Corps, whose work was, as always, of a high order. Special mention should be made of a flight by Lieutenant Van Ryneveld to Qara by Lieutenant Tipton from the Fayum to Moghara, and regular flights to Baharia. The distances covered were very great, and flights of 200 miles have become quite common.

I desire to place on record my high appreciation of the invaluable co-operation of all Departments of the Egyptian Government.

My relations with His Highness The Sultan and his Ministers have been most close and cordial, and their influence has set a tone which has been followed by the better-class Egyptian throughout the country.

The intricacies and difficulties of martial law in a cosmopolitan country such as Egypt have been made comparatively easy by the advice and assistance of the advisers to the Ministry of Finance and Interior. To Lord E. Cecil, K.C.M.G., D.S.O., Sir R. Graham, K.C.M.G., C.B., Sir W. Brunyate, K.C.M.G., Sir M. Macdonald, K.C.M.G., Mr. Burnett-Stuart, of the Ministry of the Interior, and Mr Ward Boys, of the Ministry of Finance, my thanks are especially due. I am also greatly indebted to Colonel Harvey Pasha, C.M.G., and Colonel Hopkinson Pasha, C.M.G., the Commandants of the Cairo and Alexandria Police, respectively, for their strenuous and difficult work in keeping order under most difficult circumstances in these large cities, and who, in addition to their civil duties, have taken on that of Provost-Marshals at my special request.

In fact, every branch of the Egyptian Government has been used to the uttermost with their whole and ungrudging consent. Consequently the resources of Egypt have been proved and developed with a result which has surprised even those who knew them best, and I have not only been able to carry on the administration of my command, but also to assist materially the interests of the Mediterranean Expeditionary Force which were centred here, and to administer Martial Law without inconvenience and with a staff scarcely larger than that of the small garrison maintained here before the war.

I therefore desire to bring to Your Lordship's notice for favourable consideration the names of those officials of the Egyptian Government whom I have mentioned.

In conclusion I wish to express my gratitude for the assistance and advice of His Britannic Majesty's High Commissioner, Sir H. MacMahon, G.C.V.O., etc., and to bring to your notice the valuable work and assistance of Major-General H. E. Stanton, Brigadier-General in charge of Administration, and Brigadier-General N. Malcolm, Brigadier, General Staff.

I am submitting in a separate Despatch the names of those I wish to bring to your Lordship's notice for favourable consideration on account of the services they have rendered.

I have the honour to be,

Your Lordship's obedient Servant.

J. G. MAXWELL, General,

Commanding the Force in Egypt.

DESPATCH No. V.

Army Headquarters, Cairo,
London, 9th April, 1916.

MY LORD,

On 1st March I submitted a report on the Force in Egypt up to the 31st January 1916. I now have the honour to supplement that report up to 19th March 1916, the date on which I handed over command to General Sir A. J. Murray, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., C.V.O., D.S.O., Commander-in-Chief, Mediterranean Expeditionary Force.

The present Despatch describes the operations under Major-General W. E. Peyton, C.B., C.V.O., D.S.O., for the reoccupation of Sollum. I also venture to submit herewith, for Your Lordship's favourable consideration, the names of those officers, non-commissioned and men, who have especially distinguished themselves during the period covered by this despatch.

I have the honour to be,

Your Lordship's obedient servant,

J. G. MAXWELL, General.

THE REOCCUPATION OF SOLLUM.

My last Despatch ended with the successful engagement at Hazalin* and General Wallace's resignation of the command of the Western Frontier Force, on grounds which have already been explained.

General Peyton's assumption of command on the 9th February practically coincided with the final reorganisation of the force, and the provision of sufficient camel transport to render the column completely mobile. Henceforth it was possible to follow up any success, instead of having to return to Matruh after each engagement. This meant that the reoccupation of Sollum, which had already received War Office sanction, was now a possibility, and preparations were pushed on as rapidly as possible.

* The correct name of this place is now known to be Halazin. The incorrect spelling is adhered to in this Despatch, as it is that on all our existing maps.

Information from various sources was to the effect that the main hostile force with certain reinforcements, was in the neighbourhood of Barrani, and that another smaller body was in the Camp at Sollum. It was clear that if the country was to be pacified these forces must be beaten. Two courses were open to me:—

(ii) To move by land, to supply the force by sea at Barrani, and to arrange for naval co-operation at any point which might be necessary.

The Navy were, as always, prepared to give me every assistance in whichever course I might decide to adopt.

On the one hand, Sollum Bay is completely commanded by encircling heights and, as it would be necessary to remove the mines which had been laid at the entrance, surprise would be impossible. On the other hand, the country between Barrani and Sollum was known to be almost devoid of water, and the physical difficulties to be overcome would certainly be great.

After visiting Matruh, and going into the question on the spot with General Wallace, who had not yet left, and with Commander Eyres Monsell, Royal Navy, I decided to utilise the land route only: supplies to be put by sea into Barrani and Sollum as soon as possible after their reoccupation by us.

These were my instructions to General Peyton when he left Cairo to take over command. As you are already aware, he carried them out, with the assistance of the Navy, to my complete satisfaction.

Just as the preparations for the advance were approaching completion, news was received that a hostile force had occupied the Baharia Oasis on the 11th February. This oasis lies 200 miles south-west of Cairo and about 100 miles from the rich and thickly populated districts of Fayum and Minia. The strength of this force, which was discovered by an air reconnaissance on the day of its arrival, was said to be about 500 men: it was increased on the following day to about 1,000. Further reinforcements are known to have arrived from the west, and the more southerly oases of Farafra and Dakhla had both been occupied by the 27th. All reports are to the effect that an orderly form of Government has been set up—indeed in most cases the Egyptian officials are believed to be carrying on their ordinary duties, but a few Copts have been induced to embrace the Moslem faith. This move of the enemy had, of course, been foreseen, and I had obtained War Office sanction to organise a command, under Major-General J. Adye, C.B., for the defence of the southern provinces of Egypt. This command had recently come into being, and General Adye was able to establish his headquarters at Beni Suef and to arrange for a thorough system of patrols from the Fayum to the neighbourhood of Assiut and the south, with a small guard on the important bridge over the Nile at Nag Hamadi. Subsequently, as our successful operations cleared the situation in the north, and the centre of gravity began to shift southward, General Adye was able to strengthen and to extend his defensive line until, at the moment of handing over my command to Sir A. Murray, his most southerly detachment was Esna.

Meanwhile I had withdrawn the Civil Officials from the Kharga Oasis as soon as it was known that Dakhla was in the enemy's hands. I had the choice of occupying and protecting that oasis or of withdrawing from it everything which would be of value to the enemy, and contenting myself with occasional patrols. The strategical importance of these oases is, of course, very obvious, but in view of the uncertainty as to what troops would be under my command at any moment, I considered that any enterprise distant from the Nile Valley would be out of place, and I restricted General Adye to purely defensive measures, with, however, instructions to prepare a small mobile column with which he could strike at the enemy should he approach the cultivation.

All this time the oases were kept under constant observation by means of aeroplanes. Very long flights were necessary, and to reduce them as much as possible a system of advanced depôts in the desert was started. The credit for originating this system is due to Lieut. (now Captain) Van Rynefeld, R. F. C., and to Mr. Jennings Bramley, of the Sudan Civil Service, and was first put into practice on the occasion of the flight to Qara mentioned in my previous Despatch.

Such was the situation when I handed over my command on the 19th March.

Meanwhile the preparations for the advance in the North were steadily proceeding. An advanced depôt was established at Unjeila on the 10th February, and, on the 20th February, General Peyton despatched a force, under Brig.-General H. T. Lukin, C.M.G., D.S.O., consisting of one squadron Royal Bucks Hussars, Queen's Own Dorset Yeomanry, Notts Battery, R.H.A., 1st South African Brigade, less the 2nd and 4th Battalions, a detachment 1-6th Royal Scots and two field ambulances, with orders to establish itself at Barrani, and thus to secure the second stepping-stone on the way to Sollum.

On the following day the hostile forces were located by air reconnaissance at Agagia, some fourteen miles south-east of Barrani. Reports by surrendered Bedouin confirmed the accuracy of this information, and added that both Nuri Bey and Gaafer Pasha were in the camp, although Sayed Ahmed himself had left for Siwa.

As General Peyton considered that the advanced force was sufficiently strong to overthrow any opposition which it was likely to encounter he ordered General Lukin to continue his march and to attack so soon as he was within striking distance of his enemy.

In accordance with this order the original March programme was adhered to, and on the 24th February General Lukin camped at the Wadi-Maktil. The 25th was to be a day of rest preliminary to a night approach and attack at dawn on the 26th. However, as on all previous occasions, Gaafer Pasha again showed that he was by no means disposed passively to await attack, and at 5-30 P.M., on the 25th two field guns and at least one machine gun opened fire upon the camp. The action which followed was without importance as the enemy's artillery was soon silenced and the threatened attack was repelled with a loss to ourselves of one man killed and one wounded. Nevertheless it had been sufficient to bring about a change in General Lukin's plans, and the night march was abandoned in favour of daylight operations.

A Yeomanry reconnaissance sent out at daylight on the 26th found that the position occupied by the enemy on the previous evening had been vacated during the night, but aerial reconnaissance and officer's patrols discovered him in his old position near Agagia. Having collected sufficient information to enable him to form his plans General Lukin moved out at 9-30 A.M., with his whole force except for a small detachment left to guard his camp. By 10-15 A.M., the Yeomanry had seized a hillock 4,000 yards north of the enemy's position, and three-quarters of an hour later the attack was developed. In the centre the 3rd South African Infantry advanced on a front of about 1,700 yards, the Yeomanry (less one squadron) and two armoured cars operated on the right flank with orders to pursue the moment the enemy should break; on the left was the remaining squadron with two more armoured cars. The 1st South African Infantry and two armoured cars formed the general reserve.

As the attack developed the enemy opened a fairly heavy fire with rifles and machine guns, and two or three field guns distributed their fire over the field. The 3rd South African Infantry moved forward with admirable steadiness. Then, acting exactly as on previous occasions, the enemy's infantry moving very rapidly, attempted an outflanking movement against General Lukin's left. This was met by a company from the reserve sent up in echelon behind the threatened flank, and the counterattack at once faded away.

As soon as the danger was over General Lukin, acting with admirable promptitude, withdrew his squadron from his left flank and sent it to strengthen his main pursuing force on his right, and there is little doubt that this quick decision did much to ensure the success of the subsequent operations. As the firing line was now within 500 yards of the position, General Lukin threw into the fight the greater portion of his reserves, including his last two armoured cars, and at the same time sent a staff officer to warn Colonel Souter, of the Dorset Yeomanry, to be ready for his opportunity. In the face of this vigorous action the enemy was compelled to evacuate his position, and, in exact accordance with the plans, the fight was taken up by the cavalry. The rest of the story may be told in the words of Colonel Souter's report:—

"About 1 P.M., I received a message from the G. O. C. saying that he wished me to pursue and to cut off the enemy if possible. It was my intention to let the enemy get clear of the sandhills, where there might have been wire or trenches, and then to attack him in the open. I therefore pursued on a line parallel to, and about 1,000 yards west of, the line of retreat, attacking with dismounted fire wherever the horses wanted an easy. About 2 P.M. I saw for the first time the whole retreating force extend for about a mile with a depth of 300 to 400 yards. In front were the camels and baggage, escorted by irregulars, with their proper fighting force (Muhafizia) and maxims forming their rear and flank guard. I decided to attack mounted. About 3 P.M. I dismounted for the last time to give my horses a breather and to make a careful examination of the ground over which I was about to move. By this time the Dorset Regiment was complete, and as the Squadron of the Bucks Yeomanry had gone on ahead and could not be found, I attacked with Dorsets alone. The attack was made in two lines, the horses galloping steadily, and well in hand. Three maxims were brought into action against us, but the men were splendidly led by their squadron and troop leaders, and their behaviour was admirable. About 50 yards from the position I gave the order to charge, and with one yell the Dorsets hurled themselves upon the enemy, who immediately broke. In the middle of the enemy's lines my horse was killed under me and, by a curious chance, his dying strides brought me to the ground within a few yards of the Senussi General, Gaafer Pasha."

At this moment Colonel Souter was alone, except for Lieutenant Blaksley and Yeoman Brown, both of the Dorset Yeomanry, who had also had their horses shot under them. Around them about 50 fit or lightly wounded enemy, and the situation was distinctly threatening until the arrival of the machine gun section decided the issue. Gaafer Pasha and his staff were then escorted from the field to a place of safety.

For this happy result great credit is due to Colonel Souter, whose resolution and coolness stood him in great stead at a very critical moment. His name has already been submitted to Your Lordship for reward.

Colonel Souter adds—

"It is difficult accurately to express the effect of this cavalry charge on the enemy. Throughout the day he had fought with extreme boldness, but when the horses got into him he had only one thought, and that was to get away."

The losses in this remarkable exploit were severe, but they were justified by both the moral and material result achieved. One squadron was deprived of all its leaders, two being killed and two having their horses killed under them. Without their officers' control the men carried on too far, and it was this squadron that suffered most of the casualties. The enemy's losses were also heavy, and it is most improbable that anything would have induced them to stand up to well-handled cavalry again.

This action on the 26th completed the first stage of General Peyton's advance on Sollum, for Barrani was occupied without further opposition on the 28th February. The next stage was to bring up the remainder of his force and to put sufficient stores into Barrani to enable the advance to be continued. This was a naval operation. For various reasons the advance had been begun some days earlier than I had intended or than the Navy had been led to expect. The Australian Train, which had worked splendidly, was required for duty elsewhere, and, although 2,000 transport camels had been provided, we were still dependent upon the supply ships. Fortunately, these had been provided, and stocked in ample time, and Captain Burmester, R. N., and Commander Eyres, Monsell were, in fact, able to put supplies into Barrani about a week earlier than the date originally given to them.

The remainder of the South African Infantry Brigade, and the second Mounted Brigade, together with two sections of the Hong Kong and Singapore Mountain Battery, were accordingly brought from Mearsa Matruh, and the whole force was assembled at Barrani by the 8th March.

After their defeat at Agagia on the 26th February the enemy retreated westwards towards Sollum, and the Egyptian Bedouin (Aulad Ali) began to desert him in large numbers and to appeal to General Peyton for pardon. A number of prominent Sheikhs came into his camp, but the necessity of pushing on the operations made it impossible to enter into lengthy negotiations for the moment. Air reconnaissance and native report established the fact that the enemy had reoccupied their old camps at Bir Warr and Msead, which had been Sayed Ahmed's headquarters before the opening of hostilities, and it was possible that reinforcements might be coming up from Cyrenaica.

From Barrani to Sollum two possible routes were open to General Peyton. One, following the Khedival road along the coast line; the other climbing on to the inland plateau by the Nagb Medean or some other of the various passes, and then following along the higher ground towards the camp at Msead. Tactically and strategically the latter route was undoubtedly to be preferred, since at Sollum the escarpment rises sheerly from the shores of the bay, and to climb it there in the face of opposition must entail heavy loss of life. As is usual in African campaigning the water question was as important as either tactics or strategy. In this case all information was to the effect that a good supply could be found in the wells at Augerin, and that there were large cisterns at the Nagb Medean and Siwiat. This meant that by careful use of the reserve water park which had been organized, and by moving in two bodies, the whole force could use the inland road by the plateau.

The first column, which comprised all the infantry and slow moving troops, left Barrani on the 9th March, under General Lukin, with orders to secure a foothold on the plateau, using the Nagb Medean. The second column, comprised of mounted troops, horses and camels, was to leave two days later and to reach Augerin on the day after the Nagb Medean had been secured. That is to say, that the whole force would have been concentrated at Augerin with its outposts in the high ground ready to make its final and decisive attack upon Bir Warr and Msead. This plan was upset by the discovery, on March 12th, that previous reports as to water were far too optimistic. The supply at Augerin was found to be quite inadequate, and the cisterns at Medean and Siwiat were both reported to be dry. Some reconsideration, therefore, became necessary. The situation at that moment was as follows:—The armoured cars had reached the plateau, using the most westerly pass near Alim er Rabia. Telephone conversation cleverly intercepted at Barrani by a Turkish-speaking operator showed that the enemy was anxious, and in two minds whether to fight or fly; and Captain Blunt, R. E., had discovered a cistern at Alim Tejdid containing sufficient water for two battalions for one night. General Peyton was still rightly averse to risking the losses which he would suffer if compelled to attack the Sollum heights from the coastline. especially as he had already made good a footing on the plateau. On the other hand, the water on the inland route was only sufficient for a portion of his troops. He therefore decided to send two battalions of infantry, the armoured cars, his camel corps company, and his mountain guns under General Lukin along the top of the escarpment. while the remainder of his force was to move by the coast. At midnight on the 13th-14th General Lukin was at Siwiat, the remaining infantry was at Alim Tejdid, and the mounted troops at Bagbag. On the morning of the 14th both columns moved towards Sollum; at 9 A.M. aeroplane reconnaissance reported that the enemy was evacuating his camps. The mounted troops under General Peyton then joined General Lukin's column on the high ground. and as the aeroplane had discovered a hostile force some 20 miles to the west, the armoured cars, under Major the Duke of Westminster, were sent on in pursuit.

The result of this pursuit has already been fully reported. It resulted, as Your Lordship is aware, in the capture of all the enemy's guns and machine guns, together with about 40 prisoners, including three Turkish officers, and in inflicting on the enemy a loss of 50 killed and many wounded. Our loss in this exceptionally successful affair was one British officer slightly wounded.

By the reoccupation of Sollum and this pursuit by the armoured cars, the defeat of the northern column operating against Egypt was made complete. In little more than three weeks General Peyton's force had cleared the country of the enemy for 150 miles, had captured his commander, had taken all his artillery and machine guns, and had driven his scattered forces far beyond the Egyptian frontier.

Nevertheless, one more object remained to be achieved. It was known that somewhere in Cyrenaica the Senussi held some 95 British prisoners, survivors from the "Tara" and "Moorina" which had been torpedoed in November. After thorough examination of prisoners taken on the 14th, Captain Royle came to the conclusion that these prisoners could be found at a place some 75 miles west of Sollum. It was decided to make the attempt, and, as has also already been reported, it also was a complete success The task was again entrusted to the light armoured car battery, under Major the Duke of Westminster, accompanied by the motor ambulances. The distance travelled was 120 miles, and the fact that rescue was effected without any loss of life does not, in my opinion, detract in any way from the brilliance of the exploit. To lead his cars through perfectly unknown country against an enemy of unknown strength was a feat which demanded great resolution, and which should not be forgotten even in this war, where deeds of rare daring are of daily occurrence.

With the rescue of the prisoners and the safe return of the armoured cars, the campaign in the west came to an end and, I think, it may fairly be claimed that seldom has a small campaign been so completely successful or had such far-reaching results.

The effect of this success has been to remove the anxiety which was at one time felt as to the possibility of hostile outbreaks in Egypt itself, where agitation was known to be rife. The attitude of the people in Alexandria, and more especially of the very large Bedouin population of the Behera province, has completely changed, and prestige which we have lost through the evacuation of Sollum has been more than recovered. Moreover, through his failure as a temporal leader, Sayed Ahmed has lost much of the influence which was attached to him as a spiritual head.

On the west the Aulad Ali, who had been induced to throw in their lot with the Senussi in the belief that they would soon be able to raid the rich lands of the Delta, have been reduced to a state of starvation, and are now surrendering in such large numbers that feeding them has become so serious a problem that it has been necessary to establish a special branch of the administration for their protection and control.

On the east, the failure of the Turks to carry out their threat to attack Egypt and seize the Suez Canal has similarly resulted in a loss of credit and prestige. In the south, scattered forces still hold the Oases, and the inherent difficulties of desert campaigning will make them troublesome to deal with; but the failures in east and west have, it may fairly be claimed, had the result of establishing our hold upon Egypt more firmly than ever, and of convincing all the more enlightened of the people that they can gain nothing by intriguing with our enemies.

*2. Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the subdivisions or thanas in the Presidency Division in which the annual death-rate has, in recent years, exceeded the birth-rate, giving in each instance—

(a) the number of births during each of the last five years ; and the deaths from—

Improvement in date and sugarcane cultivation.

* 7. What steps, if any, have been taken by the Government during the last two years to improve the cultivation of date and sugarcane, and to increase the output of sugar, both raw and refined, in the Province ?

Questions and Answers.

The Hon'ble MR. KERR replied :—

"In 1914, soon after the outbreak of the war, Mr. Annett, the Agricultural Chemist, was deputed by Government to make a tour of the eastern, western and central districts of the Presidency to examine the possibilities of increasing the output of sugar, and to advise district officers and persons interested in the industry as to the action to be taken. Though it was then too late to do anything in the way of increasing the cane-sugar crop in 1914, it appeared that the cultivators in some districts had already realised the possibilities for sugarcane in the following season. Inquiries showed that owing to the decline of the date-sugar industry in recent years, a considerable number of date-trees were annually left untapped, and every endeavour was made to encourage the tapping of date-trees on a large scale. The measures taken in 1914 were repeated in 1915. The area under sugarcane is estimated to have increased from 218,300 acres in 1913-14 and 233,400 in 1914-15 to 233,500 acres in 1915-16, and the total production of cane-gur and date-gur was estimated at 5,176,600 cwt. and 1,983,800 cwt. in 1915-16, compared with 4,896,500 cwt. and 1,947,000 cwt. in 1913-14. During this period the Agricultural Chemist has continued his investigations at the Dacca Farm of the qualities of various kinds of indigenous and imported canes. He has also investigated methods of improving the manufacture and transport of palm-sugar, and he has recommended a very simple and effective method of improving the collection of palm juice, which is widely practised in Madras, viz., the spreading of a thin coat of lime on the inside of the pot, thereby preventing fermentation and increasing the outturn of sugar. Mr. Annett has also investigated the process of refining sugar, both at the Tarpur Sugar Works and elsewhere. He has made practical suggestions for improving the process. The Hon'ble Member, and all others interested in the subject, are recommended to read the paper which Mr. Annett recently laid before the Provincial Agricultural Association. The paper has been placed in the Press Room at Calcutta."

Education of backward classes in Bengal.

*10. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state the special steps taken during the last three years for the education of the backward classes in Bengal?

The Hon'ble MR. HORNELL replied :—

"(a) During the years 1913-14 to 1915-16 the following steps were taken (A) for the expansion and improvement of education among Sonthals in the districts of Bankura, Birbhum and Midnapore, (B) for the provision of further facilities for the education of the children of labourers employed in tea-gardens, and (C) for the education of the children of labourers employed in factories.

(A) Sonthal Education.—The measures taken for the development of education among the Sonthals included the improvement of existing Sonthal schools by raising the pay of the teachers, the establishment of ten new schools and the appointment of two assistant sub-inspectors of schools for the inspection of Sonthal schools. Six special lower primary scholarships for Sonthals were also created, a training school at Sarenga in the district of Bankura was made a central school for the training of Sonthal teachers, and a grant was made for the payment of the fees of Sonthal boys attending ordinary primary schools.

The annual cost of the scheme, which came into operation in 1915-16, is Rs. 10,257. In addition to this, special annual grants aggregating Rs. 9,000 a year are made for Sonthal education.

(B) The education of the children of labourers employed in tea-gardens.—A scheme for the expansion of education among the children of labourers in the tea-gardens of Jalpaiguri was drawn up by the Eastern Bengal and Assam Government in 1910, and ten schools were established by it, which are maintained at an annual cost of Rs. 1,080. In pursuance of this scheme, 30 new schools were built towards the end of last year with a Government grant of Rs. 5,250. The recurring cost of these schools will be Rs. 1,368 a year.

The schools in the tea estates of Darjeeling are mostly under the management of the Scottish Mission, and Government make an annual grant of Rs. 1,300 to them. For some years past Government have also made a grant of Rs. 8,352 per annum to a school for the training of primary school teachers for hill schools, which was enhanced last year by Rs. 840 in order to provide more stipends for gurus in training. A capital grant of Rs 850 was at the same time made for the equipment of the training school.

(C) The Education of Factory Children.—This question was discussed in conference with representatives of the jute mills. The Indian Jute Mills Association was consulted as to the measures that should be taken, and an officer was placed on special duty who prepared a scheme. This scheme, which has been approved by Government, provides for the establishment of 9 schools exclusively for the education of children of mill-hands at an initial cost of Rs. 27,000 and an annual recurring expenditure of Rs. 6,480. The preliminary action necessary for the initiation of the scheme is being taken.

Questions and Answers.

Dacca University scheme.

* 11. (a) Does the modified scheme referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Lyon in his last budget speech differ in any respect from that contained in the Government Resolution published upon the Dacca University Committee's Report of 1912?

(b) If so, are the Government considering the desirability of publishing the modified scheme for the information of the public?

The Hon'ble MR. HORNELL replied :—

"(a) The modified scheme mentioned by the Hon'ble Mr. Lyon in his last Budget speech differs from that referred to in the resolution recorded by Government on the report of the Dacca University Committee. As explained by the Hon'ble Mr. Lyon, the cost of the latter scheme amounts to about 59 lakhs, whereas the cost of the modified scheme is Rs. 38,40,000 and its execution will merely be the preliminary to carrying out the larger scheme recommended by the Dacca University Committee.

(b) The modified scheme provides for the following institutions which will form the nucleus of the University :—

Dacca College;
Jagannath College;
Muhammadan College;
Women's College;
Teachers' College;
Law Department;
Department of Medical Studies; and Department of Islamic Studies.

Other institutions, such as the new College, the Engineering College and the Department of Sanskritic Studies, which are included in the complete scheme, have had to be omitted, owing to the financial position. The construction of a building for the Muhammadan College will be postponed until funds are available for the inauguration of the larger scheme, and it will be accommodated for the present in the old Secretariat building. The Zoological, Physiological and Anatomical laboratories have also been omitted for the present, but it is hoped to find temporary accommodation for them, pending the construction of separate buildings."

Alleged wrongful arrest by an Excise Sub-Inspector.

* 13. (a) Are the Government aware that, on the night of Thursday, the 8th June last, an Excise Sub-Inspector, Mr. Manley, with the help of two other persons, arrested a Madrasi gentleman, Mr. M. P. Menon, in Chunapukur Lane. Calcutta, and on the latter protesting his innocence and inquiring about the cause of his arrest, the said Excise Sub-Inspector assaulted him, causing injuries on his person with a stick and with blows ?

(b) Is it a fact that the Police officer in charge of the Muchipara thana, Mr. S. Chatterjee, after inquiry, found the arrest to have been wrongful and improper ?

(c) Is it also true that he sent Mr. Menon to the Medical College, where his injuries were examined ?

(d) Is it true that on the next day Mr. Menon, upon his appearance before Mr. Bird, the Police Commissioner, was discharged by that officer, who expressed his regret that he was unable to give him any further redress ?

(e) What action (if any) has the Commissioner of Excise taken with regard to the conduct of the Excise Sub-Inspector in this case ?

(f) Are the Government considering the desirability of making an inquiry into the matter ?

The Hon'ble MR. DONALD replied :—

"(a) Government are aware that on the night of Thursday, the 8th June last, an Excise Sub-Inspector, Mr. Manley, with the help of two Sergeants of Police, arrested a Madrasi gentleman, Mr. M. P. Menon, in Chunapukur Lane, Calcutta. It is not the case, and Mr. Menon has not alleged, that he was assaulted by the Excise Sub-Inspector in the manner described. Apparently there was a scuffle in which Mr. Menon assaulted the Sergeant of Police and himself received slight injuries.

(b) The Police Officer in charge of the Muchipara thana found the case to be one of mistaken identity.

(c) Mr. Menon was sent to the Medical College Hospital, where he was attended to. His injuries consisted of 'one small contusion on the inner side of the left side of the upper lip.'

(d) The Deputy Commissioner of Police discharged Mr. Menon. He did not express regret that he was unable to give him any further redress, but informed him that he could take action in Court if he so desired.

(f) Government made an inquiry into the matter as soon as the case was brought to their notice and found that the facts were as follows :—

Mr. Manley, a Sub-Inspector of Excise, proceeded to arrest some cocaine sellers. He arrested one man but was assaulted by a crowd and was compelled to release his prisoner. At this time Mr. Menon, a Madrasi gentleman, was present looking on. The Excise officer went and obtained police assistance. When he returned he found Mr. Menon still standing about and placing his hand on his shoulder said, 'I saw this man there.' It would have been better if Mr. Manley had been more explicit, but Government are satisfied regarding his good faith. As it was, Mr. Menon became indignant, a scuffle ensued, in the course of which Mr. Menon struck the Sergeant with his walking-stick, while he himself was slightly injured as described in the answer to (c). Mr. Menon was taken to the police-station, but inquiry soon showed that although he was present when the cocaine seller was unlawfully rescued from custody, and although he apparently gave no help to the authorities, yet he had taken no part in the rescue. In the circumstances, he was discharged without action being taken in respect of the scuffle between him and the Sergeant."

Alleged wrongful arrest by a Police Inspector.

*14. (a) Have the Government received a memorial from Dr. Narendra Nath Chakravarti, a medical practitioner in Calcutta and an Honorary Magistrate of Serampore, complaining of his alleged wrongful arrest at Howrah on the 17th July, 1915, by Inspector Indra Lalla Sachar of the Government Railway Police, Bandel, and of the acquittal of the said Inspector in a case brought against him for such arrest by the said Dr. Chakravarti in the Court of the Subdivisional Officer of Howrah ?

(c) Is it true that on the 17th September, 1915, the Subdivisional Officer of Howrah at first dismissed the complaint of Dr. Chakravarti under section 203 of the Code of Criminal Procedure on the ground that the District Magistrate of Howrah had already remarked in connection with another case that the conduct of Mr. Sachar in the matter of this arrest was not blameworthy ?

(d) Is it true that the Sessions Judge of Howrah on the 22nd December, 1915, quashed the said order of dismissal under section 203 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and ordered a regular trial of Dr. Chakravarti's case, on the ground that the District Magistrate's remarks in his executive capacity in another case ought not to have influenced the Subdivisional Officer in the disposal of Dr. Chakravarti's complaint ?

(e) Is it true that Dr. Chakravarti's case was then tried by the same Subdivisional Officer who had dismissed it on the 17th September ?

(f) Is it a fact that the Subdivisional Officer found that Inspector Sachar did arrest Dr. Chakravarti on the 17th July, 1915, and further remarked that the accused Inspector should not have denied the fact of arrest and that " he should be sorry for what happened to a well-meaning witness, viz., the complainant " ?

(g) Is it true that after the above finding the Subdivisional Officer acquitted the said Inspector on the 2nd May last ?

(j) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they are considering the desirability of making any inquiries into the matter ?

The Hon'ble MR. KERR replied :—

" A memorial, dated the 15th July, has been received from Dr. Chakravarti and is now under the consideration of Government. Pending a decision on the memorial, Government are not prepared to make a statement regarding the facts of the case."

Proportion of registered medical practitioners to the number of villages in Bengal.

* 18. Will the Government be pleased to state—

(i) the number of registered medical practitioners in Bengal and their proportion to the number of villages therein, and

(ii) the percentage of the entire population of Bengal, who live within the proximity of places where they can obtain the benefits of modern medical and surgical science ?

The Hon'ble MR. DONALD replied :—

"(i) One thousand eight hundred and ninety three medical practitioners have been registered up to date. Calculating according to the number of villages shown in the Census Report for 1911, there is one registered practitioner for every 63 villages.

(ii) There are throughout the Province 602 dispensaries open to the public and it is believed that all the inhabitants of Bengal live within 15 miles of a medical institution of this kind."

By the Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA :—

Demand for medical practitioners in Bengal.

* 19. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether their attention has been drawn to the fact that the number of qualified medical practitioners in Bengal is far below the requisite number ?

(b) Is there any reason for this paucity of qualified doctors ?

(c) Is it a fact that this paucity is due not to the want of demand on the part of the people for medical education, but to the inadequate provision for such education ?

By the Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA—concluded.

(d) Is it a fact that students with much higher University education than before are now found anxious to go in for medical education ?

(e) Has it come to the notice of Government that there is a great and daily-increasing demand for medical education in Bengal?

(g) Are the Government aware of the general feeling that exists that the existing medical institutions, including the newly-started Belgachia Medical College, are not sufficient to meet the demand which now exists for medical education and for the turning out of a large number of qualified doctors ?

(h) Are the Government considering the desirability of starting additional medical schools and colleges in Bengal ?

The Hon'ble MR. DONALD replied :—

19. " (a) The answer is in the affirmative.

(b) The number of institutions providing modern medical education in Bengal is very limited, and the number of applicants for admission far exceeds the accommodation.

(c) The answer is in the affirmative.

(f) The Medical College, Calcutta, which was established in 1836, has been greatly improved and extended during the last 50 years. The Campbell Medical School, Calcutta, was established in 1873 and the Dacca Medical School was established in 1874, and these institutions have also been enlarged and improved from time to time.

(g) The answer is in the affirmative.

(h) The answer is in the affirmative. The Government are not in a position to supply unaided from its revenues medical schools and colleges to meet the demands for medical education. The provision of such facilities must in this country as in all other countries be left in a large measure to private effort."

By the Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA :—

Nomination of members to District and Local Boards.

VII. (a) Is it a fact that the Government have issued a circular to District Officers laying down instructions for the proper representation of the different communities on Municipalities, District and Local Boards, in making nominations for the appointment of members of such bodies ?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the circular ?

(c) If the answer to clause (a) of the question be in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state whether the nominations of members of the following Boards were made in accordance with such instructions, namely :—

(i) the District Boards of Burdwan and Howrah ;

(ii) the Asansol Local Board ;

(iii) the Howrah, Hughli-Chinsura, Serampore, Midnapore and Bankura Municipalities ?

The following answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD was laid on the table :—

"(a) & (b) A copy of this Government's Circular No. 2 T.—M., dated the 2nd August, 1912, is laid on the table.

(c) Appointments to District and Local Boards are made by Commissioners and nominations are not submitted to Government. In the case of the municipalities referred to, the principles laid down in the Government Circular were observed."

Circular No. 2 T.—M., dated Dacca, the 2nd August 1912.

From—THE HON'BLE MR H. L. STEPHENSON, I.C.S., Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department,

To—All Commissioners of Divisions.

I AM directed to address you on the subject of the principles that should be adopted in submitting recommendations to Government for the appointment of municipal commissioners. One-third of the number of such commissioners are under the law to be appointed by Government and it is considered desirable that some indication should be given of the policy Government wish to adopt in making these nominations.

2. The object of retaining these nominations in the hands of Government is to enable them to correct possible inequalities in the operation of the elective system and to provide a necessary element of official experience in the corporation. The only difficulty that is likely to arise is with reference to what should be held to constitute an adequate representation of any particular community or interest and while recognising that circumstances must differ in particular localities and that therefore no hard and fast rule can be enforced, Government desire to indicate generally the criterion which may properly be used to guide the local officers in this matter.

3. For the sake of simplicity the most common case of a municipality inhabited practically entirely by Muhammadans and Hindus may be taken as an illustration. In order to form an opinion as to the proportional representation that each of these communities should rightly be given, statistics should be compiled to show (1) population (a) Muhammadans (b) Hindus; (2) the number of voters (a) Muhammadans (b) Hindus; (3) the total rates paid by (a) Muhammadans (b) Hindus. These figures should be carefully considered by the local officer and, although it is not suggested that the tests thus provided are of equal value, they will serve to correct what might prove an erroneous view of the importance of one community or the other were the population test to be taken by itself. Having thus formed his view as to the proper portion of the representation to which each community is entitled, the local officer should use his nominations to correct any material variation from these proportions which may be shown by the results of the elections, after providing for the necessary element of official experience. After thus utilising his nominations in the first instance, the residue, if any, should be distributed by him among various communities or interests in the way that may appear to him to be most equitable.

4. The case of Local Boards and District Boards is somewhat different and the tests are not so easy to apply, but an endeavour should be made to follow the same principles in dealing with nominations to these bodies also.

Public Works Cess and District Boards.

XIII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing the total Public Works Cess receipts of each District Board in Bengal since the transfer of these receipts to the District Boards ?

Questions and Answers.

By the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR:—concluded.

(b) Will the Government be pleased to state in a tabular form the percentage of the Public Works Cess Receipt spent by each District Board in Bengal on water-supply and rural sanitation since the transfer of those receipts to the District Boards?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state what steps (if any) they are taking to urge the District Boards to increase their expenditure under these two heads?

The following answer by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD was laid on the table:—

"(a) & (b) A statement is laid on the table. District Boards have not been asked to keep any separate account of expenditure out of the grants made to them on the surrender of the public works cess. It is not therefore possible to state the percentage of the public works cess receipts spent on water-supply and rural sanitation. The total amount expended by each District Board in 1913-14 and 1914-15 on water-supply and sanitation (including drainage) are, however, shown in the statement, together with their percentages to the public works cess receipts. Figures for 1915-16 are not yet available.

(c) A copy of this Government Circular No. 2319-23 L.S.-G., dated 25th September, 1915, is laid on the table, together with a copy of this Government Circular No. 388-92 M., dated the 7th February 1914."

Circulars referred to by the Hon'ble MR. DONALD in his answer to Question No. XIII (unstarred) asked by the Hon'ble RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR at the Council Meeting of the 7th August, 1916.

No. 2319-23 L.S.-G., dated Calcutta, the 25th September, 1915.

From—THE HON'BLE MR. K. C. DE, C.I.E., I.C.S., Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Municipal Department,

To—All Commissioners of Divisions.

I AM directed to refer to Government order No. 980 T.—M., dated the 3rd November, 1913, addressed to the Accountant-General, Bengal, a copy of which was forwarded to you with memorandum Nos. 981-85 T.—M., dated the 3rd November, 1913. It was intimated in this letter that the public works cess for the year 1913-14 should be given to District Boards unconditionally, but that the question whether conditions would be imposed in future years or not was under the consideration of Government. Subsequently in Mr. Samman's letter Nos. 388-92 M., dated the 7th February, 1914, to your address, it was stated that His Excellency in Council desired to impress upon the District Boards the importance of setting apart a substantial sum out of the income enhanced by the surrender of the public works cess for the sanitation of villages and small towns, for the improvement of water-supply and for anti-malarial operations.

2. It has been the consistent policy of Government to reserve to itself the powers of ear-marking a portion of the public works cess for the improvement of the water-supply and similar objects. Accordingly in the Bill which was drafted to amend the Bengal Cess Act in order to give legal effect to the localization of the public works cess, Government reserved to itself the power of making rules to prescribe the objects on which this cess should be spent and the manner and proportion in which this expenditure should be distributed. The amendment of the Cess Act has, however, been held in abeyance, pending the consideration of the recommendations of the District Administration Committee. In the meantime the Governor in Council desires to draw the attention of District Boards to the recommendation of that Committee for the utilization of the public works cess in financing unions under the Local Self-Government Act, and to warn them against any increase in establishment or other recurring expenditure which may absorb a large part of the additional income.

3. With regard to the expenditure of the current year in view of the distress in rural area caused by heavy floods and the decline in the price of jute, the Governor in Council desires to impress upon all District Boards the desirability of spending large sums of money in the excavation of tanks in rural areas. The comparative cheapness of labour should make it possible for a much needed improvement in this respect to be effected at a minimum of cost, while under systematic control such works should go far to relieve local distress by affording employment for the labouring classes in want. With this object attention should be paid to the employment, as far as possible, of local rather than imported labour. Wherever the condition of the locality requires, the rule insisting on the contribution of a third of the cost of works on water-supply should be relaxed. In the opinion of His Excellency, this enterprise will afford suitable opportunity to District Boards for the proper utilization of their surplus balances and the additional resources placed at their disposal.

4. I am accordingly to request that the attention of the District Boards in your division may be drawn to this important matter at an early date.

No. 388-92 M., dated Calcutta, the 7th February, 1914.

From—THE HON'BLE MR. H. F. SAMMAN, I.C.S., Secretary to the Government of Bengal, General Department,

To—The Commissioners of the Dacca, Rajshahi, Chittagong, Presidency and Burdwan Divisions.

I AM directed to refer to Government order No. 980 T.—M., dated the 3rd November, 1913, addressed to the Accountant-General, Bengal, copy of which was forwarded to you with memorandum Nos. 981-85 M., dated the 3rd November, 1913. It was stated therein that Government had decided to surrender the public works cess to District Boards unconditionally for the present year. In coming to this decision the Governor in Council was influenced by the consideration that District Boards are in an exceptional position to gauge local requirements, and to determine accordingly to what specific purpose this addition to their income can most profitably be devoted. While leaving the District Boards a free hand in the expenditure of this income for the current year, His Excellency in Council desires to impress upon them the importance of setting apart a substantial sum for the sanitation of villages and small towns, for the improvement of water-supply and for anti-malarial measures.

2. Instructions have already issued regarding the measures to be taken for providing a pure water-supply in the interior. The question to which I am to invite special attention at the present time is the prevention of malaria. The value of quinine as a remedy for this disease has been abundantly proved, but the efficacy of the drug is largely dependent on the adequacy of the quantities in which it is administered. The attention of Government has been directed to the fact that the average quantity of quinine administered to each patient in District Board dispensaries falls far short of the minimum necessary for effective treatment. The Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals has now issued instructions to all Civil Surgeons to see that in future adequate quantities of quinine are given in all cases of malaria. Compliance with these instructions will involve considerable additional expenditure. This is a legitimate charge upon District Boards and should be met without difficulty out of their increased resources. The wide prevalence of malaria in this Presidency and its baneful effects on the people have long been recognized, and the importance of taking adequate measures for the prevention and cure of this disease cannot be overestimated. The Governor in Council trusts that District Boards will realize the pressing necessity of bringing within the reach of the people a mode of treatment pronounced to be effective after continued research by competent persons

3. I am to request that you will communicate the wishes of Government in this matter to all District Boards within your division. A copy of the (c) Will the Government be pleased to state whether a similar step is being taken in regard to any other school, and, if so, which ?

The following answer by the Hon'ble MR. HORNELL was laid on the table :—

"(a) & (b) The question, whether the schools referred to by the Hon'ble Member, which were taken over temporarily by the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam, should continue to be under Government management or should be placed under private management is under the consideration of Government."

(c) The answer is in the negative.

Award of free-studentships to Muhammadan students in high schools.

XXII. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether any circular order has been issued modifying the existing rules as to the award of free-studentships to Muhammadan students in high schools ?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to explain the modification sought to be introduced ?

(c) If the result of the modification is to limit the number of awards to Muhammadan students, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons for the modification ?

The following answer by the Hon'ble MR. HORNELL was laid on the table :—

"(a) Revised rules for the award of free-studentships were issued by this Government in February, 1916.

(b) & (c) There were formerly two sets of rules for West and East Bengal. The rules for West Bengal (as amended in 1911) laid down that the number of free-studentships should not exceed 5 per cent. of a school's enrolment, and Muhammadan pupils were eligible for the free-studentships permissible under this scale. It was also provided that additional free-studentships might be awarded to Muhammadans at the rate of 8 per cent. of the Muhammadan pupils of a school subject to the proviso that not more than 12 free-studentships should be awarded to the Muhammadan pupils in any one school. In Eastern Bengal the previous rules laid down that free-studentships might be awarded to non-Muhammadans at the rate of 5 per cent. of the total school enrolment and to Muhammadans at the rate of 8 per cent. of the total number of pupils on the school rolls. Under the revised rules issued in February, 1916 free-studentships may be awarded to non-Muhammadans at the rate of 5 per cent. of the number of non-Muhammadan pupils in a school and to Muhammadans at the rate of 8 per cent. of the enrolment of Muhammadan pupils, and there is no limitation of the total number which may be awarded to Muhammadans as was the case in the previous West Bengal rules. The revised rules have not yet been brought into force, free-studentships awarded under the previous rules being still held by boys attending the schools. The question whether effect shall be given to the revised rules in their present form is now under the consideration of Government."

The Hackney-carriage (Amendment) Bill, 1916.

Nawab Sir Syed Shams-ul-Huda ; Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

By the Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ :—

XXV. Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table information on the following points :—

(a) the number of political crimes that have taken place in Bengal up to the end of July 1916 ;

(b) the names of the accused in each case, together with their native district ;

(c) whether the accused were tried in any court or courts of law, and if so, with what result ?

The following answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR was laid on the table :—

"(a) The number of cases believed by the Police to be connected with the revolutionary movement, which have occurred during the period from 1905 to the end of July, 1916, is 546.

(b) & (c) The information required is being collected and will be furnished at a subsequent meeting."

LEGISLATIVE BUSINESS.

THE CALCUTTA HACKNEY-CARRIAGE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1916.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 3.

The Hon'ble Nawab Sir Syed Shams-ul-Huda presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Calcutta Hackney-carriage (Amendment) Bill, 1916, and moved that the said Report be taken into consideration.

The motion was put and agreed to.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 4.

The Hon'ble Nawab Sir Syed Shams-ul-Huda moved that the Calcutta Hackney-carriage (Amendment) Bill, 1916, be not further proceeded with.

He said :—

"My Lord, a copy of the report of the Select Committee has been furnished to each Hon'ble Member. The reasons for their recommendation are given in that report to which I have nothing to add."

RAI MAHENDRA CHANDRA MITRA BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I ask your Excellency's permission to make a few general observations on the motion. The provisions of the Hackney-carriage Act have been extended to a few towns in the mufassal. My submission is that the two Acts, the Bengal Municipal Act and the Calcutta Hackney-carriage Act, be taken together for amendment. The definition of the word "Carriage" in the Bengal Municipal Act is defective. So also the definition of the words "Hackney-carriage" in the Hackney-carriage Act. Can the commissioners in a mufassal municipality recover fees for motors and cycles which are used in the mufassal towns ? The Madras High Court held that a cycle comes under the definition of "Carriage". With all respect to the views of the Judges of the Madras High Court, I submit that a cycle does not come under the definition of the word "Carriage". The chapter on "Registration of Carts" ought to be excluded from the Bengal Municipal Act, and incorporated in the Hackney-carriage Act. There is no definition of the word "Cart" in the Hackney-carriage Act. but there is one in the Bengal Municipal Act which is not elastic. My submission is that, if the Hackney-carriage Act be amended and modified hereafter, the provision of the three Acts—the Calcutta Municipal Act, the Bengal Municipal Act and the Hackney-carriage Act—be taken into consideration by the Council.

These are items which I submit demand the consideration of the Council. There should be a harmony between the Municipal Acts and the Hackney-carriage Act. There should be a harmony also in the several sections of the Act dealing with hackney-carriages. I refer to sections 31 and 44 of the Act. I take this opportunity to discuss these matters that in future when the Hackney-carriage Act be amended the Council may notice them."

The Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I beg to support the Hon'ble Mover of the Bill in his motion that the Bill be not proceeded with at present.

There is, however, one matter to which I wish to draw attention. There should be some provision in the Bill which will enable an owner or driver of a hackney-carriage to appeal against the order of the Registering Officer. The Registering Officer under the Calcutta Hackney-carriage Act has got extensive powers over the owners and drivers of hackney-carriages. I cordially associate myself with the Hon'ble Mover in the desirability of the improvement of hackney-carriages ; but, from my experience as a Municipal commissioner, extending over many years, I have found that large powers are vested in the Registering Officer without any appeal to any one. No doubt, in some cases, the Chairman has the right to revise the order of a subordinate officer ; but it is not possible for the Chairman to look into every detail. In many cases the complaints are not heard. Sometimes serious charges are brought against the Registering Officer and it has been found that in some cases there might have been some grounds for complaint. Therefore, my Lord, I think that when this Act is being recast entirely, some provisions should be inserted in the Bill to enable any aggrieved person to submit an appeal to the bench of commissioners. The insertion of such a provision will make the Registering Officer more careful, for his action will be liable to be challenged before a proper a uthority."

The Hon'ble BABU AMBICA CHARAN MAJUMDAR said :—

"My Lord, I rise to a point of order. The proposal of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill is that the Bill be not proceeded with. I do not think that the Hon'ble Member is in order in discussing these matters at this stage."

His Excellency, the PRESIDENT, said :—

"I am afraid that I could not exactly catch what the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur has been saying. but if he has been discussing the principles of the Bill, or if he is suggesting new points for consideration when the Act comes under general amendment, I think he is quite in order."

The Hon'ble RAI RADHA CHARAN PAL BAHADUR said :—

"My Lord, I do not wish to transgress the rules of the Council, but I may say that I believe I am quite in order in making these observations. As the whole Bill is being recast, I deemed it my duty to suggest the insertion of a provision for appeal."

The Hon'ble MR. EDEN said :—

"My Lord. I concur with the recommendation of the Select Committee on the Calcutta Hackney-carriage (Amendment) Bill, 1916, and with the motion of the Hon'ble Member in charge of this Bill, that the Bill be not further proceeded with.

When this Amending Bill came before this Council a month ago, my feeling was that the City of Calcutta had outgrown the provisions of the Calcutta Hackney-carriage Act of 1891 and that greater alterations in the existing Act were required to deal with the present-day condition of the hackney-carriage service than could be given effect to in an Amending Bill.

But I considered that for many years past the Calcutta Corporation had been pleading for the additional powers and more effective control which it was proposed to give them by this Amending Bill, and I hoped that, if this Bill was passed into Law, that it would serve as a temporary expedient until something greater and more complete could be brought forward which would deal with the matter not only as it exists at the present day but as it may be expected to exist in the near future.

The Hon'ble Member in charge of this Bill has not told us this morning when the new Consolidating Bill referred to in the Report of the Select Committee is to be brought forward, but I have been informed and I have read in the newspapers that a new Bill is to be prepared at once, and that it is intended to bring it before this Council during the cold-weather session.

It is now three years, my Lord, since the draft of this Amending Bill was submitted to the Corporation of Calcutta for their opinion and criticism; but it is 10 years since the Corporation first began to move in the matter and to press for the greater powers it was intended to give them under this Amending Bill, and, in view of the long time it has taken to bring this Amending Bill before this Council, I may be permi ted to doubt whether it is possible to adequately deal with the larger measure in so short a time as I have mentioned.

I wish now to recommend that, when a new Bill to deal with the hackney-carriage service is taken up, the desirability of enlarging its scope by consolidating under one Bill the whole of the vehicular traffic of Calcutta may be considered.

The introduction of the motor taxi-cab has already had an effect on the horse-drawn ticca gharry service; the first- and second-class ticca gharry is gradually giving way to the more modern taxi-cab and in course of time I confidently expect to see even the third-class gharry (with its special fare arrangements for carrying a number of passengers at so much a head, and which fills a very important requirement for certain classes of the people) give way to a form of motor-carriage plying for hire on similar terms: and I do not think there can be any doubt that in course of time the motor-lorry will, to a considerable extent, supersede the bullock-cart.

I have only touched very lightly on this matter on this occasion. But I take the opportunity of expressing an opinion which is held by many who are greatly interested in preserving and increasing the amenities of the City of Calcutta (in any consideration of which the question of an adequate and suitable service of public conveyance plying for hire must be looked upon as a matter of much importance) that it is very desirable that the whole of the hackney-carriage services of Calcutta, whether horse-drawn or mechanically-propelled, and including the bullock-cart, the motor-lorry, the palanquin and the rickshaw should be placed under one controlling authority, and I hope, my Lord, that when framing the new Bill this matter may be taken into consideration."

The Hon'ble NAWAB SIR SYED SHAMS-UL-HUDA said :—

"My Lord, as I have already stated, the reasons for this motion are given in the report of the Select Committee. But I have been asked to state when the Consolidating Bill is likely to come before the Council. As regards that, I may state that the whole of the Act was considered by the Select Committee and a large number of suggestions were made for improving the existing provisions, but it was found that if effect were to be given to them, it would be necessary to refer the Bill again to the Government of India. The Select Committee thought that it would be better if, instead of going up to the Government of India with a few more suggestions for amendment, the whole Bill were recast and a Consolidating Bill framed. The Legislative Secretary undertook to take this up almost immediately, and when this is done it would perhaps be possible to present the Bill before the Council in November next. The question of a Consolidating Bill was discussed many years ago and the concensus of opinion was in its favour. An objection was then taken by the Legislative Department that as the new Municipal Bill was likely to be presented in Council shortly, and as the language of the Calcutta Hackney-carriage Act was taken from the Municipal Act which was going to be repealed soon, it was undesirable to have a Consolidating Bill, the language of which would be thrown out of gear when the new Municipal Bill was passed into law. It was solely on account of this objection that instead of a Consolidating Bill we took up the Amending Bill. I, however, think that it will not be impossible to frame a Consolidating Bill safeguarding against the objection taken by the Legislative Department and the difficulties which, it was anticipated, would arise when the new Municipal Bill was passed. For these reasons and for the reasons which are stated in the report of the Select Committee it has been thought desirable to drop the Amending Bill. One of the points, for instance, discussed by the Select Committee was whether the rickshaws would not be brought under the Act. This was altogether a new matter and various other suggestions of the same kind were also considered by the Select Committee, and it was decided not to proceed with the Amending Bill. I have no doubt that all these changes will take some time, but we thought that it would have taken equally long time if we proceeded with the Amending Bill instead of a Consolidating Bill.

As regards the various suggestions which have been made, including those regarding the inclusion of motor-cars and bullock-carts in the Act, also so far as motor-cars are concerned, they are governed by a different Act, and the question of bringing them under the Calcutta Hackney-carriage Act, I confess, has not been considered. Now that the proposal has been made, we will see whether it would be possible to do so. It was decided after consultation with the authorities concerned that the hackney-carriage traffic should continue to be regulated by the Calcutta Municipality, whereas the regulation of motor-cars rests with the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta. Whether it would be desirable to bring both under the same control is a question which, having regard to all that has been said, will be considered before the Consolidating Bill is placed before the Council.

There are various other suggestions made by Hon'ble Members. As regards these, I may say that many of them do not arise immediately on my motion; but I will give this assurance to my Hon'ble friends that all they have said will be taken into consideration and, if desirable, will be incorporated in the Consolidating Bill when it is drafted.

One point, which was considered of very great importance and which more than any other led to the dropping of the Bill, was the question of separate registration for horses and carriages. It was pointed out that, although carriages and horses were registered together, a practice had grown up, and it was quite a harmless practice, for one person to own a carriage and for another person to own the horses. Besides, same horses were not always harnessed to the same carriage. It was thought that, if we insisted on having the same registration for carriages and horses, it would lead to very grave inconvenience and it was considerd more convenient that horses and carriages should be passed separately. This argument was pressed on us very strongly and it was thought that this was a suggestion well worthy of being adopted. On this ground also we decided on dropping the Amending Bill."

The motion was put and agreed to.

RESOLUTIONS

Under the Rules for the Discussion of Matters of General Public Interest.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 5.

The Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a section in Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, and also Vernacular Survey classes, be re-opened in connection with the Dacca School of Engineering.

He said :—

"My Lord, it was only about a year ago that the Hon'ble Nawab Syed Nawab Ali Chaudhury and myself drew the attention of the Government to the question raised in this resolution by interpellations and also by observations in the course of the last Budget debate in Calcutta. The statements made by various members of your Excellency's Government have since been very carefully considered by leading men in Eastern Bengal, and I do not think I use the language of exaggeration when I say that there is a growing feeling of dissatisfaction at the action that was taken in removing the Survey classes from Dacca and in abolishing the Electrical and Mechanical classes attached to the School of Engineering, which, to say the least, has deprived this city of two of its most useful educational institutions. It is therefore in deference to a very widespread public feeling that I bring up this resolution this morning for the consideration of the Council, and I can assure your Excellency's Government that the recommendation urged by this resolution has the full support, not merely of the citizens of Dacca, but also of every leading man of Eastern Bengal.

My Lord, the resolution divides itself into two parts and, for the convenience of discussion, I will have to take up the two portions separately. I will begin with the one regarding the Survey classes.

The Survey School at Dacca was established in 1877, along with similar schools at Cuttack and Patna, in pursuance of a very generous policy which aimed at giving the people of Eastern Bengal some education in Survey. These institutions worked independently at first, and after about 17 years of useful work the Dacca Survey School was affiliated to the Sibpur Engineering College in the year 1894. The Dacca Survey School was then converted into an Engineering School and called the Ashanulla School of Engineering. In 1905, the Survey classes were attached to that School and continued to be so till the year 1914. It is unnecessary at the present moment to discuss the course of instructions that was given when the Survey classes were at Dacca. It will suffice for my purpose to say that the course of training that was given and the work that was done by the Survey classes had been most uniformly satisfactory. In 1914, the Survey classes were abolished or, to put the matter more correctly, they were transferred from Dacca to Mainamati in Comilla. In answer to a question that I put in Council on the 6th of March last, the Hon'ble Mr. De said that the reasons of this transfer were the want of adequate accommodation at Dacca and the advantages afforded by the new school at Comilla in point of site and facilities for training.

This was the answer that was then given, and it was supplemented by the observation made by the Hon'ble Mr. Lyon in the course of the Budget debate, when he practically repeated the reasons that were previously given by the Hon'ble Mr. De. We may therefore take it that these were the cheif reasons which necessitated the transfer. In order to judge whether the recommendation made by my resolution for the re-opening of the Survey classes is justified or not, we will have to examine the reasons a little more carefully. The first reason that was given was the want of adequate accommodation at Dacca. In the course of the observations made by the Hon'ble Mr. Lyon. we were told that it was never the intention of the Government to belittle the claims of Eastern Bengal and that a sum of five lakhs of rupees had been allotted for rendering the School of Engineering worthy of Dacca as the capital city of Eastern Bengal. No reference was made to the survey classes particularly. But I take it that out of the five lakhs allotted for the improvement of the School of Engineering a certain portion could easily be reserved for the Survey classes. And, if it could not be reserved out of that sum, it could at least have been reserved out of other allotments at the disposal of Government. It is well known that a great deal of expenditure has been incurred at Mainamati. Besides the capital expenditure, Government have to incur a recurring expenditure of several thousands of rupees a year.

So far as the financial aspect of the question is concerned, we are confronted with this fact that while, certainly according to their own statement, Government have made a saving of Rs. 2,600 under the capital head, they have to incur a recurring expenditure of about Rs. 16,000 a year. I confess I am not a financial expert, but I am not inclined to accept the proposition that it is financially advisible to save Rs. 2.600 at the expense of Rs. 16,000.

The next reason given by Government is as regards the difference in educational status between the Survey and the Engineering institutions. I think I can fairly say that so far as the question whether the Survey classes should exist side by side with the Engineering class is concerned, there is at least a difference of opinion between the experts. As to this part of the question I certainly speak subject to correction, because I have found opinions expressed to the contrary. But so far as the other classes are concerned, which were started simultaneously with the Survey class at Dacca, I mean the classes at Cuttack and Patna. they still continue to exist side by side with the Engineering College. and here also at Dacca they were so placed for the last 15 years, and I do not think that any educational experts, or those who are entitled to speak with authority on the question, had any reason to find fault with this system.

The third reason given by Government for the transfer was the advantage afforded in point of site and facility of training. So far as the advantage of site is concerned, it matters little whether the Survey classes are situated at Dacca or in the Lalmaihills. There are so many suitable sites in Dacca itself that Government could easily have chosen one if they were so minded. Leaving the point of site, I will deal with the question of efficiency necessitating the transfer. It was perhaps the intention of Government to give the boys in the new schools at Mainamati a course of training which would be better than what they used to receive at Dacca, and I have got it from one of the Government resolutions that one of the intentions was to fit the boys for employment in traverse survey. The transfer. therefore, whether it was advisable or not, must be judged by the results that have been obtained, and it will not take me long to convince your Excellency's Government that, judged by these results, the transfer has not certainly been justified. I find that a Committee was appointed, consisting of the Principal of the Sibpur Engineering College, the Director of Surveys and the Head Master of the Dacca School of Engineering, some time in 1914, to inquire into the Survey education in Bengal. They were asked to draw up a revised syllabus for Survey classes, to suggest the way in which the classes were to be held, to advise generally as to staff and other details and to make a proposal for periodical inspection and examinations.

The Government recorded a resolution on the Committee's report and it will serve my purpose for the present if I read two paragraphs of the Government Resolution. We read that the 'Committee's report was received during the year and is under the consideration of the Government. Several students from the Government Survey School at Mainamati near Comilla were provided with appointments in the Bengal traverse survey party in the cold weather of 1914-15.'

'The Governor in Council regrets to observe that their work was not always satisfactory and trusts that the Principal will be able to convince his students that the practical work in the field is the object for which they undergo training. With the improvements in methods of teaching lately introduced it is hoped that the School will ultimately be a reliable recruting ground for traverse surveyors of the Department and will also be of use in the training of Collectorate kanungos.'

So that within a year of the transfer, Government themselves had recorded a condemnation by acknowledging that the work done by the students in that School had not always been satisfactory. In the report of the Bengal Survey by Major Hirst a similar remark is made, and I will read one sentence: 'A majority of the ex-students who have been given Government service were not a success.' This being the condition of things as regards the Mainamati School, it is necessary for us to see the kind of work that was done by the Dacca students and how far it compared with the work done by the Mainamati students. As far as I have been able to gather, the general consensus of opinion has been that the work done by the Dacca students had always been satisfactory; at any rate no adverse opinion has ever been recorded about them. I find also an expression of opinion by Captain Clayton in which he says that the work done by the students of the Dacca Survey classes was found to be first class, in fact he had never found any better. I only wish to refer in passing to the present teaching staff in Mainamati in order to convince your Excellency's Council that the step that has been taken has not only not been justified by the results but is not at all satisfactory. There are three teachers in that institution, including the Principal—I understand the latter does not do any teaching work. As regards the other two, the Head Master and the Second Master, they are both ex-students of the Dacca Survey School and before the creation of the Mainamati School they served as subordinate teachers elsewhere. I would not therefore wonder at the results of the Mainamati School. Secondly, I am informed that students with inferior initial qualifications are being admitted into the Mainamati School. It is therefore no wonder again that after they have received their training at the Mainamati School that, when they are turned out into the world, the work that they do happens to be of an inferior quality.

I have so far dealt with the reasons that have been given by Government for the transfer of the Survey classes from Dacca to Mainamati. As regards the want of a suitable site, I have already observed that that is an objection which cannot be raised, as suitable sites are easily obtainable here in Dacca as in Mainamati. As regards the financial aspect of the question, it is evident that far from resulting in economy, the Mainamati School has been extremely expensive and as regards the kind of work that is done by that school and the class of students that are turned out, it has been proved from the statistics of the last two years that the Mainamati students were much inferior to the students turned out from the Dacca Survey School. These observations show that this transfer has not been justified and has resulted in a serious inconvenience to the students both as regards the kind of education they receive and also as regards housing and other accommodation necessary for the students to attend the classes. In Dacca, there are many generously-disposed persons who used to give free boarding and lodging to the students. At Mainamati there is a residential institution which costs the students Rs. 12-8 each, and after they have spent all this money the employment which they can secure seldom gives them more than Rs. 25 a month. It may be an arguable point whether it is desirable to make education cheap, but so far as this preliminary survey education is concerned there is some advantage in giving rudimentary education in survey to persons who have not got the means to take advantage of the elaborate system of training in higher classes in engineering which necessitates a large expenditure of money. It is well known that, apart from the employment which these persons can get under Government, the big landowners and zamindars occasionally require the services of amins, and it is under this large class of zamindars in Bengal that the Dacca students used to get employment and used to do a lot of useful work. I am informed that several students of the Dacca Survey School were employed by the Tata Steel Works at Bombay, and the work they did was very satisfactory which enabled them to secure more lucrative appointments there. Against this we have this fact that during the last three years the Mainamati School has turned out about 70 students, about 50 per cent. of whom have failed to secure any employment. The position therefore is this that, after spending Rs. 12-8 each per month, a large majority of students fail to secure any employment whatsoever, and if they do get any employment it enables them to earn a paltry sum of about Rs. 20 or Rs. 25 a month. I think, therefore, that I can fairly say that, judged by all tests, the transfer has not been justified and it is only but fair to this city and to Eastern Bengal that the Survey classes be re-opened in the Dacca School of Engineering. It may be said, as I was reminded by the Hon'ble Mr. Lyon, that Eastern Bengal has not been deprived of the Survey classes because they are still being held in one of the Eastern Bengal towns. It is quite true that Comilla has a claim to be reckoned as one of the important divisional centres and it is certainly an advantage to the people of the Chittagong Division if they have a Survey class at Comilla; but if Government ever accept the proposition that Survey classes are at all of any importance, if Government agree with the general popular view that some education of survey should be given in view of the persistent cry in this country for technical education, if Government agree in the main with the principle that, so far as possible, some sort of education should be given in surveying and engineering, I think the claims of any town in East Bengal should not be advanced at the sacrifice of the interests of Dacca. Dacca should have its Survey classes, and it will be all the more creditable to Government if they can open Survey classes in other important towns of East Bengal. Our objection is not that Comilla has got the Survey classes but that Dacca has been deprived of an educational institution which had been doing such useful work for more than a quarter of a century. Let us have a Survey class at Dacca and, if possible, let us have half a dozen more Survey classes for Eastern Bengal.

The second portion of my resolution refers to the re-opening of the School where mechanical and electrical engineering used to be taught in connection with the Dacca School of Engineering. The reason given in answer to a question put by me in the Council on 6th March last was that there was small demand for men with college qualifications in these subjects, and the existence at the Sibpur College of a much larger staff and better equipment for instruction.

My Lord, I am afraid that the mention of the existence of a similar college at Sibpur is likely to raise a sort of bitter controversy between East and West Bengal. I do not know if my Hon'ble friends from West Bengal will at all wish to press the claims of East Bengal in preference to those of West Bengal or whether they will pardon me when I plead the cause of Dacca, irrespective of the condition of things existing at the Sibpur College. There can be no doubt that the Sibpur College is an extremely efficient institution and has now attained such a state of excellence as can, with difficulty, be equalled by any new institution which could now be opened at Dacca. Attempts should be made not to abolish the classes at Dacca because there happen to be similar and better classes elsewhere. Attempts should be made to introduce improvements here so that students may have the alternative of either proceeding to Sibpur or continuing their studies here, as it may best suit them. It is well known that there are various disadvantages in the way of students of Eastern Bengal proceeding to West Bengal for the purpose of their education to any educational institution there. In the first place, Eastern Bengal is really so cut off from Western Bengal that the students from Eastern Bengal find it extremely inconvenient to leave their homes and pursue their studies under conditions which, to say the least, are somewhat dissimilar from Eastern Bengal conditions. I will not go into the details of this point, but it is a matter of common knowledge that parents and guardians, if they can find equal facilities or even slightly inferior facilities somewhere in Eastern Bengal, are hardly willing to send their sons for education to any institution in Western Bengal. I know, my Lord, that I have come to the end of the time allotted to me and, with these words, I beg to commend my resolution to the acceptance of the Council."

The Hon'ble BABU BHABENDRA CHANDRA RAY said :—

"My Lord, the motion which has been brought forward by my Hon'ble friend divides itself into two parts. In so far as it relates to the opening of classes in mechanical and electrical engineering at Dacca, everyone who has the cause of technical education at heart must be in sympathetic accord with the Hon'ble Mover. As has been pointed out, it is no new boon or concession that is being demanded of your Lordship's Government to-day. Classes in mechanical and electrical engineering, teaching up to the foreman mechanic standard, were opened in 1913 at Sibpur and Dacca simultaneously, in pursuance of a scheme for completely bifurcating the Civil and the Mechanical electrical courses from the 3rd-year class. Before this, students who were trained in a four years' course of Civil Engineering used to be given a thin veneer of electrical and mechanical training at the end of the period. The defects of this system, which turned out but indifferent mechanical and electrical engineers, were only too apparent. The new scheme was given effect to as a remedy, leading to the establishment of exclusive classes in electrical and mechanical subjects from the beginning of the 3rd-year class. But, my Lord, while the Sibpur classes are going on—though in the shape of a three-years' course—those at Dacca have been recently closed after an existence of barely two years. The reasons that were assigned for this step, in reply to certain questions in this Council, were the small demand for men with 'college qualifications' in these subjects, and the existence at the Sibpur College of a much larger staff and better equipment for instruction. The Hon'ble Mr. Lyon in his last Budget speech in a manner added two more grounds to this list, namely, that Government had discovered that the very large expenditure involved in the maintenance of this branch would be unwarranted at the present moment, and that the classes had not proved very popular.

It will be seen that many of these difficulties were not such as could not have been foreseen at an earlier stage. However that may be, let us examine these reasons and find out if they justify the abolition of the classes at Dacca. In regard to the question of demand, I am not quite clear as to the meaning of the term 'college qualifications,' for the classes that have been discontinued taught merely up to the foreman-mechanic standard

My Lord, the alleged insufficiency of demand in this line is not a new theme in our country. It came up for examination from time to time, and culminated in a special inquiry by Lieutenant-Colonel (now General) Atkinson and Mr. Dawson as to how technical institutions could be brought into closer touch and more practical relation with employers of labour. But nowhere will your Lordship find it stated that there is actually no field for employment of engineering labour in India. On the other hand, it is a matter of common knowledge that the railways and other engineering concerns in India do employ a large army of engineers of different grades ; only the boys turned out by the Indian institutions do not seem to be quite favourites with the master-employers. Thirty years ago, Mr. Spring, in his note on the Sibpur College, stated that he knew as a fact that but few of the largest class of employers of such labour—Engineers-in-Chief and Managers of Railways—were even aware of the existence of the College. Much improvement has undoubtedly taken place in this matter since this was written. And now we have it on the authority of the Atkinson-Dawson report that the outlook for Indians is generally hopeful provided the necessity for preliminary practical training is fully realised. Our Hon'ble friend, Sir Rajendra Nath Mukerjea, of whose presence here we are so very glad, stated on a recent occasion, 'I am confident that there is nothing inherent in our blood which permanently disqualifies us from becoming sound and practical engineers.' My Lord, there are people who suspect that the prejudice against Indian engineers may have been to a little extent tinged by racial bias. And some would even go to the length of thinking that Government have not done all that they could do to remove this handicap.

It is refreshing to turn from the gloomy official statements in Bengal to the inspiring address recently given to the students of the Roorkee College by the Hon'ble Mr. Wood, Chief Engineer of the United Provinces, in which he stated that the scope for engineers in India, no matter in which branch they have undergone their specialised training, is in the near future likely to be immense. In commenting upon this pronouncement, a leading Anglo-Indian daily has expressed itself in the following terms :—

'It is unlikely that many trained engineers will be forthcoming from Europe when the period of post-war reconstruction begins.' 'India', continues this journal, 'will find herself in large part dependent on her own resources, and if her new educated class makes the most of its opportunities and shows a greater inclination than at present to choose a practical form of occupation it should find abundant scope for its ambitions.'

As to whether there is a sufficient demand for boys who used to receive their training in the mechanical and electrical classes at Dacca, there seems to be some difference of opinion among the authorities themselves. I find that on this point the Hon'ble Mr. Lyon is contradicted by Principal Heaton who, at the last prize distribution at Sibpur—which was presided over by no less a personage than the Hon'ble Sir R. N. Mukerjea—stated that 'there is an increasing demand for students of the mechanical and electrical sides.'

From the report which Mr. Heaton presented on the occasion it appears that in the year 1915, though 23 candidates were at first admitted in the three years' course in mining, mechanical and electrical engineering in the apprentice department at Sibpur, only 9 were presented for the College examination at the end of the first year, of which 7 ultimately remained in the electrical and mechanical classes. When we remember that there were 4 boys in 1913 and 5 in 1914 in the first-year class at Dacca, Sibpur does not appear to be in a position of much comparative advantage. If, however, the classes at Dacca are taken to have been unpopular, there may have been something in the scheme of studies to account for it. It is to be remembered that a new three-years course has been substituted at Sibpur since 1915 for the four-years standard which was brought into existence in 1913. And we have the statement of Mr. Heaton that if this three-years' course had not been started, the mechanical and electrical classes at Sibpur would be nearly empty.

So, if the old course has proved unpopular at Dacca it has proved equally, if not more, unpopular at Sibpur. And it would be doing bare justice to the institution at Dacca to let it have the benefit of the new system which has succeeded at Sibpur.

Coming to the quality of teaching at Dacca, if it is found to be not up to the mark, it certainly needs improvement. As it is, Government have acknowledged that the results shown in the electrical and mechanical departments at Dacca were satisfactory, considering the limitations in staff and equipment. I am fully conscious that improvement in the quality of education no doubt involves an increase in expenditure. If, as the Hon'ble Mr. Lyon says, the classes had to be discontinued because the large expenditure involved would be unwarranted at the present moment, I think they should be re-opened as soon as our finances are restored to equilibrium.

If, again, we are agreed as to the utility of these classes, why not find the wherewithal by retrenchments in other directions? And if we are in a real mood for effecting economies, we have only to turn our eyes to that costly hobby of a school at the Mainamati Hill, which does not appear to have succeeded as an experiment. This brings me to the second part of the resolution. My Lord, I think that the Hon'ble Mover has made out a strong case for the re-opening of Survey classes at Dacca and the speedy abolition of the School at the Mainamati Hills. And I have no doubt the resolution, which has been so ably moved by my Hon'ble friend, will commend itself to the acceptance of the House."

The Hon'ble MR. RASUL said :—

"My Lord, the resolution as it stands would have had my full and entire support, but unfortunately my Hon'ble friend has made an indirect attack on the School at Mainamati in the district of Tippera. If my Hon'ble friend had confined himself to this resolution I do not think I should have inflicted a speech on the Council, but as a member representing the Chittagong Division and myself coming from the district of Tippera, I cannot but enter my protest against what my Hon'ble friend has said with regard to the School at Mainamati. The wording of the Resolution is that vernacular Survey classes be re-opened in connection with the Dacca School of Engineering. Be it so. Let us have classes at Dacca and let us have classes everywhere else, but I submit, my Hon'ble friend has not made out any case against the school already in existence now at Mainamati. And what are his reasons ? As far as I could gather, one of his reasons was that students with very little qualifications are admitted to that School. Well, this is not the fault of Comilla or Mainamati, or if that is so, it must at once be remedied. His next reason is that 50 per cent. of the successful candidates there have failed to secure employment. That is a misfortune we all deplore, but I submit that that also does not go against the School there. My Hon'ble friend has also said that the School is expensive. Well, it may be so, but when the Government decided to transfer the School from here to Comilla, it was on the ground that they could get more extensive fields for work there. That was certainly a recommendation. Of course, during the last few years, the success has not been as great as the Government might have expected, but I submit that that is no reason why the School should be removed from there to Dacca or anywhere else. I therefore submit, let there be as many Survey schools as possible in East Bengal, but let the existing School also stand at Comilla. If my Hon'ble friend desires that the vernacular Survey classes at Comilla should be abolished there to be re-opened at Dacca, then I am against that part of his Resolution. So far as the other portion of the Resolution, I am in full sympathy with him. My Hon'ble friend has referred to the Sibpur College. I do not want to raise questions about the claims of East Bengal and West Bengal. It cannot be doubted that it is most expensive for East Bengal students to go to Sibpur from different parts of East Bengal to prosecute their studies in mechanical and electrical engineering. Therefore, if these classes are re-opened at Dacca, it will be a distinct boon to East Bengal. And in some future time, we may claim to get a full-fledged mechanical and electrical engineering college here. With these observations, and with the reservation mentioned by me, I support the resolution of my Hon'ble friend."

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY said :—

"My Lord, I should like to speak on the second part of the Resolution first, viz., the opening of the vernacular Survey classes in connection with the Dacca School of Engineering. I think my friend has done well in bringing forward this Resolution. I have been informed that the Survey school which has been opened at Tippera, admits only a limited number of students, that it is expensive to Government, it is out of the reach of students for whom it is intended, and that it has not altogether proved a satisfactory institution. In these days when there is cadastral survey going on all over the country, when record-of-rights has been initiated in several of the districts of this Presidency, we want men with some knowledge of surveying not only to assist the Settlement Officers but to guard the interests of both landlords and tenants. It is therefore necessary that facilities should be given to the people of this Presidency to have as many surveyors as possible. And it is not necessary to have a knowledge of the English language to make a competent surveyor, such surveyors as are required every day by zamindars and the public, though I must admit that a knowledge of the English language by a surveyor adds to his usefulness.

I shall now deal with the first part of this Resolution, viz., the re-opening of a section in mechanical and electrical engineering in connection with the Dacca School of Engineering. On receipt of the Resolution of my Hon'ble friend I went to the Sibpur Engineering College and was shewn over the mechanical and electrical engineering departments by the Principal. He informed me that all facilities existed for mechanical and electrical engineering in the institution, that it was well equipped and very well staffed. It is probably the best polytechnic institution in India. I was informed that it could compare very favourably with the best polytechnic college in England. It is not only tables and chairs but steam-launches with all their mechanical appliances, and even shells for the battlefields of Europe which are being made there. I saw these with my own eyes and was highly elated with what I saw. I was told by the Principal of the College that the mechanical and electrical engineering departments were open to all boys who had passed the Matriculation examination, that the schooling fee was only Rs. 3 per month and messing and other charges Rs. 11. Some of the professors were men of superior attainments. So at an expense of only Rs. 14 per month you can have first-class teaching in a well-known college. I was moreover informed that there is room for 90 boys in that department. But the number of students is only 30. Government have been spending Rs. 3,000 per month for keeping up this department alone or rather Rs. 100 per month for each boy. We see that in point of efficiency, cheapness and accommodation there exists a model institution within the same Presidency and that at not an out-of-the-way place. And I was informed that the Engineering College with the mechanical and electrical engineering departments were developing fast. I therefore put it to my friend, the Mover of this Resolution and to the people of this place, why should not the students of Eastern Bengal make the best use of an institution which I think is not and has not as yet been fully taken advantage of, an institution where you can have a higher standard of teaching in mechanical and electrical engineering than in any other part of India? There are not such facilities in Dacca as in Sibpur or in Calcutta for the study of mechanical and electrical engineering. If the boys want to confine their knowledge and practical training to the making of chairs, stools and tables or repairs of electric fans and lights, that is quite a different thing. If, however, my friend wants to have a standard of practical training under superior environments, I think the boys ought to be sent to Sibpur or Calcutta, for these places have special advantages which Dacca has not and cannot have. There is very little in the shape of mechanical engineering at Dacca. We have got in or near Sibpur, jute mills and cotton mills, railway workshops, the docks, the iron foundries and several firms of mechanical engineering, such as those of Burn & Co., Messrs. Martin & Co., John King & Co., Jessop & Co., the Calcutta Electric Supply Co. and numerous others. These are places where one can get practical experience of mechanical and electrical engineering after finishing one's studies in the Sibpur Engineering College. We cannot hope to acquire the knowledge which we can acquire at Sibpur anywhere else. Little learning is a dangerous thing, and it is useless to learn a smattering in these subjects and come out of the college with a knowledge which cannot prove to be much useful or be of much benefit either to the student or to the public. In these days of hard competition and survival of the fittest, every attempt should be made to give our boys the best training possible. We should therefore try to utilise the present institution at Sibpur. There cannot be efficiency when there is a lower standard of teaching.

Resolution.

Babu Surendra Nath Ray; Sir Rajendra Nath Mookerji.

The Hon'ble BABU SURENDRA NATH RAY—concluded.

"I would therefore ask my Hon'ble friend to consider these questions before pressing this part of the Resolution. I am not at all opposed to the Resolution. Far from it. I should like to see the means of acquiring knowledge, the agencies for imparting knowledge increase throughout the length and breadth of the land, so that in the words of His Majesty the King-Emperor. 'the homes of His Indian subjects may be brightened and their labours sweetened by the spread of knowledge, with all that follows in its train—a higher level of thought, of comfort and of health.' But we must try to look at a question from all points of view."

The Hon'ble SIR RAJENDRA NATH MOOKERJI said :—

"My Lord, I yield, I hope, to no one in my earnest desire for the encouragement and spread of technical education in India and particularly in Bengal. But I am sorry that to-day I am in the anomalous position of having to oppose that part of the resolution moved by my Hon'ble friend Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq which relates to the re-opening of a section in Mechanical and Electrical Engineering in connection with the Dacca School of Engineering. I may be permitted to explain my reasons, briefly, for taking up such a position. Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, broadly speaking, may be subdivided into two classes, the higher and lower. There is no institution, as far as I am aware, in India suitable and properly equipped for imparting education in the higher branch. So far as the lower branch is concerned. there are several institutions in India such as in Bombay, Roorkee and Sibpur, although the equipment, workshops, and laboratories, even in these institutions, are not all that can be desired. The primary and essential part in the education of this class of mechanical and electrical engineers consists in the practical training of the students which can only be properly imparted in institutions where there are large, well-equipped laboratories and workshops. The theoretical part of the education of these students, I venture to think, is only comparatively of secondary importance. In England and other parts of Europe, lads for this class of engineering, generally, I may say almost universally, leave school at the age of 15 or 16 and enter suitable workshops as apprentices and there work like ordinary workmen from eight to ten hours daily for a period of three to five years. They acquire their theoretical knowledge by attending evening classes and on the Continent they also attend Sunday classes. The consequence is that these youths, when they complete their apprenticeship and leave the workshops, are well suited for the posts of assistants in factories or other engineering workshops and are generally successful in their career. Apprentices who do not show any aptitude for mechanical training are soon weeded out in the workshops and adopt other walks of life more suited to their natural inclination and ability. Unfortunately in India, particularly in Bengal, boys are put into engineering schools or colleges often against their own inclination or aptitude and most of them after spending three to five years in a college get through their examinations, but the majority of them are failures as practical mechanics owing to their not having had a thorough grounding in the practical side of their profession. To remedy this defect in the education and practical training of students in the mechanical and electrical engineering classes, a proposal was made at a meeting of the Governing Body of the Sibpur Engineering College held last month under the presidency of the Hon'ble Mr. Lyon, the Vice-President of this Council, by Mr. Harnett, Locomotive and Carriage Superintendent, Eastern Bengal Railway, Kanchrapara, to the effect that he would be willing to admit a certain number of students, both Anglo-

Indian and Indian, in the workshops at Kanchrapara for practical training, and he suggested that after a course of three or four years' training at the workshops these lads should be admitted to the Sibpur Engineering College for their theoretical education for a further period of two years—making five or six years' training in all. It is hoped that they will then be able to take their place successfully side by side with mechanics who have had an English training. As some doubt was expressed as to the sufficiency of the elementary education of Indian lads, at the age of 15 or 16 years, a suggestion was made that if such an arrangement were made whether it would not be practicable to impart theoretical education as well as practical training simultaneously, say, 4 days' practical and 2 days' theoretical. A sub-committee was appointed, consisting of three experts in technical education, to report on the expediency and feasibility of such a scheme. My Lord, it is therefore abundantly clear that the Governing Body of the Sibpur College, composed of distinguished educationalists and experts in technical education, having a staff of technical professors with an aggregate pay of Rs. 2,800 per mensem and with fairly extensive workshops and laboratories, do not consider the present methods of educating lads in the electrical and mechanical branches of engineering as satisfactory, and have appointed a sub-committee to suggest means to improve the present methods of education with the object of making the training more practical.

My Lord, it is not unknown to you and to the members of this Council, including my Hon'ble friend the Mover of this resolution, that it is a standing reproach that Bengali students of mechanical and electrical engineering are not, generally speaking, suitable for the work for which their education and training is supposed to fit them. The reasons for this, as far as I have been able to ascertain, are due to causes beyond the control of the students themselves. First, as I have already stated, they are pressed by parents and guardians to take up a career for which they have no inclination or aptitude and, secondly, the method of education in these branches of engineering compels them to give more time to the theoretical part of their education than to practical training. It should be the aim of all well-wishers of our students to try and remove the drawbacks of the existing system rather than add to them, as would certainly be the case if more small schools of engineering are opened or re-opened. Such schools can only give a very imperfect education and very little practical training, and would in many cases ruin the future careers of students who, without being in a position to judge, join them in the hope of laying the foundation of a successful future.

My Lord, I shall not take up more of the Council's time, but I hope that my Hon'ble friend will realise that if the first portion of his resolution is given effect to, i.e., if the re-opening of the mechanical and electrical engineering sections of the Dacca School of Engineering takes place without proper staff, equipment and workshops, he will be doing great injury to the cause of technical education. In my opinion, we should concentrate our energies and use all the funds available for the purpose of bringing this branch of education at the Sibpur College up to the highest standard possible. I could perhaps sympathise with my Hon'ble friend if the Sibpur College could not take in all the students who wished to take up these branches of engineering as a profession, but this is not the case as the college can admit many more than have hitherto sought admission. If it be considered necessary or desirable to offer special encouragement to students from Eastern Bengal, I would suggest that special scholarships or freeships be founded at Sibpur for students from these districts. Having the welfare of engineering students very much at heart, I am strongly opposed to any system of training which will not permit them to start on their professional careers with every advantage that experience has shown to be necessary and for this reason I feel it my duty to oppose the resolution proposed by my Hon'ble friend."

Resolution.

Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said :—

"My Lord, for the future development of Eastern Bengal and, for the matter of that, of the entire Presidency, it is of the utmost importance that a fresh centre of culture and enlightenment should be established at Dacca, once the historic capital of Bengal. It is said to be the second capital of the Province. But it should be so not merely in name but in substance also. Dacca should be to Calcutta what Poona is to Bombay. With a residential university in this ancient town the realisation of this ideal, if sincerely and zealously pursued, may be neither too difficult nor very far distant. As a preliminary step towards this great consummation devoutly to be wished, Dacca should be provided with two independent first-class institutions—one in Medicine and the other in Engineering. The resolution brought forward by my Hon'ble friend touches neither the one nor the other, and I am free to confess it does not satisfy me. I am, however, in perfect agreement with him in so far as he demands the re-opening of vernacular survey classes in connection with the Dacca School of Engineering. There is undoubtedly a great demand in the country for professional surveyors of this class and the establishment of Vernacular Survey classes here at Dacca would go a great way to meet this demand. But I do not think that to attain this object it is at all necessary to interfere with the existing Survey School at Mainamati. Dacca and Comilla are enough wide apart to admit of two such schools for two different and distant parts of the province. Besides, I am unable to advocate the principle of robbing Peter to pay Paul. I therefore heartily support the second part of my Hon'ble friend's resolution without, however, any prejudice to the Mainamati School. As regards the first part of the resolution which urges the establishment of a section in mechanical and electrical engineering in connection with the Dacca School of Engineering, I do not think that it either satisfies the actual requirements of the ideal which I have put forward at the opening of my address, or that it is a practical or satisfactory means towards the attainment of the object which the resolution has apparently in view. Mechanical and electrical engineering are highly technical subjects which require not only a more efficient teaching staff but also a much higher qualification for the students than can be expected in an ordinary engineering school such as we have at Dacca. This higher branch of practical engineering would also require expensive laboratories and other appliances which cannot be within the scope of an ordinary engineering school. I should have therefore expected my Hon'ble friend to have urged for the establishment of an Engineering College at Dacca, like the one which has long been in existence at Sibpur, and which by slow degrees might eventually come to acquire the higher standard of efficiency, which the latter has attained in mechanical and electrical engineering. I deprecate the tone of any discussion which views with jealousy the development of one part of Bengal more than another. I have no faith in parochial patriotism circumscribed by geographical boundaries. I am a Bengalee and Bengal is my motherland. Whatever improvement is effected in one part of Bengal benefits the other By all means let us try to improve Eastern Bengal; but let us not think that the improvement of Western Bengal is antagonistic to the development of Eastern Bengal. A good scheme should have a solid foundation for it and it is hardly of any practical utility to devise an ill-conceived project without proper materials for its execution. While therefore heartily supporting the second part of my Hon'ble friend's resolution I do not see my way to support its first part."

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA said :—

"My Lord. I want to make only one or two observations on that part of the Resolution which deals with the Survey classes. The resolution as it stands is absolutely different from the one supported in the Hon'ble Mover's speech. The resolution as it stands has no reference to the transference of the Survey classes at Comilla to Dacca——

The Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ said :—

The Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA, continuing said :—

"If that is not his intention, then I support his resolution. But the position must be made clear, and it must be distinctly understood that the Hon'ble Member does not want any re-transfer of the Survey classes from Mainamati to Dacca. But if he insists on it, then I submit that this resolution should not be discussed to-day, because we are not prepared with facts and figures."

The Hon'ble MAULVI ABUL KASEM said :—

"My Lord, I beg to say something in connection with the observations that have fallen from the Hon'ble Sir Rajendra Nath Mookerjea. It has been said that the first part of the resolution is unnecessary because there is a Government Engineering College at Sibpur and that there are mechanical and electrical classes in connection with it. The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray has stated that there is accommodation for 90 boys in these classes. There are at present only 30 boys attending those classes and so there is room for 60 boys more. But, my Lord, what we want is education in industrial and technical subjects and I submit that accommodation for 90 students is not sufficient for a province like Bengal. It is a fact that the mechanical and engineering classes existed in Dacca for more than 20 years. It was started in 1894 and abolished in 1914 and I do not see any reason why that cannot be re-established. It has been observed that a school of mechanical and electrical engineering which has not a proper staff will be of no use whatever. But the resolution does not suggest that it should not be properly staffed. What I want to say is this that there should be a fully and properly-equipped school here and that would encourage East Bengal boys to get themselves trained in these two subjects, and I think that there can be no two opinions on the subject of re-opening such a school at Dacca. There are Schools of Engineering in Bihar and Cuttack, and I see no reason why there should not be one in Dacca."

The Hon'ble MR. LYON said :—

"My Lord, I think we are to be congratulated on the very interesting debate to which this resolution has led. We have had this matter discussed from both points of view, both in favour of the Hon'ble Member who has moved it and also in favour of those who are opposed to it. I think I may take it as thoroughly understood that we are all at one, and in sympathy with the Hon'ble Mover, in the general desire to spread technical education of all kinds all over the Province, whether it be by the teaching of surveying or the teaching of mechanical and electrical engineering. The Hon'ble Member might certainly have credited this Government with having no desire to do harm to Dacca in this particular matter, and I can assure him and the Members of this Council that the question of how the reduction in the courses at the School of Engineering in Dacca would affect the general prosperity of the School and the advantages to be offered to Dacca students was very carefully considered, with every possible care for the interests of these students, before we came to our decision. Consequently, I think that when the Hon'ble Mover sat down, other Hon'ble Members of this Council must have been left with a suspicion that other reasons were to be found why these courses of instruction should have been closed. I am glad that these reasons should have been given to the Council, and with so much ability, by some of the Hon'ble Members who have joined in this debate. I think that we could not have obtained in Bengal any greater expert in these matters than one of the Hon'ble Members who have addressed you on the subject. The Hon'ble Sir Rajendra Nath Mukharji has personal knowledge and experience, and he has explained to you with great care why it is that he is unable to accept the motion, so far as it relates to the mechanical and electrical overseer course in the School of Engineering here. We have also had an interesting speech from the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Ray, who has studied the question on the spot, in that he has visited the Sibpur Engineering College and has examined into the circumstances in which mechanical and electrical engineering are taught in that College. Before we came to the decision to close the classes in Dacca, we took a great deal of trouble to find out exactly how far this form of teaching could be adequately given here in this school of engineering. We began by having the classes inspected by the two experts in these subjects—Mr. Everett and Mr. A. K. Taylor. They reported to the Joint Technical Education Board, and at the same time the Superintending Engineer, Mr. Walsh (now Chief Engineer to the Government of Bengal), with Mr. Heaton, also reported on the subject in the course of a general inspection of the work of the school. All these gentlemen reported against maintaining the Overseer classes in Mechanical and Electrical Engineering in Dacca, and the Joint Technical Examination Committee Board, which comprises the best advice which we can get together in Bengal, agreed that it would be better to close the classes here. The reasons have been examined by the Hon'ble Member, but I think that he has omitted to give full consideration to the want of demand for these classes. The Hon'ble Member who last spoke said that the accommodation provided at Sibpur for thirty students would not suffice, and that we wanted a large number of students to study these subjects and go out into the world to obtain employment. Unfortunately, however much accommodation we may give, we do not get students to make use of it, for the very good reason that when they go out into the world they do not get employment. The classes attracted four students when they were first opened and in the second year attracted four more. These were the only students who came, and only four students appeared from Dacca for the examination in this Branch in 1915 and four in 1916. I may mention that for the same examination only six students appeared from Sibpur in 1916. Consequently we had only ten students in the whole province; and I think that the Council will agree that it is not a practical proposition that we should establish separate classes and set up very elaborate and expensive equipment in two parts of the province for the benefit of only ten students. Had there been any great demand for these classes we should certainly have provided for the expenditure necessary to supply the School of Engineering here with the extra equipment and extra staff to enable it to afford education in this subject to the students pressing to obtain it. But that demand has not arisen.

The Hon'ble Mr. Bhabendra Chandra Ray has suggested that there is ample scope for the extension of instruction in engineering. I should like to correct a possible misapprehension in this matter. We fully admit that there is a demand for facilities for engineering education, and we have shown ourselves at all times ready to meet it in every possible way. But we are dealing here merely with the Overseer course in Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, and for such a course no demand has been shown to exist. The Government are accordingly unable to accept that portion of this resolution which refers to these classes. Although we realise to the full the disadvantages of Dacca students in Calcutta and the expenses they have to incur, (and we regret very much the disabilities from which they suffer), we could not, having regard to financial considerations, especially at the present moment, promise to re-open these classes here.

With reference to the Survey classes, I am glad to be able to meet the Hon'ble Member's resolution, at least partially. We did not close those classes here without very careful consideration. An expert committee inspected them and considered the subject, and a conference of officials went into the question under the orders of the Eastern Bengal and Assam Government at a time when we were doing all we could to help Dacca. The conference came to the conclusion that it was undesirable to continue the classes at the Engineering School, and a complete scheme was then prepared with a view of concentrating all education work in surveying, both elementary surveying and higher class training in survey work, at some suitable central place, and after a good deal of examination and discussion it was determined to establish this survey school at Mainamati. A very general desire has, however, been expressed for the reintroduction of these particular classes in the School of Engineering at Dacca. They were very successful here, and there is some reason to believe that they may not possibly thrive so healthily at Mainamati. While the Government are therefore considering the question of re-opening these classes, we have to determine the exact form the classes are to take, how far they will fit in with the higher training in survey which is offered in the School at Mainamati, and also the curriculum which will be approved by the zamindars and others who are—as pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Ray—the chief employers of this form of labour.

As to the attack which has been made on the School at Mainamati, we have heard the reasons given by the Hon'ble Mr. Rasul in support of the action taken by Government to start this School, and the evidence which he has given to show that the school is not so bad as it has been painted by the Hon'ble Mover. It is a new institution, which has had to deal with new problems and has had its difficulties. It is to be inspected very shortly by the Hon'ble Mr. Beatson Bell, who is going into the whole question of the training of surveyors and will deal incidentally with the institution of classes elsewhere, should they be required, to lead up to the higher work at Mainamati. I am sure that the Hon'ble Mover will be glad to hear that there is a very simple explanation of the extraordinary difference to which he has called attention in the cost of the defunct classes at Dacca and the School at Mainamati. He stated that the work which used to be done here at Dacca for Rs. 2,600 is now being done at Mainamati at a cost of Rs. 16,000. Hon'ble Members must have regretted very much to think that we were dealing with matters in this fashion in these times of financial stress, but as a matter of fact the work which is being done at Mainamati includes a great deal of higher training work in survey which was no part of the curriculum in the Dacca classes. An attempt is being made at Mainamati to give a thorough equipment in survey to all classes of surveyors, and to train men for the higher branches of survey work as well as for the elementary duties of amins. We wish to fit Bengalis for those higher departments of survey work which have hitherto been almost entirely absorbed by up-countrymen. The Hon'ble Member has complained because we cannot convert Bengali students into thoroughly competent traverse surveyors at the first attempt, and has compared these traverse surveyors wrongly with the amins turned out from the School here. Up to quite recent years there were very few Bengali traverse surveyors at all, and the whole of the traverse survey work done by the Survey Department was done by up-country surveyors; but we have been making every effort to fit Bengali students to take up this work and to perform in their own country duties which are now being done by foreigners, and I am quite sure that Hon'ble Members will sympathise with us in the efforts we are making.

With reference to this training in surveying, we are still trying to work out a complete and satisfactory scheme, and we think that this will lead eventually to the re-opening of the classes at Dacca with the desire for which we very greatly sympathise.

I am sorry that I cannot meet the first part of the Resolution except by an uncompromising negative; but in the case of the latter part of the Resolution, while I do not think that this Council should commit itself at once to a decision that the former classes at the School of Engineering here should be re-opened until we have gone into the whole matter still further, and until the Mainamati classes have been carefully inspected again, I think we may look forward to the probability of the establishment of some such classes in Dacca within the next few months. In these circumstances, I would suggest to the Hon'ble Member that he might withdraw his Resloution, or. if he does not wish to do so, I would ask the Council to meet it with a negative."

The Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ said :—

" My Lord, before I reply to the Hon'ble Mr. Lyon's observations, I should like to say that I would have been very much obliged if he had stated with further clearness the position of Government as regards the re-opening of the Survey classes at Dacca. As far as I can understand the position, Government are not prepared to commit themselves by their promises and I do not think I can fairly expect any member of Government to make a definite promise of that character. But if, as the Hon'ble Mr. Lyon has admitted, there is a growing desire on the part of the people in this country for the re-opening of the classes, if the Government are satisfied also that it is desirable to re-open these classes, then we are satisfied that on some future date it will be done.

As regards the first portion of the Resolution, I know it is hopeless for one to go on with it. I have now been four years in Council and know that going against official opposition is like dashing one's head against a stone wall. But if Government really accept the second portion of the Resolution it will meet with the wishes of the people and we must be content with small mercies. If, my Lord, a statement like that is made, I would ask for your Excellency's permission to withdraw the Resolution."

The Resolution was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ was to have moved the following Resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a larger number of Muhammadan students than at present be admitted each year into the Calcutta Medical College and the Campbell Medical School.

He said :—

" My Lord, since I gave notice of this Resolution, I have had a talk with the Hon'ble the Surgeon-General and also with the Hon'ble Mr. Donald, and I do not wish at the present moment to press this Resolution, and I would ask your Excellency's permission to move this Resolution at some future sitting of the Council."

The Resolution was then, by leave of the President, postponed for discussion to a future meeting of the Council.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 7.

The Hon'ble MAULVI A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ moved the following Resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that at least one more hostel, on the lines of the Taylor Hostel in Wellington Square, be opened for Muhammadan students in Calcutta.

He said :—

" In moving this Resolution, I am really re-opening a matter which has been discussed in this Council at least a dozen times in the course of the last four years. It was in the Dacca session about two years ago that I moved a similar resolution which was, although not accepted by Government at the time, given effect to later on by the establishment of the Taylor Hostel in Wellington Square. Since then, events have shown that the existing hostel arrangements in Calcutta for Hindu and Muhammadan students are absolutely inadequate to meet the demand and that every year hundreds and hundreds of students have to give up their studies simply because they cannot get good accommodation to reside in the city for the purposes of study. The Calcutta University has decided that no student living in unrecognised hostels or messes will be allowed to sit for any examination of the University, and it seems to me, my Lord, that only those persons will be allowed to continue their studies who, by some chance or other, succeed in getting accommodation in the existing hostels and messes. It does not matter whether there are 10,000 students fit to sit at the examination. If there are only 500 seats available in hostels, the remaining 9,500 must perforce give up their study. It is not my intention to take up the time of the Council by bringing forward the cases of students of every community. I have purposely limited myself to the case of Muhammadan students only. And so far as hostel accommodation for them is concerned, it is hopelessly inadequate, and the state of things is such that it is still a standing reproach to the Government, although they have done much and are doing much for Muhammadan education in this country. It is now barely a quarter of a century that Muhammadans have appreciated the benefits of an English education and they do certainly require exceptional facilities in carrying on their education. And if any special facilities are accorded to them, it will not, I am sure, be unwelcome to members of other communities in this country. The Wellington Square Hostel, which was started not very long ago, has had to refuse applications from more than 70 Muhammadan students already for want of accommodation, and a similar state of things exists in other hostels in Calcutta. This is certainly a great obstacle put in the way of Muhammadan education in this Presidency. I do not like to take up the time of the Council any longer, but the position created by the University is something like this. If your Excellency rules that no one can take part in the deliberations of the Council without entering the Council Chamber and at the same time you shut the door against their entrance, that will represent to some extent the attitude which the University has taken up in this connection. What are the Muhammadan students to do if they cannot be provided with seats in a recognised hostel ? The Muhammadan community is a particularly poor community, and it is not possible for them to raise sufficient funds for the establishment of hostels. If that were at all possible, then there would not be any need for us to move these Resolutions. Government recognise the necessity of furthering the cause of Muhammadan education in this Presidency and there are 7 lakhs of rupees from the Government of India earmarked for that purpose. I am only urging your Excellency's Government to give effect to the promise which has been given to the Muhammadan community to have as many hostels for Muhammadan students as possible in this Presidency. Of course at the present moment, I do not expect Government to launch into a big project of building hostels, but surely houses can be rented at comparatively moderate sums for students who could not be allotted seats in hostels and recognised messes in Calcutta. If this is done by your Excellency's Government, it would prove a great benefit to the Muhammadan boys reading in Calcutta. With these few observations, I beg to commend my Resolution to the Council."

Resolution.

The Hon'ble BABU AMBIKA CHARAN MAZUMDAR said :—

" My Lord, I have the fullest sympathy with the object of the Resolution, and if the necessity for another hostel for Muhammadan students in Calcutta really exists, I should be the last person to stand in the way of my Hon'ble friend's Resolution. But I have some doubt as to the correctness of the procedure which he has adopted. As far as I understand, the arrangement for hostel accommodations for college students in Calcutta, I think, Government every year make an allotment for the purpose which is placed at the disposal of the University. Application for any new hostel should therefore be made to the Senate or the Syndicate, and if they find themselves unable to entertain such application for want of necessary funds, Government should be moved to supplement their grant to the University to meet the demand of such an application."

Resolution.

The Hon'ble NAWAB SIR SYED SHAMS-UL-HUDA said :—

" My Lord, there is hardly any difference in the aims of Government and of my Hon'ble friend who has moved this Resolution. We all realise the necessity for more hostel accommodation, but all I claim is this that we have not ignored the interests of the Muhammadan students and we have done as much as has been possible for us to do in order to provide facilities for them.

I would, for the benefit of the Council, quote some figures. In 1914 we made an inquiry in regard to hostel accommodation and found that in Calcutta there were about 510 students reading in the different colleges and that out of these 109 students were accommodated in Government hostels, 21 in hostels attached to colleges, and 30 in licensed messes, 124 lived with their parents and 223 with other guardians. Since then Government have done all that has been humanly possible to do to give further accommodation to Muhammadan students. We sanctioned a scheme for the extension of the Baker Hostel at a cost of Rs. 2,98,000 and now one of the wings of the Baker Hostel, namely, the north-eastern wing, which has accommodation for 42 students, has already been opened, and the north-western wing is under construction. It will accommodate about 28 students and it is hoped that in about three months' time it will be available for use. There is also the south-eastern wing, which will be taken in hand as soon as difficulties about the acquisition of a small strip of land are overcome. This wing will accommodate 14 students. When the extension of the Baker Hostel is complete, it will accommodate altogether 84 students. We have also established in Wellington Square a hostel which accommodates 71 boys. When the Baithakkhana Hostel is constructed it will provide accommodation for 200 students. It is hoped that this additional accommodation will satisfy the demand of the Muhammadan students, because as soon as the Baithakkhana Hostel is opened, even if the Willington Square Hostel is closed, it will give extra accommodation to 126 students. The question whether after the Baithakkhana hostel is opened the Wellington Hostel should continue is not necessary to discuss now, because when the new hostel is constructed we will be in a better position to judge whether we still require the Wellington Square Hostel. There is one difficulty about this matter which, I think, I ought to bring to the notice of the Council. The Government of India have laid down certain rules about the apportionment of costs between the students and Government, when hostels are opened in hired houses, and the rule is that half the cost is to be paid by the students and the other half by Government. In the case of the Wellington Square Hostel the rent comes to about Rs. 4,585. If the principle laid down by the Government of India were followed, it would have been necessary for the Muhammadan students to pay about Rs. 2,300 themselves. It was, however, considered hard for the Muhammadan students who are generally poor to pay this money, and therefore we accepted a lower scale and the Government of India have sanctioned the concession on the express condition that it was to be temporary, and we have taken the house only for five years. It is not quite clear, when we have got the Baithakkhana hostel, which will be convenient for all those who want to read in the Presidency College or any other colleges in that neighbourhood, whether there will be any necessity for further accommodation in that locality, and it is, at the present moment, difficult to say anything definite on this point. All I can say is that Government have done within these few years all that it was possible to do, and although on account of the financial stringency various other necessary schemes have been postponed, the extension of the Baker Hostel was allowed to go on by special sanction of the Government of India. As I have said, of the three wings of the Baker Hostel except a very small one, the other two have already been taken in hand, of which one is now complete and the other is nearing completion. I am therefore compelled—although I yield to none in my desire to provide more hostel accommodation to Muhammadan students—to oppose this Resolution, as I think it has not been made out that the accommodation that is going to be provided will be insufficient. On the whole, as I have already said, we shall get about 100 additional seats in the Baker Hostel and we shall have 200 seats available when the Baithakkhana hostel is constructed. My Hon'ble friend has not shown by figures that this will not meet the demand. When these hostels are constructed and the financial stringency disappears and if there is still any great demand for further accommodation, I am certain that every effort will be made to meet that demand, but at the present moment I can make no promise and cannot therefore accept the Resolution."

Resolution:

Nawab Sir Syed Shams-ul-Huda ; Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq.

The Hon'ble NAWAB SIR SYED SHAMS-UL-HUDA—concluded.

The Hon'ble MAULVI FAZL-UL-HAQ said :—

"My Lord, I can well understand what fate awaits my Resolution, but I cannot sit down without adding a few words to what I have already said. The Hon'ble Member has stated that about 510 students are accommodated in several hostels and messes in Calcutta. It is really a fairly big list, but when it is triumphantly pointed out, I am reminded of the little story which we all read in Æsop's Fables while we were boys in school. There was a Greek god in whose temple was hung up a list of the persons whose desires had been fulfilled by the god. A man, however, asked where the list could be found of those persons who had to go away without having their desires fulfilled. It is, my Lord, true that 510 students have found accommodation in Calcutta, but will the Hon'ble Member lay on the table a statement showing how many persons had to go away from Calcutta disappointed for not finding hostel accommodation, and how many had to give up their college career, simply because they could not get any accommodation in which they could shelter themselves while pursuing their studies in the city? If 10 students are accommodated in the Wellington Square Hostel, 100 students have to go away disappointed. Although the Hon'ble Member says that 100 are accommodated in the Baker Hostel, roughly speaking, 2 hundreds of students will still go away disappointed. I may say that about 2,000 students fail to secure hostel accommodation. Is it not therefore enough to make out a case for hostel accommodation every year? If these things do not convince the Government, I am sure nothing on my part will do it. I must say that Government have shown great consideration for the requirements of the Muhammadan community in coming forward from time to time in their efforts to provide facilities for the spread of Muhammadan education. My complaint is that, although much has been done, a great deal more remains to be done. I do not press for the establishment of a hostel but only for a house being rented where students could be lodged. such as in the Wellington Square Hostel. It will not cost much ; the rent will come up to Rs. 300 to Rs. 400, a portion of which will be realized from the students in the shape of messing fees and seat-rents. I am not in a position to give accurate figures, but I think that the Wellington Square Hostel does not cost Government more than Rs. 100 a month. At the expense of, say, Rs. 1,000 a year, Government may give the Muhammadan students a very much needed hostel which, I submit, has been very keenly felt by Muhammadan students for the last few years. In this matter we can only remind Government that we have been hearing this promise from 1913, when I first entered your Excellency's Council. The promise was made in 1913, it was repeated in 1914, repeated again in 1915 and re-repeated in 1916, and I think we will have it in 1917. I am told that when the new hostels which are being constructed are completed they will accommodate many students, but I may submit, my Lord, that by that time many students will have given up their study. As the want of accommodation is very keenly felt, I have brought forward this resolution. As regards the further extention to the Baker Hostel, I do not think that owing to the financial stringency we shall get it in the near future. In these circumstances, I respectfully submit that another house be hired on the lines of the Wellington Square Hostel and it will then very keenly fell want in the another of hostel accommodati n for Muhammadan students."

Resolution.

Nawab Sir Syed Shams-ul-Huda.

The Hon'ble MAULVI FAZL-UL HAQ—concluded.

The Hon'ble NAWAB SIR SYED-SHAMS-UL-HUDA said :—

"My Lord, I desire to correct a statement which my Hon'ble friend has made regarding the Wellington Square Hostel. He has stated that Government does not spend more than Rs. 100 a month for that hostel. As a mather the expenses come up to Rs. 4,588 out of which the fees paid by Muhammadan students ammounts to Rs. 1,960 beaing a balance of Rs. 2,628 which is paid by the Government.

Besides this, the charges for superintendence, etc., are paid by Government. The difficulty in the case of Muhammadan students is that every one of them is not in a position to pay what, according to the directions of the Government of India, they are bound to do. We had to take advantage of the fact that the Government show some concessions to backward classes. We did not like to admit that Muhammadans belonged to the backward classes, but we had to do so in order that the community might benefit in this regard and the amount was accordingly reduced and they now pay Rs. 1,960 only.

The Hon'ble Member has also said that Government made a promise some time ago. I do not know what the promise he has referred to is. Government promised the extension of the Baker Hostel and also to have another hostel constructed somewhere near College Square so that students of the Presidency and other colleges might reside there, and I may inform the Council that land has already been acquired and the latter hostel would soon be constructed.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 8.

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. FAZL-UL-HAQ moved the following resolution :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that steps be taken to make provision, as far as possible, for Kanungos who have been thrown out of employment owing to the stoppage of fresh survey and settlement operations in Bengal.

He said :—

"My Lord, the conditions under which the kanungos have been working and the amount of work they have done to render the settlement operations a success, are fully known to every one, and I do not wish to take up your Excellency's time by urging their claims upon your Excellency's consideration. It is an extremely humane resolution, if I may so call it, and I hope your Excellency's Government will see their way to accepting it."

The Hon'ble MR. BEATSON BELL said :—

"My Lord, Government gladly accept this resolution. The question has engaged our anxious attention for the last year, and we are doing all we can for these unfortunate kanungos. We welcome suggestions from any quarter. I should like to be more definite, but it is not desirable that I should give rise to hopes which may not be realised. I may say, however, that there is one direction in which the Hon'ble Mover and other members of the legal profession can give substantial help. They can see that no difficulties are placed in the way of survey commissions from civil courts being entrusted to qualified kanungos who are temporarily unemployed."

The motion was then put and agreed to.

The President's address.

The President.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

HIS EXCELLENCY THEN ADDRESSED THE COUNCIL.

He said :—

"Gentlemen, our business is now done, but it is the custom for the President to use the opportunity afforded by a Council meeting in order to speak about any matter which interests Members if he thinks he can do so with advantage. I wish to avail myself of that opportunity now. First, I must say that I am glad to see so many of you here. It is hardly likely in the nature of things that the Governor of Bengal will often ask the Members of his Council to do much legislative work in Dacca; though I think he may continue to find it of distinct service to summon them to meet here occasionally. The people of this part of the Presidency do not claim that Dacca is equal in importance to Calcutta, but many of them, when they look back to the time when Calcutta was the Political Capital of India, and Dacca was the Capital of a Province, feel that a city which was once a capital has peculiar claims to consideration. Be that as it may, I know that the people of Dacca are pleased when we, who usually meet in the second city of the Empire, meet here in the second capital of Bengal; and so I am glad to find when I do ask you to come here that you are willing to do.

And now I want to speak of one matter which I know puzzles some of you. You have heard or read about those Bengali young men who were doing hospital work with the troops in Mesopotamia and who have quite recently returned. You are surprised to find that no other Bengali young men have gone out in their place, for you believe that some young men were ready prepared to go, and had for a long time been anxious to go. You wonder why they have not gone and some of you do not feel quite comfortable about this.

The Bengali young men, who were in Mesopotamia and who have come back, went there full of enthusiasm and determined to show that Bengalis can be useful in a place where war is going on. They did work which has been pronounced by those best qualified to judge to have been useful work and good work; they won the hearty thanks of those who were on the spot and who saw what they were doing. Their fellow countrymen have every right to be proud of them; and all of us, whether their fellow countrymen or not, ought to be grateful to them.

They stayed on in Mesopotamia doing their work of mercy; many of them until long after they would have liked to come back, and all of them for longer than they had undertaken to stay.

Now that they have come back they are fully entitled not only to the commendation due to any one who has tried his best to serve his country, but also to that further praise which comes to the successful. Dr. Suresh Prasad Sarbadhikari who organized the hospital work, and who raised the men; those who worked with him in doing this; those of your own number and the others who joined with you in subscribing the money needed for equipment, all deserve our thanks. This is fully recognized by all who have any knowledge of what was done by the young men. Dr. Suresh Prasad Sarbadhikari and his co-workers did raise other men and hoped that they, too, would go to Mesopotamia—not this time to run a stationary hospital, but to do strictly ambulance work and form a stretcher-bearer corps. Dr. Suresh Prasad Sarbadhikari worked hard; he never spared himself in his noble endeavour to prepare young men to do good work. It is a bitter disappointment to him and to many others that the young men have not gone. They have not gone because there was a misunderstanding. We all know how easy it is at any time for people who are not familiar with technicalities to misunderstand things which seem simple to those who are familiar with them. That is what happened. Owing to a misunderstanding, the nature and extent of which was not realized until it was too late, the young men, who were so eagerly looking forward to going, have not gone.

Adjurnment.

The President.

Military matters must be subject to fixed rules; civilians do not often study these rules; even when they do, they do not always grasp their import. While war is going on it is not easy, it is probably not even right, for military authorities to find time to discuss matters which in a time of peace they might, perhaps, be prepared to discuss; and it is not always easy for civilians, especially when they have eagerly set their hearts on getting something, to appreciate the importance of regulations which they do not understand, but which seem to them to run counter to their wishes. I think I can say with truth that I am as jealous for the honour of Bengal as any one can be who was not born a Bengali: and I assure you that I sympathise in your disappointment. I have heard the whole story; I have read all the papers. I realize how the misunderstanding came about. Mistakes were made, but I believe they were honestly made; and I feel sure there ought to be no resentment against any one. I do not despair. I believe we may yet see more young Bengalis doing ambulance work at the front, and thus helping to win the war, if only there are young men willing to do it; but there must be no acting in haste, no assuming that things will be as we would like them to be; every step must be fully and accurately understood. We must realize—more clearly than we are sometimes apt to do—the terrible responsibility which rests with those who are the final authority in all arrangements for conducting a war. We must remember that their regulations have been carefully thought out and adopted long ago. I believe the authorities are sympathetic; I know they appreciate enthusiasm and devotion wherever these are found; but their first duty is to win the war, and they must enforce what they think right even when we do not see the reason of it.

One thing more I want to tell you. The Viceroy has been considering the position with the Commander-in-Chief, and with the other members of his Government. They have determined to try, as an experimentel measure, to raise a Double Company of Infantry composed of Bengalis, on precisely the same terms as are offered to the Indian Army generally. Enlistment will be for the period of the war with the option to the soldier of remaining, if he chooses, in the service after its conclusion. The Double Company, when formed, will be located on the Frontier for training, and, when properly trained, may be sent on field service.

That the Government of India should be willing to consider this now,—while war is going on, while their anxieties are great, while their thoughts must be more than fully occupied,—shows that they have not neglected the feelings of Bengal. That they should be willing to make the experiment is proof that they do sympathise with us, that they do believe that Bengalis are loyal and are devoted. Surely it is the duty now of everyone who loves Bengal to see that the experiment shall succeed, to show that emotional and impetuous as Bengalis undoubtedly are, they are generous enough to exercise self-control, that they are ready to submit to discipline, and will do their part when asked just as well as other people do their part, and without demanding any exceptional or better terms.

ADJOURNMENT.

The Council now stands adjourned until 11 A.M. on 4th September when we shall meet in Government House, Calcutta."

The Annual Statistical Returns and Short Notes on Vaccination in Bengal for the year 1915-16.

General Results.—The outstanding feature of the returns of vital occurrences for the year 1915 is that, for the first time since 1892, the number of deaths in Bengal exceeded the recorded number of births.

The excess amounted to 46,939 and was the result largely of widespread epidemics of cholera and small-pox, which caused altogether 163,464 deaths, and partly also of reduced vitality consequent on the adverse economic conditions and bad agricultural seasons of this and previous years. The decrease of population was not uniform and was in fact confined to the Presidency, Burdwan and Rajshahi Divisions, a continued increase being recorded in the Dacca and Chittagong Divisions with their prolific and prosperous population.

Year.		Increase or decrease.
1911	...	+363,607
1912	...	+250,556
1913	...	+198,053
1914	...	+103,992
1915	...	− 46,939

2. The year 1915 must be regarded as the worst of a cycle of bad years, for, since 1911, the rate at which the people of Bengal have added to their number has gradually diminished, as shown in the margin, till the annual increase gave place to an actual decrease in the year under review. The Burdwan Division, which has suffered severely from the ravages of fever, sustained a small loss (2 per mille) during the quinquennium, and the Presidency Division was practically stationary, its population increasing by only 4 per mille. On the other hand, a rise of 12 per mille was recorded in the Rajshahi Division, while the population of the Dacca Division grew at the rate of 34 per mille and that of the Chittagong Division by no less than 59 per mille.

3. Birth-rate.—The Governor in Council notices with regret that the birth-rate, which was more or less stationary in the previous two years, fell in 1915 to 31·80 per mille, or 2·06 per mille less than in 1914. The decline in the number of births must be attributed to unfavourable economic and climatic conditions. It was observed in the Resolution of this Government reviewing the Report of the Sanitary Commissioner for the year 1914 that deficiency of rainfall had affected the agricultural outturn to such an extent as to preclude the possibility of a fall in the price of food-grains, and that this in its turn was bound to re-act on the vitality of the poorer classes. It was also pointed out that there had been a check in the growth of the population, which was ascribed to the short outturn of food-grains in recent years, and the fear was expressed that the low prices obtained by cultivators for jute in 1914 would tend to diminish the growth of population still further. The effect of the unfavourable conditions prevailing in 1914 and the early part of 1915 is now seen in a decline in the birth-rate. It is noticeable that, during 1915, a reduction in the birth-rate was common to all provinces in India, except Assam, and that in this Presidency the decline was not universal, the birth-rate continuing to rise in the Chittagong Division.

4. Death-rate.—The total number of deaths recorded exceeded by 57,278 the figure returned in the preceding year. In this respect, also, Bengal is not exceptional, for an increase of mortality also took place in the adjoining provinces of Assam, and Bihar and Orissa, as well as in Burma and the Punjab. The augmented death-roll is due mainly to an increase of 64,305 deaths from cholera and small-pox and partly to adverse agricultural seasons. A deficiency of rainfall in West Bengal resulted in a partial failure of crops, while floods caused distress in some parts of East Bengal. Taking the province as a whole, however, the people suffered less from abnormally short or heavy rainfall than from an irregular distribution, which caused the agricultural outturn to be below the average in the majority of districts.

5. Despite the enhanced general mortality, there was a small but gratifying reduction in infantile mortality, the ratio of deaths to births falling from 22·14 to 21·89 per cent. In only five districts did the percentage exceed 25; but higher rates continued to prevail in urban areas, varying from 26 per cent. in Bhadreswar to as much as 64 per cent. in Maniktalla. There was a slight increase in the case of Calcutta, which, however, with a percentage of under 29 per cent., does not compare unfavourably with the majority of the towns.

6. Notwithstanding the attention paid to the verification of vital statistics, and the measures taken to ensure accuracy, it is feared that a considerable allowance must still be made for omissions. Enquiries made by the vaccination staff in the case of over 100,000 births and 50,000 deaths led to the discovery of omissions representing approximately 2 per cent. in the case of the former and 2·5 per cent. in the case of the latter. Further special enquiries revealed a more serious degree of error in individual districts, and also showed that, in every district but one in which investigation was made. the neglect to register births was far more extensive than the failure to record deaths. The Governor in Council has entrusted, as an experimental measure, the presidents of panchayats in selected localities with the duty of recording births and deaths in rural areas, and the experiment is reported to have been successful.

7. Fever.—Compared with 1914, the mortality from fever was practically stationary, the number of deaths rising by only 3,118. The districts which suffered most severely were Birbhum and Murshidabad. in the former of which the Civil Surgeon reports that an epidemic of fever has gone on "with unabated fury" since 1912. Such an epidemic is, he reports, no new feature in Birbhum, but has recurred at intervals of ten years since 1871. A progressive decrease in the number of deaths in towns has been observed since 1913, which the Sanitary Commissioner ascribes to increasing defectiveness of registration rather than to improvements in sanitation or a more careful discrimination of the causes producing deaths. This matter requires further investigation, and the Sanitary Commissioner will be directed to make a special enquiry to ascertain the causes of the diminution of fever mortality as recorded in urban areas.

8. Anti-malarial measures were continued at the expense both of Government and of local authorities, though large and comprehensive schemes were precluded by the financial situation as well as by the reduction of staff caused by the transfer of officers to military service. Twenty-four Sub-Assistant Surgeons were employed for the gratuitous distribution of quinine for a period of five months from the middle of September, and special malaria surveys were undertaken in various municipal and rural areas. During the current year a special assignment of Rs. 1,00,000 has been made from the sanitary grant for expenditure on anti-malarial measures. It is proposed to devote this sum to a scheme of flood or flush drainage specially designed for urban areas, and to a scheme of flooding rural areas, a form of bonificazione, which, Government are advised, is specially adapted to Bengal. The Governor in Council welcomes a noticeable access of public interest in the problems associated with malaria and regrets that, owing to financial stringency, he is debarred from attempting a more extensive anti-malarial campaign.

9. Cholera.—Widespread epidemics caused the deaths from cholera to rise from 89,224 to 130,679. Drought in some districts and floods in others appear to have been alike responsible for the prevalence or dissemination of this disease. Few parts of the province were immune from it, and the worst sufferers were the districts of Mymensingh and Malda, where the death-rate rose to 5·89 and 5·28 per mille, respectively. In Mymensingh the contamination was spread far and wide through the bodies of cholera patients being thrown into the flood water, and a similar practice facilitated the spread of the epidemic in Malda. Elsewhere pollution of the water-supply had results little less disastrous, and there seems little doubt that, as the Sanitary Commissioner points out "outbreaks of cholera must be counted upon as annual events as long as the majority of sources of water-supply remain subject to gross contamination as they do at present."

10. The record of cholera epidemics in towns further emphasizes the need of a pure water-supply and demonstrates the protection afforded to those which have installed waterworks. In the town of Berhampore a serious epidemic broke out, but special investigation showed that not a single case occurred in any house having a connection with the pipe-water supply and that the disease was confined to those who persisted in drinking unfiltered water brought from the river. Statistics of the Hooghly-Chinsura Municipality also show that, during the nine years ending in 1913, the annual mortality from cholera averaged 5·65 per mille, but that in 1914, when waterworks were started and a filtered water-supply was given for part of the year, the death-rate was reduced to 2·28 per mille, and that during 1915, when the scheme was in full operation, the death-rate fell to under 1 per mille.

11. Small-pox and Vaccination.—Mortality from small-pox has been slowly and gradually on the increase since 1912, and rose to 9,935 in 1914. In 1915 the deaths increased threefold, aggregating 32,785, or ·72 per mille, which is the highest on record since 1909. More than three-fourths of the deaths occurred in the Burdwan and Presidency Divisions, where the prevalence of the disease was possibly due to the fact that Calcutta, where there was a virulent outbreak, acted as a distributing centre to neighbouring districts, especially the 24-Parganas. It is satisfactory to find that, despite the general increase of mortality, the death-rate among infants continued to decline and that only 14 per cent. of the total mortality from small-pox occurred among children under 10 years of age, compared with 21·5 per cent. in 1914.

12. The number of persons vaccinated during the year 1915-16 was 1,635,621, or 35,259 more than in 1914-15. Operations decreased by 80,898 in Calcutta, where the epidemic above referred to had spent itself before the period covered by the vaccination returns. In the Dacca Division they rose by 109,850, nearly half the increase occurring in the district of Bakarganj, where a system of free vaccination was introduced in the Sadar subdivision with satisfactory results. A similar system was also introduced in the 24-Parganas, where the District Board appointed a special staff to carry on free vaccination in rural areas, paying them a capitation fee of ½ anna for each vaccination in addition to pay. The people welcomed the opportunity of free vaccination, and a large increase of primary vaccinations resulted.

13. Other diseases.—There was a slight decrease in the death-rate from dysentery and diarrhœa and from respiratory diseases. Plague was almost absent from the Presidency outside Calcutta, the total number of deaths amounting only to 199, of which 191 occurred in Calcutta. This is the lowest figure recorded since the disease first appeared in Bengal.

14. Sanitary Board.—The functions of the Sanitary Board are those of an advisory body, and in this capacity it continued to do useful work. Five sketch projects estimated to cost Rs. 7,10,592 and six detailed schemes estimated to cost Rs. 6,58,795 were forwarded to Government for approval and sanction. On the suggestion of the Board a committee was constituted under the presidency of the Commissioner, Presidency Division, to consider a water-supply scheme for riparian municipalities north of Calcutta.

15. Sanitary Improvements.—Sanitary works costing altogether Rs. 22,92,429 were carried out during 1914-15 by Government, Municipalities, District Boards and private individuals: the expenditure was nearly Rs. 5¾ lakhs in excess of that incurred during the previous year. The amount distributed by Government was Rs. 5,11,026, of which Rs. 3,21,779 was for non-recurring expenditure.

There was considerable activity on the part of District and Local Boards in rural sanitary works, such as well-sinking, jungle-clearing, the filling up of ditches, and the excavation and cleansing of tanks. It is in the widespread formation of Union Committees and the free exercise of their powers of local taxation that the Governor in Council sees the best prospect of material improvement in village sanitation. At the same time, he agrees with the Sanitary Commissioner that, although it is probable that permanent results can only be achieved in this way, much immediate improvement, which will also have an educative value, can be attained through the personal interest and initiative of district officials.

16. Owing to financial conditions, there was an inevitable decrease in the expenditure on sanitary engineering works in the Presidency during the year 1915. The total amounted to Rs. 7,30,390, as against Rs. 9,64,571 during the previous year, the greater part of the expenditure being, as before, devoted to water-supply. No waterworks scheme was actually completed, but those of Bankura and Chittagong were brought near to completion. Drainage schemes were completed at Kurseong, Baruipur and Kushtia, and progress was also made with schemes for Burdwan, Katwa and Bhadreswar.

The Governor in Council keenly regrets the inevitable check to the progress of sanitary engineering works which is caused by the present financial situation. He has been obliged to husband the provincial resources carefully and scrupulously, and the result is that, except in cases of the greatest urgency, no grant or loan can be made at present by Government towards new works. At the same time the rise in the prices of materials, especially iron-work and machinery, has rendered it necessary to postpone schemes which, but for the war, would in all probability have been initiated or under construction.

17. Sanitary Officers.—During the year 1915 the Bengal Sanitary Officers Act was brought into force by notifications prescribing the appointment of Sanitary Officers by municipalities in the Chittagong, Burdwan, Rajshahi and Dacca Divisions. A similar notification has since been published for the Presidency Division, and all but the smallest municipalities are now under a legal obligation to maintain one or more Sanitary Officers. Rules prescribing the qualifications of Health Officers and Sanitary Inspectors for municipalities have been finally published, and those for District Boards are under consideration.

18. Staff.—Lt. Col. W. W. Clemesha, I.M.S., was in charge of the office of Sanitary Commissioner, Bengal, up to the 10th April 1915, when he was appointed to act as Sanitary Commissioner to the Government of India. He was relieved by Dr. C. A. Bentley, M.B., D.P.H., Special Officer on Malaria Research Work, who held charge up to the end of the year. The staff of Deputy Sanitary Commissioners had to be reduced owing to the war, and it was only possible to employ one whole-time officer. It is hoped that the appointment of temporary officers since the close of 1915 to officiate for the absent Deputy Sanitary Commissioners will allow of the resumption of much necessary work, especially the periodical inspection of municipalities.

Mr. A. G. Maflin, Assistant Sanitary Engineer, officiated as Sanitary Engineer until 1st March, during the absence, on leave, of Mr. G. B. Williams, who held charge for the remainder of the year.

19. The thanks of the Governor in Council are due to Colonel Clemesha, Dr. Bentley, Mr. Williams and Mr. Maflin for their efficient administration of the departments of the Sanitary Commissioner and the Sanitary Engineer during their respective tenures of office. The Governor in Council looks forward with much interest to the outcome of the research work on malaria in which Dr. Bentley has been engaged, and desires to express his appreciation of the beneficial results of Mr. Williams' work.

By order of the Governor in Council,

L. S. S. O'MALLEY,

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE POLICE ADMINISTRATION IN THE BENGAL PRESIDENCY FOR THE YEAR 1915.

POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.

POLICE.

CALCUTTA, THE 21ST AUGUST 1916.

RESOLUTION—No. 10441P.

READ—

The Report on the Police Administration in the Bengal Presidency for the year 1915.

Read also—

The Report on the Police Administration in the Bengal Presidency for the year 1914 and the Resolution of Government thereon.

MR. R. B. HUGHES-BULLER, C.I.E., was Inspector-General of Police throughout the year. The present report has been submitted by Mr. C. W. C. Plowden, C.I.E., who succeeded Mr. Hughes-Buller as Inspector-General of Police on the 3rd April 1916.

2. Sanction was received during the year to the formation of a new Deputy Inspector-General's Range for the Burdwan Division, and much needed relief was thereby afforded to the Deputy Inspector-General of the Western Bengal Range which had previously included both the Presidency and Burdwan Divisions. The post of the Second Assistant to the Inspector-General was made permanent. The introduction of new schemes was followed by an addition of 89 police officers to the sanctioned strength of the subordinate police force, which now comprises 21,117 men.

3. The number of recruits enlisted during the year was 3,759, showing a satisfactory increase of 813 over the figures of the previous year. The number of vacancies has been reduced from 1,400 to 242 and is now lower than it has been since the formation of the Presidency. The Governor in Council is particularly pleased to find that 1,125 recruits were local men and will give the fullest consideration to any proposals that the Inspector-General may submit for increasing the attractions of the service for men of this class. He will also be glad to receive the matured proposals of the Inspector-General of Police on the subject of the difficulty of enlisting suitable men to serve as head-constables. The most serious defect in the constitution of the force is still the inadequacy of the reserve, which makes it impossible to give the men a reasonable amount of leave. The demand for unforeseen and temporary duties, for which no provision is made in the cadre, is increasing rapidly, and there can be no doubt that the reserve scale fixed by the Police Commission is inadequate. The cost of a full reserve will be very heavy, but it is hoped that it may be found possible to provide funds next year for some increase in the cadre. His Excellency in Council fully recognizes that the most pressing requirements of the force are an increase in its effective strength, either by the reduction of the duties entrusted to it or by additions to its numbers, and the provision of improved housing accommodation for the subordinate police in the mufassil. Until these demands are met, the recent increase in the pay of the subordinate ranks—though the Inspector-General reports that it has been much appreciated—can only be partially successful in attracting recruits of the best class and retaining them in contented service. These matters will receive immediate and practical consideration from Government as soon as the financial situation permits. Meanwhile, the Governor in Council desires to call the attention of District Officers to the remarks in section IX of the Inspector-General's report, and to impress upon them the necessity of scrupulously abstaining from burdening the police unnecessarily with enquiries into non-cognizable crime and other miscellaneous duties.

4. The discipline of the force was on the whole satisfactory. Judicial punishments decreased from 102 to 96, and the Governor in Council agrees with the Inspector-General that the slight increase in departmental punishments may be attributed to the stricter enforcement of discipline. Rewards for good work were earned by 3,707 officers and men. Out of 415 complaints preferred by private persons against the police during the year and dealt with in the Courts, 72 ended in conviction. Seven charges of torture were brought, but none of them were found to be true. The majority of the cases in which convictions were obtained were petty offences committed by constables. Only four superior officers were convicted, an Inspector for extortion, a Sub-Inspector for bribery, and two Sub-Inspectors for petty offences. The small number of cases in which superior officers were implicated affords most gratifying testimony to the improvement which has been effected in this branch of the force and of the success of the efforts made to recruit men of good position and character for the investigating staff. Seventeen civil suits instituted against the police were disposed of during the year. Only one case was decreed, five were withdrawn, and eleven dismissed.

5. A sum of nearly 12 lakhs of rupees was spent on police buildings during the year, of which over 8 lakhs were devoted to the construction of new buildings and the balance to repairs of existing buildings. Seventeen new police-stations were opened during the year. Building projects which will cost nearly 70 lakhs of rupees have been administratively approved, and a sum at least as large again will be required for the proper housing of the police force in the mufassil and the reduction of unwieldy police-station jurisdictions to areas of manageable size. Much also remains to be done for the equipment of the force, and the Governor in Council fully sympathizes with the Inspector-General in his regret that the economy in public expenditure which is at the present time an imperative Imperial necessity should have delayed the completion of the large programme of reforms and reorganization which will eventually assist the police force so materially in the execution of their onerous duties.

6. The Dacca Military Police Battalion under Captain Macpherson continues to maintain its high reputation. Its military efficiency earned the highest commendation from the General Officer Commanding Presidency Brigade. The prestige and keenness of the Corps have been greatly enhanced by the acceptance of a half company for service in the field with one of the expeditionary forces, and the Governor in Council hopes to be able to supply further reinforcements if required. The battalion has taken over the outstations at Hooghly and Buxa, and the Hindustani Military Police Company formerly employed at Hooghly has been disbanded.

7. The development of the river police scheme has been retarded by want of funds and by the impossibility of arranging for any large additions to the fleet on account of the war. Three steam-launches and two motor-boats were made over to the Military Department. The force was mobilised in August 1915 for special duty under the General Officer Commanding Presidency Brigade. The training and experience gained were invaluable, and the Governor in Council is glad to note that the force acquitted itself creditably. The protection afforded by the river police to the traffic on the great rivers of this Presidency is much appreciated, and the expansion and further equipment of the force and the extension of the scheme to the Western Bengal rivers will be undertaken as early as circumstances permit.

8. The extent to which the police receive effective assistance from the village chaukidars varies in different districts. Much must always depend on the individual police officer and his skill in using the materials at his disposal, but the Governor in Council realizes that special difficulties are being encountered at the present time. The chaukidari administration is in a state of transition, and definite principles regarding the relations of the police with the panchayats on the one hand and the chaukidars on the other cannot yet be finally laid down. The immediate introduction of the complete circle system on the lines recommended by the District Administration Committee is impossible on account of legislative and financial difficulties which cannot be removed until after the termination of the war; but meanwhile much valuable experimental work is being done. The reports as to the success of the appointment of whole-time daffadars in the Madaripur subdivision are now confirmed, and the question of the extension of the scheme to other subdivisions is under consideration.

9. The criminal record of the year is a black one. Serious crime of all kinds except rioting showed a considerable increase, which was most marked in the case of offences against property. True cases of dacoity increased from 289 in 1914 to 653 in 1915: burglary cases from 30,294 to 39,812, and theft cases from 17,730 to 21,552. The increase in theft and burglary may be ascribed mainly to unfavourable economic conditions caused by partial crop failures in many districts of the province and by the heavy fall in the price of jute. In the case of dacoity, however, there appears to be good reason for attributing the increase almost entirely to the state of unrest caused by the war. In the 24-Parganas, the members of a gang which was responsible for a number of dacoities represented themselves as Germans. The withdrawal of troops from the Dacca Division produced a widespread rumour that the police would also be withdrawn and sent to the front. In Nadia Muhammadan criminals were told that they need not fear to go to jail, as the Germans and Turks would soon be in possession of India and would set them free. There can be little doubt that rumours of this kind led the more dangerous criminals to believe that Government was preoccupied with other matters and that a good opportunity for organized crime was open to them. The most serious outbreak of dacoity occurred in Bakarganj where 158 cases were reported A Special Commission constituted under the Defence of India Act sat for over six months and tried 44 cases in which 198 persons were implicated. Forty one cases ended in conviction, and 163 persons were sentenced to various terms of transportation and imprisonment. This action, together with the institution of proceedings under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code, sufficed to check the outbreak. It is satisfactory to note that the rewards offered by Government of Rs. 1,500 for the arrest of armed dacoits and of Rs. 500 for the arrest of unarmed dacoits have had a good effect in inducing the people to resist attacks. A sum of Rs. 9,500 was distributed as rewards for the arrest of dacoits in 16 cases during the year.

10. The report contains an interesting account of the work done by the Criminal Investigation Department in dealing with organized and professional crime. Mr. Daly has produced a valuable hand-book on the criminal tribes operating in Bengal, and much progress has been made in the extension of the Criminal Tribes Act. The operations of this Act have recently been extended rapidly in the Presidency, but His Excellency in Council agrees with Mr. Plowden that the full benefit of this extension will not be obtained unless adequate provision is made for the effective surveillance of the large number of hardened criminals who have to be dealt with, and he will be glad to receive the Inspector-General's further proposals on this point.

11. An outbreak of revolutionary crime in the early part of the year was followed by a lull after the introduction of the Defence of India Act in April. The latter part of the year was, however, marked by renewed activity on the part of the revolutionary party, and the total number of cases believed to be connected with the movement was 36 as compared with 12 in the previous year. These cases included 24 dacoities, 2 attempted dacoities, 9 murders and one attempted bomb outrage. Among the victims in the murder cases were a Deputy Superintendent of Police and his child, two Sub-Inspectors of Police, a Calcutta constable, the Head Master of the Comilla Zilla School, a police informer and three private persons, one of whom had rendered material assistance to the police in the detection of a dacoity case. Early in the year, an attempt was made on the life of the Additional Superintendent of Police, Rangpur. He fortunately escaped unhurt, but his orderly was killed.

12. In none of the murder cases was sufficient evidence forthcoming to justify the placing of the suspected persons on their trial, but five notorious Bengali desperadoes, who had long been known to be engaged in murderous outrages, were rounded up in Orissa where they had established a retreat. In the course of the resistance which they offered one was killed and another mortally wounded. The other three were eventually tried by a Special Commission under the Defence of India Act. Two were sentenced to death and one to transportation for life. Three of the cases of dacoity were detected and brought before Special Commissions under the Defence of India Act. Out of 19 persons placed on their trial, 14 were convicted. In one of these dacoities the most reckless disregard of human life was displayed. During the dacoity and the subsequent pursuit of the culprits, in which the villagers showed great pluck and rendered most valuable assistance to the police, no less than four persons were killed and ten injured. It is satisfactory that eight of the persons who took part in this outrage, including the leader, were sentenced to transportation for life. As a result of successful action under the preventive sections of the Criminal Procedure Code, 19 dangerous characters were bound down, and the movements of a large number of others were restrained by orders issued under the Defence of India Act. There can be no doubt that the revolutionary forces were considerably weakened during the year, though recent events have shown that the end of the battle with murder and anarchy is not yet in sight.

13. The Governor in Council entirely endorses Mr. Plowden's remark that the work of the Intelligence Branch during the year furnishes a splendid record of self-sacrifice and unremitting labour. The indomitable spirit shown by the officers of all ranks in the face of constant danger and discouragement is worthy of the highest praise, and His Excellency in Council desires in particular to express his appreciation of the work of those officers, both European and Indian, who by their untiring efforts and by the exercise of high qualities of leadership have held the department together, kept alight its enthusiasm and inspired it with energy and determination. The department may rest assured that no action will be wanting on the part of Government to mitigate as far as possible the hardships and dangers which service in this branch of the police involves.

14. The police as a whole had to contend with peculiar difficulties during 1915. Various causes for which they cannot be held responsible produced a serious increase in crime at a time when long anticipated improvements in the conditions under which they work had to be postponed owing to the outbreak of the war, and while the energies of many of the ablest officers of the force had to be concentrated on the fight with revolution and anarchy. In spite of these difficulties, there has been a steady and sustained improvement in the spirit and morale of the force. The excellent training given at Sarda and in the Constables' schools have largely contributed to this result. Many things have happened during the year which should make the Bengal public proud of the Bengal Police, and His Excellency in Council believes that public recognition of this fact cannot be long delayed. The force has fully earned the high commendations which it has received from the Government of India and the Secretary of State.

15. The thanks of Government are due to all the police officers who have been commended by the Inspector-General for meritorious work during the year. Mr. Hughes-Buller's long connection with the police has recently been severed, and the Governor in Council desires to express his high appreciation of the value of the services rendered by him during his six years' tenure of the post of Inspector-General. Mr. Plowden has submitted an interesting and valuable report, instinct not only with knowledge and experience but also with the high ideals which should animate the work of all police officers, and His Excellency in Council has good reason to believe that such ideals inspire the work of an ever-increasing number of police officers in Bengal.

ORDER.—Ordered that copies of the Resolution be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Police, the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, and all Commissioners of Divisions for information.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

No. 91Marine.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 10 of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1859 (I of 1859), the Governor in Council, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, is pleased to make the following amendments to the rules for the conduct of examinations for Masters and Mates of Foreign-going and Home Trade ships and as to the qualifications to be required, published under the notification of this Department No. 113Marine, dated the 14th November 1910, as amended by Notifications Nos. 21 and 140Marine, dated, respectively, the 10th February and 20th November 1914:—

1. Paragraph 14 add the following:—

"A candidate who has passed the Dictation Test on his first examination, and subsequently fails in Navigation, need not undergo the Dictation Test at his re-examination at the same port at the one or two subsequent attempts to which he is entitled, and for which he may present himself within the period of three months (paragraph 16)."

2. Paragraph 25 (1), the following names should be added to the list of approved bodies whose certificates may be accepted:—

"the Leith Nautical College,"

"the British Red Cross Society,"

"the Glamorgan County Council."

3. Paragraph 40 (2) add the following:—

"The words junior bridge-keeping officer" in the above Regulations must be interpreted as meaning the junior of two bridge-keeping officers. Where three officers are on the bridge together, the service of the third does not fall within the scope of these special Regulations, and his service cannot be accepted as qualifying. All cases where cadets, to whom these special Regulations, apply, subsequently present themselves for examination for First Mate or Master must be referred to the Local Government, so that their real position on board vessels of the Company satisfying the requirements of paragraph 40 may be verified by reference to the official logs before they are accepted as eligible for examination."

4. Paragraph 58, line 2, delete the words "and spell correctly."
5. Paragraph 126 substitute the following:—

"126. (1) Time served on board a training ship will be allowed to count as equivalent to one-half the same time spent in service at sea, up to a limit of two years (i.e., no length of service will be allowed to count as more than one year at sea), provided that the candidate can produce a certificate from the Committee or Captain Superintendent that he has conducted himself creditably and passed a good examination in seamanship so far as it is practised in the training ship, as well as in other matters, down to the time of his leaving the ship. Training ship service will not be regarded as equivalent to service in square-rigged vessels."

(2) Time spent at a school for Nautical Training conducted on premises ashore may be allowed to count in some proportion, not exceeding one-half, as service at sea, provided that—

(a) the school is in receipt of a grant from the Board of Education under the Regulations for Schools of Nautical Training;

(b) after an inspection by one of their officers the Board of Trade are satisfied that the school gives a training that justifies time spent there being reckoned as part of the necessary qualifying time for a certificate of competency;

(3) the candidate produces a satisfactory certificate as regards conduct and proficiency from the authorities of the school on leaving it.

The proportion in which time spent at a school conducted on premises ashore will be accepted as qualifying under the above provisions will be decided after inspection by one of the Board's officers, but time spent at the school will never be counted as equivalent to more than one-half of the same time spent at sea, nor will it in any circumstances be taken as equivalent to more than one year at sea."

6. Appendix B substitute the following :—

Examinations in the Sight Tests are also held for Fishermen at the Mercantile Marine Offices of the following ports: Fleetwood, Brixham, Milford, Ramsgate, Lowestoft, Yarmouth (Norfolk), and at any other port where Fishing Examinations are conducted, during the time of such Examination.

TEMPORARY MODIFICATIONS IN THE REGULATIONS APPLYING ONLY DURING THE WAR.

Service under the Admiralty.—All service afloat during the war in His Majesty's ships or in auxiliary supply ships or any other ships in attendance on the Fleet will be accepted in full (subject to the ordinary conditions as laid down in the Government's regulations) as qualifying sea service for the purpose of the Government's examination of Masters and Mates.

The Government cannot undertake to accept the whole or any definite proportion of service in the Royal Naval Reserve, which is not qualifying service in accordance with the regulations, but they will be prepared to consider sympathetically an application for examination from a candidate who has been prevented by his service in the Royal Naval Reserve from complying fully with the Government's requirements. This may be taken as applying, e.g., to service with a First or Second Mate's certificate but in a rank below that of Acting Sub-Lieutenant.

Service in the Royal Naval Reserve: Antedating Certificates.—The Government have considered the case of men serving in the Royal Naval Reserve during the war who are prevented by the exigencies of the service from presenting themselves for examination on completion of the period of qualifying service required by the Government's regulations. Arrangements have been made whereby if such a person passes the examination for a certificate of competency at a time not remote from the conclusion of hostilities, he may have his certificate antedated to the date on which the period of qualifying service was completed; and service performed after that date, if eligible, will be accepted as qualifying for a higher certificate. No certificate, however, will be antedated to a date prior to that on which the candidate was called out for Active Service.

Service in the Army.—The Government are anxious that, so far as it is reasonably possible, seamen or apprentices who are at the present time serving in the Army should not be hindered in their ordinary profession, but the Government cannot, in the absence of any indication of the probable duration of the war, give a definite undertaking with regard to the extent to which such service could be accepted as part of the service required to qualify for certificate of competency in the Mercantile Marine. The Government must have regard to the essential condition that their certificates must testify to actual competency, but they will be prepared in due course to consider sympathetically any application to be examined by a candidate who has been prevented from complying fully with the rules owing to his service in the Army.

Service under an Auxiliary First Mate.—With reference to paragraph 37(c) of the regulations relating to the Examinations of Masters and Mates the Government have decided to accept service as Second Mate while holding a First Mate's foreign-going certificate and performed during the war under an additional or auxiliary First Mate as qualifying service for a Master's certificate, provided that a Third Mate is also carried, and the requirement that there shall be a Fourth Mate will, for the time being, not be insisted upon.

First Aid Certificates.—A First Aid Certificate, which, though otherwise valid, is more than three years old, will be accepted during the war if the holder has been prevented from renewing it by reason of the exigencies of the war service.

Examination of Enemy Aliens.—So long as the war lasts, no subject of an Enemy State will be allowed to present himself for examination for a certificate of competency in the Mercantile Marine.

C. P. WALSH,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The 29th August 1916.

No. 92Marine.—IN exercise of the power conferred by section 36 of the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884, the Governor in Council proposes to make the following amendments in the rules to regulate the granting of certificates of competency to Engineers of sea-going steamships which were published under the notification of this Department No. 172Marine, dated the 30th December 1913.

The draft amendments will be taken into consideration after the expiry of a month from the date of their publication in the Gazette, and the Governor in Council will be pleased to consider any suggestions or observations which may be made concerning them within that period.

C. P. WALSH,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

DRAFT AMENDMENTS TO THE REGULATIONS RELATING TO THE EXAMINATIONS OF ENGINEERS.

Paragraph 19.—Add the following:—

Failure in a number of elementary questions involving fundamental principles, or in questions ignorance of which might lead an Engineer to do something actually unsafe in the management of any part of a ship's machinery, will be regarded as failure in practical knowledge.

Paragraph 28.—Add the following:—

Each candidate who claims remission of sea service on account of attendance at a recognized Marine Technical School must produce his class notebooks when he makes application to be examined.

These books will be forwarded to the Examiner, in order that he may satisfy himself that the candidate has followed the approved course of instruction, and that the remission of sea service claimed may be allowed accordingly.

Application for examination of candidates claiming remission of sea service should, as a rule, be made at least a week before they desire to sit.

A list of the Marine Technical Schools recognised for this purpose is given in Appendix J.

Paragraph 31.—Add the following:—

This paragraph applies only to works at which the making and of repairing of steam-engines, boilers, etc., forms part of the regular business for which the works exist. Service at works where the repairing of steam-engines, boilers, etc., is merely incidental to the running of plant, however large, which is used for the production of power for other machinery, etc., should be dealt with under paragraph 33, each case being considered on its merits.

Insert after paragraph 33—

Service in Colonial and Foreign Workshops.—Paragraphs 31 to 33 apply to service in the United Kingdom and India only. Service in a Colonial or foreign workshop will not be accepted unless the Examiner is satisfied in each case that its value is substantially equivalent to that of service in the United Kingdon and India. In cases where the Examiner is not satisfied that the value is equivalent, he will refer the matter for decision.

Workshop service in India is to be taken as equivalent to not more than four-fifths of the same period of service in the United Kingdom.

Paragraph 34.—Add the following:—

Time spent in attending evening classes in Engineering at approved Technical Schools will similarly be allowed to count under the following conditions:—

(1) Each candidate claiming an allowance for time spent in attending evening classes at a Technical School must produce a certificate signed by the Principal of the School to the effect that he has attended regularly at a definite class or classes, which should be specified, and has made satisfactory progress. This certificate must also state the total number of hours spent by the candidate in attending each class.

(2) Time spent by the candidate in attending such classes as have a direct bearing on the training of a Marine Engineer will be reckoned at the rate of five hours to one day. The total number of days so obtained will then be accepted in lieu of a certain fraction of the same period of workshop service. This fraction will be fixed for each school at the time of approval and will generally be two-thirds.

(3) A candidate who has attended a Technical School in the evening, while being employed as an apprentice or journeyman Engineer during the day, must, in order that the school time may be accepted, produce satisfactory proof that he has spent the full working day in the works, at which he is employed, before attending the school. Such proof will usually take the form of a statement in the testimonial as to workshop service given by the employer.

(4) Allowance will only be given for classes attended after the candidate has reached the age of 15.

Paragraph 44.—Add the following:—

Where an Engineer is employed on a fishing or other vessel and is required to do stoking or other work not usually performed by an Engineer in the Mercantile Marine, such service cannot be accepted as qualifying.

The Examiners of Engineers will in all cases satisfy themselves that service on fishing boats, when claimed as qualifying for a certificate as Engineer, is of a similar nature to that performed by Engineers in the Mercantile Marine.

Paragraph 48.—Add the following:—

It is not necessary for applications of Chief Engine-room Artificers and Mechanicians, who have left the Royal Navy and who desire to be examined for certificates of competency as Engineers in the Mercantile Marine, to be forwarded either through their Commanding Officers or through the Admiralty. Men who are still serving in these ratings in the Royal Navy should make their applications through their Commanding Officers.

Artificer Engineers, however, being Warrant Officers, should make their applications in the same manner as that laid down for other officers of the Royal Navy.

Appendix J.—Substitute the following:—

The following is a list of Technical Schools attendance at which is recognised by the Government as affording remission of some period of the service required to qualify a candidate for examination for a certificate of competency as Engineer.

(I) Day Classes.

When nothing is stated to the contrary, time spent in attending the day classes in Mechanical Engineering of a recognised Technical School is accepted as equivalent to artisan service at the ratio of three years of the former to two of the latter, provided the applicant was over 15 years of age and can produce the Principal's certificate for continuous and regular attendance at all the approved classes and for satisfactory progress. Such time cannot as a rule be accepted as equivalent to more than two years' artisan service.

TEMPORARY MODIFICATIONS IN THE REGULATIONS APPLYING ONLY DURING THE WAR.

Service under the Admiralty.—All service afloat during the war in His Majesty's ships or in auxiliary supply ships or any other ships in attendance on the Fleet will be accepted in full (subject to the ordinary conditions as laid down in the Government's Regulations) as qualifying sea service for the purpose of the Government's examination of Engineers.

The Government cannot undertake to accept the whole or any definite proportion of service in the Royal Naval Reserve, which is not qualifying service in accordance with the Regulations, but they will be prepared to consider sympathetically an application for examination from a candidate who has been prevented by his service in the Royal Naval Reserve from complying fully with the Government's requirements. This may be taken as applying, to service in the engine-room, during which a candidate for a First Class certificate was not the senior Engineer in charge of the whole watch on the main engines or boilers.

Service in the Royal Naval Reserve: Antedating Certificates.—Government has considered the case of men serving in the Royal Naval Reserve during the war who are prevented by the exigencies of the service from presenting themselves for examination on completion of the period of qualifying service required by the Government's Regulations. Arrangements have been made whereby if such a person passes the examination for a certificate of competency at a time not remote from the conclusion of hostilities, he may have his certificate antedated to the date on which the period of qualifying service was completed; and service performed after that date, if eligible, will be accepted as qualifying for a higher certificate. The Government must have regard to the essential condition that their certificates must testify to actual competency, but they will be prepared in due course to consider sympathetically any application to be examined by a candidate who has been prevented from complying fully with the Regulations owing to his service in the Army.

This may be taken as applying to candidates for Engineers' certificates [illegible] were prevented, by serving with His Majesty's forces, from completing before January 1st, 1915, the twelve months' sea service required by the Regulations then in force. (See paragraph 25.)

First Aid Certificates.—A First Aid Certificate which, though otherwise valid, is more than three years old will be accepted during the war if the holder has been prevented from renewing it by reason of the exigencies of the war service.

Orders and Notifications by the Government of India.

No. 7333-W.-I.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

WHEAT.

RESOLUTION.

Simla, the 17th August 1916.

THE Government of India have had under their consideration the Report by Mr M. M. S. Gubbay, C.I.E., I.C.S., on the operations conducted under his control as Wheat Commissioner for India during the period from April to October 1915 The Report is now published for general information, with the exception of certain passages dealing with details of the business management of the exporting agent firms, the relations of which with the Government were on an intimate and confidential basis: and as the purchase and export of wheat on a large scale under the scheme of agency came to an end some time before the close of the period with which the Report deals, and were not resumed again to any appreciable extent before the re-opening of private export on the 1st May 1916, the Government of India take this opportunity of reviewing the work accomplished by the Wheat Commissioner and his staff during the export season of 1915.

2. The main lines of the action taken by Government are already well known to the public, and the general wheat policy of the Government of India and its financial results have been explained in some considerable degree of detail by the Honourable the Finance Member in introducing the Financial Statement. Few further remarks are, therefore, required on that portion of the Wheat Commissioner's Report which deals with the Wheat Scheme as a whole. The Wheat Commissioner places the approximate net expenditure incurred in India in connection with the scheme at £4,634,156, leaving as the estimated profits of the scheme from receipts in England the substantial balance of £132,211. The figures for expenditure are not yet entirely based on actuals, but no large variation is to be expected. A brief Report on the operations subsequent to October 1915 will be published later, and this will contain the final figures of the net profits of the scheme. Much of the success of the scheme depended on the judgment shown in determining the Government purchase price from time to time and in fixing the maximum quantities up to which the firms were authorised to purchase. Unduly large allotments and undue hesitancy in reducing prices might have resulted in larger exports, but would have been injurious to the interests of the consumer. In advising the Government of India in respect of these very important points, the Wheat Commissioner depended for his data on the collation of reports from the provincial Directors of Agriculture and from officers of selected wheat districts and of States and Agencies in Central India and Rajputana and weekly statements of the movements of wheat on the railways. The Wheat Commissioner rightly expresses his indebtedness to the officers concerned for the information supplied, and the Government of India gratefully acknowledge the assistance thus given by the Local Governments, the Darbars and the Railway Administrations.

3. The greater portion of the actual work performed by the Wheat Commissioner and his staff was concerned with the operations of the ten selected firms in their capacity of Government agents. The general lines of the scheme were as follows. The firms were treated as agents; their remuneration consisted solely of a commission, all profits arising from their operations being credited to Government account, and the actual cost of the wheat being paid by Government as well as the charges of railing, storing, handling and shipping at the port of shipment. In addition, Government undertook to re-imburse the firms their establishment and other fixed charges incurred in connection with the purchase of wheat on the basis of actual and approved expenditure. All allowances and discounts admitted by the custom of the trade, as well as any actual recoveries from sellers or from other sources in respect of wheat purchased for Government, were credited to Government. The actual cost of each parcel purchased could not be exactly ascertained immediately on its arrival at the port, and it was therefore necessary for the Wheat Commissioner to settle with each firm individually a pro forma invoice or formula on which, given purchase price and railway freight, the cost of the wheat for shipment at the ports could be ascertained with a considerable approach to accuracy, thereby enabling all but a small proportion of the outgoings of the firms to be made over to them almost immediately in the form of advance payments. The initial formula was based on the firms' method and cost of working, as determined by their experience in previous years, but the details were eventually modified to a considerable extent in consequence of the close and continuous check applied by the Wheat Commissioner and his staff. An audit of the actual charges incurred by the firms had ultimately to be effected, and the advance payments made on the pro forma invoices adjusted against the actual totals as ascertained by audit. The final figures as adjusted, subject to a settlement of payments due for godown rents and establishment charges, amount to Rs. 6,90,37,103, and it is a tribute to the efficient initial organisation devised by the Wheat Commissioner for the working of the system and to the services of Mr A. C. McWatters, I.C.S., and the Assistant Wheat Commissioners, in Mr. Gubbay's acknowledgment of which the Government of India fully concur, that the whole of the accounts of the transactions of the agent firms were offered for audit within six weeks of the last shipment. The report of the Auditor showed that the firms' accounts had been prepared with a high degree of accuracy and carefulness. For these results much credit is due to the loyal co-operation and the whole-hearted assistance of the members of the selected agent firms; to these gentlemen the thanks of the Government of India have been separately conveyed.

4. In conclusion, the Government of India note with satisfaction that these large and complicated transactions were disposed of by the Wheat Commissioner with a comparatively small and inexpensive staff, and that the total expenditure which must be debited against the receipts of the scheme on account of the staff and office up to the end of December was Rs. 66,065-12-2.

5. The report is a most valuable record of an entirely novel and very successful Government enterprise, and the Government of India desire to place on record their full appreciation of the eminent services rendered by Mr. Gubbay in connection with the scheme.

ORDERED that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Governments of Bombay, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, the Punjab and the United Provinces to the Honourable the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL REPORTS OF THE VETERINARY COLLEGE AND OF THE CIVIL VETERINARY DEPARTMENT, BENGAL, FOR THE YEAR ENDING THE 31st MARCH 1916.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

AGRICULTURE.

CALCUTTA, THE 24TH AUGUST 1916.

RESOLUTION—No. 6929 Agri.

READ—

The Annual Reports of the Veterinary College and of the Civil Veterinary Department, Bengal, for the year ending 31st March 1916, with the Director of Agriculture's review thereof.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL A. SMITH was Principal of the Bengal Veterinary College throughout the year, and the late Mr. E. H. Brand held the office of Assistant Principal. Mr. [illegible], one of the Lecturers of the College, died during the year and in May [illegible] Mr. Brand met with a fatal accident while playing polo. Both of these officers possessed great ability and by their death the College has suffered a very serious loss. The second Imperial Officer sanctioned for the College has not yet been recruited.

The post of Superintendent, Civil Veterinary Department, Bengal, was held by Mr. P. J. Kerr till the 9th July 1915, when he left the Department to join the Indian Army Reserve of Officers. He was succeeded by Mr. A. D. MacGregor, M.R.V.S., an officer of the Indian Civil Veterinary Department, who was under training at the Bengal Veterinary College. Mr. MacGregor was in charge of the Department till the 18th February 1916, when he also joined the Indian Army Reserve of Officers. For the remaining period of the year Lieutenant-Colonel A. Smith, Principal, Bengal Veterinary College, held charge of the Department in addition to his own duties. Mr. Kerr was on tour for 27 days and Mr. MacGregor for 85 days. With a view to assisting the Superintendent in touring and in the inspection of the work of the subordinate staff of the Department, the appointment of a second grade Deputy Superintendent for the Civil Veterinary Department was sanctioned during the year and Babu S. C. Pal was appointed to the post: he was on tour for 105 days. It is reported that his work has been satisfactory and has contributed largely to the efficient supervision of the Department.

2. There was a considerable increase in the number of students at the Bengal Veterinary College during the year, the number on the roll at the end of the session being 135 as compared with 96 in 1914-15, 91 in 1913-14 and 99 in 1912-13. Nineteen students graduated from the College at the close of the year, and the percentage of passes at the final examination was 67·85 as against 82·60 in 1914-15. During the year 30 students were sent to the College by the Sanitary Commissioner of Bengal to attend a course of lectures on infectious diseases of cattle.

3. The Governor in Council is glad to notice that the Raymond Research Laboratory at the College continued to do valuable work especially with reference to the diagnosis of infectious diseases.

4. The report of the Civil Veterinary Department shows a considerable decrease in the mortality of animals from contagious diseases during the year, the total number of deaths reported being 10,725, as against 15,950 in 1914-15. The number of deaths amongst bovines from rinderpest fell from 13,662 in 1914-15 to 8,893. Good results were obtained from preventive inoculation conducted by the Department. There were 284 outbreaks of rinderpest in the area outside Calcutta and its suburbs, resulting in the death of 3,351 uninoculated animals, while out of 38,950 inoculated animals only 364, or a little over 0·9 per cent., died. It is reported that there were no deaths amongst 2,029 animals inoculated for hæmorrhagic septicæmia. In Calcutta and its suburbs there were 28 outbreaks of rinderpest which were promptly attended to by the staff of the Bengal Veterinary College. Inoculation was performed in 3,181 cases, of which only 5 died. It is reported that prejudice against inoculation still exists among cultivators in some districts. The Governor in Council trusts that the satisfactory results attending the work of inoculation will gradually overcome the objection.

5. During the year under report the Itinerant Veterinary Assistants visited 11,119 villages and treated 61,386 animals compared with 10,189 villages and 53,287 animals in the previous year. This is satisfactory. Thirteen new Veterinary Assistants were appointed during the year bringing the total number of such assistants employed in districts to 82, excluding four Staff Veterinary Assistants and six Reserve Veterinary Assistants. Several applications from District Boards for additional Veterinary Assistants had to be refused for want of qualified men. It is satisfactory to notice that the demand for Veterinary Assistants is continuing to increase.

6. There were altogether 83 stud bulls in the Province at the close of the year. Most of them are the property of Jails or of District Boards. Many applications received for bulls during the year from District Boards could not be complied with owing to want of suitable animals. It is hoped that this demand will in time be met by the Provincial Cattle Breeding Farm. It is reported that the Circle Inspectors try to impress upon the public the means of improving the breed of cattle and specially the necessity of proper care and feeding.

The Superintendent, Civil Veterinary Department, remarks that the work of the Veterinary Assistants was satisfactory.

7. In Calcutta and its neighbourhood all the stables within the area under the Glanders and Farcy Act were frequently inspected during the year, and glanders was detected in 5 stables against 6 in the previous year. Four stables were also found infected with surra against 3 in 1914-15. In the mufassal glanders was confined to two districts, viz., Bakarganj and Dacca, and there were only 9 deaths against 38 in the preceding year. The deaths in the Sodepur Pinjrapole also declined, the number being 71 against 167 in the previous year. There were severe outbreaks of surra in the districts of Khulna and Tippera. All possible measures for its suppression were taken by the staff of the Department.

8. No new dispensary was opened during the year. The total number of patients treated at the existing 24 dispensaries shows a considerable increase, viz., 29,349 against 24,049 in 1914-15. Satisfactory progress is shown in almost all the districts of the Province. New buildings were completed for the Veterinary Dispensary at Barisal, and the dispensary was removed to them during the year. The Governor in Council observes with satisfaction that arrangements are being made by the District Board of Bakarganj for the construction of a Veterinary Dispensary with quarters for the Veterinary Assistants in each of the three outlying subdivisions.

9. The number of animals sent to the College Hospital for treatment in connection with cases under the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act during the year was 523 out of 4,879 prosecutions instituted under the Act, as against 220 animals out of 8,455 prosecutions in the previous year. The report submitted by the Committee appointed to consider whether any improvement was possible in the law of cruelty to animals and its administration is under the consideration of Government.

10. During the year under report seven Veterinary Assistants of the Province volunteered for service with Indian Silladar Cavalry Regiments and the Supply and Transport Corps, and they are now serving under the military authorities in various stations in India. Mr. R. V. Pillai, a member of the Bengal Veterinary College, was also permitted during the year to volunteer for the duty of taking charge of horses which were being supplied for military purposes from Bombay. His conduct was favourably reported on. One Veterinary Assistant was deputed to Madras during the year to undergo a course of training in the treatment of elephants. After completing his course the Veterinary Assistant joined his appointment under the Commissioner of the Rajshahi Division for treatment of Government elephants in the districts of Jalpaiguri and Darjeeling.

11. The Governor in Council acknowledges his appreciation of the services of Lieutenant-Colonel Smith, Principal of the Bengal Veterinary College, and of Messrs. P. J. Kerr and A. D. MacGregor who held the post of the Superintendent, Civil Veterinary Department, Bengal, during the year. The reports show a large amount of valuable work done by the Veterinary Department and bear testimony to the success of its operations.

By order of the Governor in Council,

L. BIRLEY,

Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

THE MYSORE DASARA INDUSTRIAL AND AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION, 1916.

PROSPECTUS

THE Dasara Industrial and Agricultural Exhibition will be opened at Mysore on the 3rd October 1916 and will continue for a period of fifteen days till the 18th October 1916.

The main object of the Exhibition is to encourage the arts and industries of the State by presenting a display of the resources, processes of manufacture and products of the State, together with similar products turned out in other parts of India. It is proposed to show not only the methods of [illegible] generally in vogue, but also the improvements that are being introduced with the aid of the Technical Departments of Government as well as the endeavours of the Economic Conference. With a view to obtain a collective idea of the agricultural and industrial resources of each district in the State, it has been decided to request the District Committees to collect and arrange the exhibits from their districts, each in a separate room. Space will also be reserved to such of the Technical Departments of Government who propose to take part in the Exhibition. It is also contemplated to have a large exhibit of industrial machinery in motion for which special accommodation has been provided, and supply of power will, if desired, also be arranged for. Owing to the difficulty in arranging for the imports of machinery from abroad, it is hoped that the occasion will be utilised by the local engineering firms as an opportunity to place on the market industrial machinery made in India.

The Exhibition is open to all India, and it has been decided not to levy any fees for the space allotted except in cases specially provided for in the accompanying rules. For the convenience of visitors and to encourage trade, sale rooms have been set apart in the Exhibition buildings and permission to put up temporary booths of approved types in the open grounds will be accorded by the Exhibition Committee. A Post and a Telegraph Office will be opened at the Exhibition premises from the 15th September 1916 and will continue to be maintained up to 15th of December 1916. Special arrangements have been made with the Railway authorities for the unloading of heavy goods at the siding close to the Exhibition. The concessions granted by the Railway Companies in India are noted in the appendix.

An admission fee of annas two per head will be levied for entry into the Exhibition buildings, and season tickets will also be issued at one rupee per head. Return railway tickets between Bangalore and Mysore at a reduced rate entitling the holder for admission into the Exhibition during the whole period will be arranged for.

The Mysore Exhibition Committee, who are responsible for all the arrangements connected with the Exhibition, invite the cordial co-operation of every one interested in the agricultural and industrial development of India in their endeavours to make the Exhibition fruitful of results.

C. RANGANATHA RAO SAHIB,
Secretary, Dasara Exhibition.

SYLLABUS.

The first aim of this Section is to bring into touch with each other women, who having themselves learnt the value of new occupations and interests, are anxious to hand on this knowledge to others. Plain or fancy needlework, lace-making, basket-making, knitting, all these are occupations enjoyed by a large number of women and girls in India, but there remain a still larger number who have neither seen nor heard about them. To interest these, it is important to collect for exhibition the best that is done in all branches of women's work, and it is only the best in each section of the work that can be encouraged by the award of medals and prizes.

2. Exhibits which have already won prizes in previous exhibitions cannot compete. They will be accepted as "Loan exhibits" or exhibited for sale if space permits.

3. None but genuine women's or children's work will be allowed to compete for prizes in this Section.

With regard to this year's syllabus it was at first suggested that to appeal more strongly to Indian ladies, we should restrict the work to that of Indian use and design; but since European needlework is yearly becoming an important source of income to Indian women, we felt the same object might better be served by making the classes more distinct and by increasing the prizes.

It is hoped that the improved standard of last year's work will be maintained and that Indian ladies will contribute in far greater numbers than heretofore. We should also urge any ladies interested in children's work to make this Exhibition known as widely as possible, as the number of exhibits sent in by children last year (1914) was most disappointing.

REPORTS ON THE WORKING OF THE SHIPPING OFFICES IN BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1915-16.

NOTIFICATION.

The 29th August 1916.

No. 90 Marine.—The following annual reports on the working of the Shipping Offices in Bengal for the year 1915-16 are published for general information.

C. P. WALSH,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt of Bengal.

No $\frac{S.}{1042}$, dated Calcutta, the 10th August 1916.
From—COMMANDER D F VINES, R.I.M., Shipping Master, Calcutta,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Marine Department.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith, for the information of Government, the Annual Report of the Shipping Office for the year 1915-16.

The number of seamen shipped and discharged under European and Indian Foreign Articles during the year, together with the figures for the previous year, is shown in the following statement. Further details will be found in Appendix I

Articles	1914 15	1915 16	Decrease
	Shipped.
Indian .. .	43,790	39,438	4,352
Total .	44,960	40,527	4,433
	Discharged.
European ...	1,427	832	595
Indian	38,368	31, 97	6,771
Total ...	39,795	32,129	7,366

The decrease in the number of seamen shipped and discharged is due to the smaller number of vessels which visited the Port.

61 Eurasians were shipped on European Articles during the year as compared with 81 in the previous year, and 375 Eurasians were shipped on Native Articles against 475 in the previous year.

The figures below represent the number of seamen of various nationalities shipped and discharged at the Foreign Consulates in the Port, and details of this will be found in Appendix II .—

Nationalities	Shipped	Discharged
British ...	1	Nil
Brazilian .	1	Nil.
Chinese	6	2
Italian	6	6
Javanese	2	2
Russian	5	10
Japanese . ..	11	15
Dutch	2	2
Arab . ..	2	..
Total . . .	42	40

250 European and Indian seamen deserted, and 536 failed to join their vessels during the year. They were nearly all replaced by substitutes.

Repatriation of Distressed Seamen.—54 seamen were repatriated at the expense of their ships and 2 at their own expense.

Relief to Seamen.—7 seamen were afforded relief in the Government Workhouse during the year at a cost of Rs. 258. Of these one obtained employment, one was discharged, one was taken over by friends, one absconded, and the remaining three are still there.

26 seamen were relieved in the Alms House by the District Charitable Society at a cost of Rs. 2,095.

106 destitute seamen were admitted into the Sailors' Home during the year, and a loss of Rs. 155 was sustained owing to seamen being unable to pay their board.

27 distressed Native seamen were assisted from the Shipwrecked Mariners' Fund at a cost of Rs. 650.

Rupees 7,425 was placed at my disposal by the Imperial Relief Fund to grant advances to lascar crews of enemy vessels whose wages were outstanding. This has since been recovered from the wages of the seamen and refunded to the Imperial Relief Fund.

Administration of Trust Funds.—Appendix III shows the transactions during the year of funds held in trust under different heads.

Stamped papers to the value of Rs. 30-8 were used on account of security in disposing of the estates of deceased seamen.

The balance of accumulated funds at the commencement of the year was Rs. 17,624, and the receipts during the year were Rs. 62,135.

The payments from the funds amounted to Rs. 53,137 and Rs. 3,171 lapsed to Government. A balance of Rs. 23,451 was left in deposit at the close of the year.

Transactions with Board of Trade.—Rupees 33,320 represents the transactions with the Board of Trade, and compared with the figures of the previous year, shows an increase of Rs. 14,886.

European Seamen's money-orders.—A sum of £1,768-10 was remitted by seamen to their relatives in England as compared with £593-16-8 of the previous year. The full European crew of the S.S. "City of Athens" were discharged at this Port and remitted money Home through the Board of Trade Money Order System, and to this must be ascribed the increase shown above.

Financial Results.—The figures below give the financial results of the office for the last five years :—

Year.	Receipts Rs.	Disbursements Rs.	Savings Rs.
1911-12 .	1,05,571	62,475	43,096
1912-13 .	1,18,739	65,009	53,730
1913-14 ..	1,23,047	69,875	53,172
1914-15 .	1,04,854	61,509	43,345
1915-16 ...	94 319	57,669	36,650

A comparison in the savings of the present and the previous year shows a decrease of Rs 6,695, due to the fact that the report for the previous year included four months of normal shipping before war was declared.

Expenditure.—Appendix IV details particulars of the receipts and expenditure during the year.

In the Receipts column it will be observed that there is a decrease of Rs 5,712 under the head of Shipping Fees. This would have been considerably larger but for the revenue derived from shipping passenger crews on articles here for vessels in outports—a custom, which, though in vogue, was not strictly observed till enforced by the Shipping Office about April 1915. Rupees 3,034 was the amount realised in shipping fees for passenger crews during the year.

Administrative changes.—The following changes have taken place in this office during the year :—

Lieutenant Ward, R.I.M., Assistant Port Officer and Deputy Shipping Master, was detailed for service in Mesopotamia. He was relieved of his duties by Mr. Sharp, Assistant Shipping Master, on the 15th November 1915, who officiated as Assistant Port Officer and Deputy Shipping Master till 1st January 1916, when he was relieved by Mr. S. H. Reaks, the present Assistant Port Officer and Deputy Shipping Master.

DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS.

For the week ending on the [illegible]th August 1916.

Summary.—During the week under report seasonable rainfall was general throughout the Province. It has greatly facilitated the transplanting of winter rice and the steeping and washing of jute. Weeding of the winter rice crop has commenced. Harvesting of autumn paddy and jute continues every where and is approaching completion in some of the eastern districts. The prospects of standing jute and other autumn crops are on the whole fairly satisfactory. Insufficiency of fodder owing to floods is reported from parts of Dinajpur, Bogra, Dacca and Tippera. Cattle-disease exists in two districts only. The average price of common rice for the Province has risen by about 0·25 per cent. as compared with that of the previous week.

The Calcutta Gazette

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1916.

PART IA.

Orders and Notifications by the Government of India.

The following notifications, issued by the Government of India in the Department of Commerce and Industry, published in the Gazette of India, dated the 26th August 1916, are republished for general information.

J. H. KERR,
Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

NOTIFICATIONS.

CUSTOMS

Simla, the 26th August 1916.

No. 7497-W.-II.—In supersession of the Notification in this Department No. 13755-W., dated the 21st August 1915, the following regulations respecting certificates of origin for foreign goods imported into Russia are published for general information:—

Regulations concerning proof of origin of foreign goods.

I. The following will be accepted as proof of the origin of goods subject to Customs duty at the rates of the "Conventional," or, as the case may be, "General" Tariff for European trade:—

1. Certificates of origin issued by:
   (a) Russian diplomatic and consular officers, with the official seal affixed;
   (b) Chambers of Commerce, Municipal or Police Authorities with the official seal affixed;
   (c) Custom houses discharging the goods from the country whose products are assessed in Russia at "Conventional" rates, or, as the case may be, "General" rates of the Tariff;
2. Accounts, invoices, or letters of manufacturers, wholesale stores, merchants' commission, offices and traders

II. The documents enumerated in point 1 (letters b and c) and point 2 of Section I will be recognised as sufficient proof of origin only when the said documents have been attested by Russian diplomatic or consular officers, if there be such in the country of origin. Not only the signatures in the documents must so be attested, but also the accuracy of the statements regarding the origin of the goods indicated. In the case of accounts, invoices, and letters of foreign manufacturers, etc. (point 2 of Section I), the above officials must also certify that the persons submitting these documents do in fact possess the commercial or industrial undertakings in the name of which the documents are submitted.

As a temporary measure and for the duration of the war owners of goods may obtain certificates of origin from the competent Consuls of allied or neutral countries resident in the country through which the goods pass, or from which they have been obtained. These certificates, however, as well as the accuracy of the declaration as to the origin of the goods made therein, must be further certified by the local Russian diplomatic or consular officer.

NOTE.—In countries where there are no Russian diplomatic or consular representatives, the documents may be attested by English, French, or Belgian diplomatic or consular officials, according to a list sanctioned by the Minister for Foreign Affairs.

III. Should (Russian) Customs establishments experience any difficulties in interpreting the foreign text of documents presented, the owner of the goods must, on demand, submit a translation in Russian, certifying the correctness of the same with his signature

IV. The documents referred to in Section I will be accepted only if issued by persons residing, or institutions established in the country of origin of the goods, and not in countries through which they are being conveyed in transit.

V. These documents must contain information as to the quantity of packages, their marks and numbers, gross and net weight, and description of the goods by their technical or trade name, the following exceptions being admitted :—

(a) In proof of origin of articles assessed in the Tariff not by weight but by piece, documents will be accepted without indication of the net and gross weight.

(b) In documents concerning vessels (ships), the dimensions may be indicated by gross capacity in tons.

(c) The net weight need not be given in the case of the following . all goods assessed in the Tariff by gross weight and all goods allowed a deduction for tare if imported in packing specifically named in the Tare Table sanctioned by the Minister of Finance.

(d) Slight disparities in the marks and numbers of goods' packages, as compared with the entries in the documents need not disqualify the documents if the Customs authorities have no doubt that the documents refer to the goods imported.

VI. It is sufficient to present one of the documents indicated in Section I if the goods come to Russia direct from the country of origin.

VII. By direct importation of goods from the country of origin is to be understood :—

(a) the carriage of goods from a port of the country of origin to a Russian port without transhipment and without discharge at a port of a third country ;

(b) the carriage of goods by rail or by a mixed route, by rail and by steamer, with through waybills or bills of lading, if the place of despatch indicated in these documents is situated within the boundaries of the country of origin and the place of destination is any interior or frontier point of Russia, even if the goods have to be conveyed viâ other countries to the products of which favourable tariff rates are applied.

VIII. The conveyance of goods through German, Austro-Hungarian, or Turkish territories, as also the transhipment or discharge of goods at ports of these countries, shall deprive the goods of any right to favourable tariff rates.

IX. On the delivery of goods imported indirectly from the country of origin the following will be required :—

1. For goods coming from Customs warehouses, in addition to one of the documents indicated in Section I, a certificate of a Custom house of the country from which the goods are imported into

Russia to the effect that the packages indicated in the said documents were not released from the warehouses of that Custom House, and indicating by what waybills or bills of lading they were despatched directly to Russia. This certificate must be attested by Russian diplomatic or consular officials; and

2. For goods acquired in a foreign interior market, a certificate of origin from Russian diplomatic or consular officials indicating that the goods, on delivery into that country, did not pass in transit through German, Austro-Hungarian or Turkish territory, and were not transhipped or discharged at ports of those countries.

X. Goods specified in the appended list, on direct import into Russia from the country of origin, do not require certificates of origin. If these goods are imported indirectly from the country of origin, they require a certificate of the Custom House of the country from which they were despatched direct to Russia, this certificate indicating the country of origin, the point whence the goods were received at the place where the Custom House issuing the certificate is situated, and the routes by which the goods were proceeding to Russia. This certificate must be attested by a Russian diplomatic or consular officer.

Certificates of origin will be dispensed with in the case of foreign goods which arrive in the Empire direct from Allied countries; nor will such certificates be required in the case of foreign goods despatched to Russia from Allied countries by parcel post

When goods from Allied countries are imported into the Empire after passing in transit through other countries, or after transhipment at intermediate ports, certificates of origin issued at the place of despatch only will be required. Russian diplomatic and consular officers will certify only the signatures on the certificates and not the accuracy of the statement regarding the origin of the goods covered by the certificate.

NOTE—At the desire of the owners of the goods, instead of the Customs certificate mentioned in this Section, documents mentioned in Sections I and IX may be presented.

XI. Asiatic goods imported by Persian, Afghan, Mongolian and overland Chinese frontiers, do not require certificates of origin.

XII. In goods' declarations, when the amount of the duty depends on the country of origin, the owner must indicate the country of origin, otherwise the declaration will be returned for the insertion of this information.

XIII. Documents showing the origin or place of despatch of goods (Sections I to X) may be presented at Custom houses at the time of import of the goods together with the lading documents, or on delivery of the declaration, or afterwards with a separate statement handed in previous to the discharge of the goods from the Custom house, but in any case, not later than six months from the date of arrival of the goods at the Custom house. Proofs of origin may also be submitted after the clearance of the goods through the Custom house. In such cases however a sum must be deposited with the Customs officials to cover the possible difference in the amount of of duty leviable; and the Customs official will either retain samples of the goods; or drawings, photographs and descriptions thereof must be left with them.

XIV. On inspection of the goods, the Customs authorities must see that the proofs of origin presented correspond with the goods, and in cases of reasonable doubt, must verify the proofs, apart from the documents referred to above, and make an expert examination of the goods.

XV. If the number of packages of goods presented for inspection should be found to be less than that entered in the documents of origin, this circumstance alone should not be a reason for refusing to recognise the goods as subject to assessment under the "Conventional" or, as the case may be, "General" Tariff and the documents of origin must not be returned to the owner of the goods. If the latter declares that the missing packages will be delivered later, the Custom house must on his written request, deliver to him a copy of these documents, with a note on the same explaining the circumstances.

XVI. The documents indicated in Sections I to X of these regulations, delivered at Custom houses with postal declarations will be recognised as proof of origin of goods imported in postal parcels. Certificates of origin covering goods sent by parcel post should specify the postal numbers of the parcels. For goods received in parcels, delivered to addressees direct from Custom houses (Section 617 of the Custom Code, 1912 Supplement), proof of origin may also be presented by the receivers on the same basis as is established for the presentation of proof of origin of goods inspected according to declaration.

XVII. For goods inspected without inspection documents in the cases provided for in Sections 197, 198, 257, 391, 399 and 417 of the Customs Code, proof of origin will be accepted on the same basis as is established for goods inspected according to declarations.

XVIII. Documents of origin, as also other documents, after payment of Customs duties on the goods, shall be sent to the competent Control Chambers with the inspection documents.

XIX. In the absence of proofs of origin, or non-compliance of the same with these regulations, the goods will be assessed for duty according to the rates established for goods of German, Austrian and Turkish origin.

XX. Exemptions from the stipulations of these regulations may be made in exceptional cases on the special authorization, in each separate case, of the Minister of Finance.
